POLICE VERDICT URGES OUSTING OF PATROLMAN

Anderson Found Guilty of Improper Conduct and Insubordination.

ALLEGED OTHER MEN ON FORCE TOOK GRAFT

Trial Follows His Failure to Produce Evidence of Assertion.

MAKES PLEA FOR AID TO SENATOR CARAWAY

Tart Reply to Captain Cause of Conviction on Second Accusation.

Policeman Joseph W. Anderson, of the Third Precinct, who recently accused his fellow officers of grafting, was found guilty on two charges by the Police Trial Board late yesterday and recommended for dismissal from the force.

Evidently anticipating the verdict, Anderson a few days ago went to Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, and asked for his aid. It was Caraway who during the Burlingame affair shouted out in the Senate that everybody knew there were grafters in the Police Department.

The Police Trial Board found Anderson guilty on one charge of conduct prejudicial to the good order and discipline of the department and on another charge of insubordination.

Fails to Show Evidence.

The first charge was placed against him after he had failed to produce satisfactory evidence to back up his graft accusations. He made these while he was being tried early this month for nonpayment of a debt.

Anderson's plea at that time was that he could not pay the debt because he was an honest man. Pressed for a more specific statement by the trial board, Anderson later named a particular policeman and charged that he had taken hush money from a well-known bootlegger.

Maj. Henry G. Pratt thereupon assigned Lieut. Joseph C. Morgan to investigate. In compliance with Morgan's request that he produce somebody to corroborate his charge, Anderson brought in a colored woman who, he said, had been employed by the bootlegger's wife.

Hearsay Evidence Supplied.

The colored woman testified that the bootlegger's wife had told her that he officer accused by Anderson had warned her that unless her husband paid him a larger sum of graft he would be raided.

Anderson was given until 10 o'clock Thursday morning to produce the bootlegger's wife. When he failed to do this, Maj. Pratt cited him before the Trial Board on a charge of conduct prejudicial to the good order and discipline of the force.

On Saturday night Anderson got into further trouble. Capt. William G. Stott, commander of the Third Precinct, accused him of being absent from his post on Connecticut avenue, and declared that when he asked Anderson why he was not on the job the policeman replied that the reason did not concern him.

Fails to Offer Defense.

Capt. Stott suspended Anderson and cited him for trial on a charge of insubordination. When Anderson appeared before the Trial Board he failed to offer a defense against either that charge or the first one.

If Anderson wants to hold his position, his only chance lies in an appeal to the Commissioners and their turning down the recommendation of the Police Trial Board.

DORAN TO ABANDON DRY POSTERS DRIVE

Prohibition Bureau Campaign Dropped Because Prints Lack Power.

HOOVER HALTS BOOK IDEA

The poster campaign of the Prohibition Bureau has been held up and probably will be abandoned altogether, it was learned yesterday. Commissioner James M. Doran said that none of the sample posters submitted by lithograph companies were suitable, and added that he would not ask the companies to send in any more.

"None of them seems to ring the bell," Doran said. "They simply don't carry the thought that we wanted to get across."

Doran added that as a matter of fact he was not so enthusiastic about the proposed poster campaign, anyway. Thus it apparently has been placed on the shelf along with the "course of education" that was to have been suggested to school heads of the country.

It developed yesterday that the plans for carrying the educational program into the schools the existence of which was announced exclusively in the Washington Post, was halted by President Hoover himself. After reading excerpts from the prepared pamphlets in the newspapers, the President called up Treasury officials and expressed his emphatic disapproval.

Consequently when Miss Anna B. Sutter, chief of the education and statistics division of the Prohibition Bureau, left here yesterday for Atlanta, Ga., to attend the annual convention of the National Education Association, she was without the "How Are We To Teach Prohibition?" pamphlets she had prepared.

The pamphlets meantime are locked up in Commissioner Doran's office.

"It is not true that we have burned them up," Doran said yesterday with a laugh. "You can't do that here; it is not a fireproof building. You can't even smoke in here."

Miss Sutter's job at the N. E. A. convention will be principally to ask for information rather than to give information.

"She will make inquiries of the teachers and find out what they are likely to want in the way of information about prohibition," Doran said. "Later we will prepare literature to cover those wants."

Doran declared that the bureau has been solicited for information virtually ever since it was created. Most requests for information and facts, he said, come

BOBBY JONES SETS PACE IN OPEN TOURNEY

LEADS AL ESPINOSA BY A SINGLE STROKE

Birdies Dot Georgian's Card on Inward Nine as Putter Shows Form.

JOHNNY FARRELL OUT OF RUNNING WITH 84

Other Favorites Troubled by Hard Course; Jack White, Aged Scot, Has 72.

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

Winged Foot Club, Mamaroneck, N. Y., June 27 (A.P.).—The one and only Bobby Jones strode out today, with the pack at his heels, and gave a masterful golfing lesson to the greatest field that ever started in quest of the open championship of the United States.

With his famous putter, "Calamity Jane," supplying the finishing touches, Jones stroked over the last nine holes in an amazing 31, five under par, to finish with 69, three under perfect figures, and assume an undisputed lead at the end of the first eighteen holes of the 72-hole championship battle over Winged Foot's bunkered battlements.

It was a great day for the great Georgian, who shot the best round he has ever carded in the national championship, but it was otherwise rough on most of the other favorites and tragic for the slim young defending champion, Johnny Farrell, who virtually eliminated himself from the running by taking a wild and woolly 84, twelve strokes over par.

Jones Is Closely Pressed.

Jones was closely pressed for the day's honors by Al Espinosa, veteran Chicago professional, who shot himself into second place with a sterling 70 and by stocky Gene Sarazen, in third place with another par-beating score, 71, but other outstanding favorites were from five to eight strokes behind the amateur champion.

Leo Diegel, the national professional champion, and Tommy Armour, 1927 open king, each had 74; Bobby Cruickshank followed with 75; while Walter Hagen, the British open title holder, was bracketed with Horton Smith, Missouri ace, among others, at 76.

MacDonald Smith, another favorite, was in the group at 77.

Where such stars as there were dimmed, at least for today, picturesque Jack White, 55-year-o'd Scotch professional, who was British open champion exactly 25 years ago, stepped into the spotlight to card a par 72, tying for fourth place with a "dark horse" from Michigan, Charles Hilgendorf, who led the field until Jones took command. While a colorful character, he shared the day's honors, so far as the crowd was concerned, with Jones as he sank a long putt on the home green and received a rousing ovation.

Two Ohio professionals, Densmore Shute and Leonard Schmutte, stepped in with a pair of 73s to tie for sixth place and shove the more conspicuous members of the field down a few more notches.

4,000 Follow Jones.

Jones, followed by the largest gallery of the day, numbering 4,000 by the time he finished, started out on what for three holes looked likely to be a disastrous round. Going to the fourth, the Georgian was four over par, as a result of missing easy shots out of traps on the first and third holes and taking three putts on the first green,

Senator From Maine Claims Right to Make And Drink Beer, Wine

Gould Declares Licensing Would Be Improvement Over Present Law.

Presque Isle, Maine, June 27 (A.P.).—Arthur R. Gould, junior United States senator from Maine, the first State to adopt a prohibitory law and which has been "dry" for 75 years, today defended his "right to have, make and drink" light wines and beer and declared the licensing of such beverages "would be a great improvement over the present prohibition law which seems impossible to enforce."

Senator Gould set forth his views after an attorney for a St. Louis grape juice company announced that he had a letter to submit in a damage action in which the senator said he had obtained "some very fair results" with the company's product.

"Everybody who knows me knows that the sentiments relating to prohibition as expressed in that letter are my sentiments," he said.

In the letter he said: "While I am from a prohibition State * * * I find it is not policy to be too outspoken as to my statements. I don't mind telling you and the world that I believe a license for light wines and beer would be a great improvement over the present prohibition law."

The senator voted against the Jones bill recently enacted, which increases the penalties for violators of the national prohibition act, and he asserted that he "had always stood that way."

Regarding his right to "have, make and drink" wine and beer, Gould said people in his section of northern Maine

HAWKS SETS MARK IN FLIGHT TO COAST

RETURN JOURNEY IS PLAN

Metropolitan Airport, Los Angeles, Calif., June 27 (A.P.).—Capt. Frank Hawks landed here at 8:23:23 p. m., Pacific standard time, establishing a new transcontinental nonstop flight record of 19 hours 10 minutes and 2 seconds from Roosevelt Field, N. Y. He left New York at 5:12:21 a. m. today. The time was checked officially.

The previous record, established by the late Capt. C. B. D. Collyer and Harry Tucker, was 24 hours 51 minutes.

Capt. Hawks planned to take off as soon as his plane was serviced here in a double attempt to better his own Los Angeles-New York record of 18 hours 21 minutes 59 seconds and to make a round-trip flight from New York to Los Angeles and return in total elapsed time of 36 hours or less.

A squad of mechanics swarmed over the plane as soon as it had taxied to a stop, servicing it for the return hop with gasoline and oil and thoroughly checking the motor.

Hawks was received by airport officials and given facilities for a hot bath, a hot meal and about an hour's sleep.

It was expected that, barring unforeseen developments, the plane and pilot would be ready to take off again in approximately 1½ hours.

NEARLY 200 SEIZED IN AUTO VIOLATIONS

OFFENSES VARY WIDELY

Almost 200 arrests for traffic violations, compared with the customary daily average of 40 or 50, marked the first day of the intensive drive started by the Police Department and the Traffic Bureau, with fifteen new motorcycle men on the job, to eliminate the causes of automobile accidents throughout the District. Fifty-nine arrests were made by the traffic squad and the others by precinct policemen.

The offense of moving against red traffic light signals was responsible for the large majority of arrests, with failure to give proper signals when turning or stopping and having license tags obstructed were well up in the fore. Heaviest fines, however, were meted out primarily for driving without operators' permits and for speeding assessments for the former in some instances running as high as $50, while $25 was the general levy for speeding. Failure to give right of way and obstruction of crosswalks also accounted for an appreciable number of arrests.

A set of regulations issued to the fifteen new motorcycle officers stressed particularly as offenses contributory to accidents: speeding, particularly at intersections; failure to comply with the right-of-way regulation; failure to obey

Ban on Former Kaiser Is Lifted by Reichstag

Uproar Follows Defeat of Bill to Continue Exclusion of Wilhelm; Government Ready to Resort to Dictatorial Powers If Necessary.

Berlin, June 2 (U.P.).—The Reichstag was thrown into greatest confusion tonight by defeat of a bill providing for extension of the law of protection of the republic, and the government has declared its readiness to apply constitutional provisions vesting the power of temporary dictatorship in the president and minister of defense if the situation warrants such action.

The defeat of the bill means, principally, that the former German kaiser would be able to enter Germany without the government being able to prohibit such action after July 23.

Although there appeared to be no reason to believe that the former kaiser would make any move to return, the government left no doubt as to its readiness to resort to the drastic dictatorial precaution if it became necessary.

The tumultuous scenes in the Reichstag included a demonstration against Severing, who was greeted with booing and shouting, which was intensified when he announced the government would introduce a new bill to protect the republic.

The demonstration was loudest when Severing repeated his declarations regarding prolongation of the protection law, which was passed in July, 1922, after the assassination of Walter Rathenau.

The lobby was packed tonight with deputies who discussed the situation excitedly. One deputy told the United Press that he was convinced the former kaiser is "too well advised" to risk returning to Germany.

It is understood that President Van Hindenburg favors prolongation of the law and former Chancellor Marx said he was convinced that the storm in the Reichstag "which really arose from a triviality, will blow over without forcing the government to resort to dictatorial powers."

The government, however, left no doubt as to its readiness to resort to this drastic measure if it was deemed necessary.

The importance of the debate over the protection measure was emphasized by the Nationalist party leader, Deputy von Lindeinerildau, who said the result signified a blow at the government and success for the opposition.

"Far from meaning the kaiser's return," he said, "the defeat of the bill probably will have no practical results. The belief is widespread that the kaiser can return only as the kaiser, or not at all.

"Nevertheless, this means that discriminatory legislation against the former kaiser is defeated, and it restores to him at least the privilege of an ordinary German citizen. It also removes the stigma which the law of protection of the republic previously affixed to him.

"Tonight's events are important because 29 deputies of the economic party, which previously have been neutral, have now joined hands with the opposition forces against the government."

Lindbergh and Bride Land at St. Louis Field

St. Louis, Mo., June 27 (A.P.).—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived at Lambert-St. Louis Field here tonight at 8:20 p. m. It was their first visit to the famous pilot's legal residence since their marriage. They planned to stay in a hotel tonight.

They made the trip by plane from Indianapolis.

BI-PROTECTIVE DUTY ON SUGAR AIM OF HOOVER

Seeks New Plan for Benefit of Producers and Consumers.

FIRST VIEW OF TARIFF GIVEN BY PRESIDENT

WHITE HOUSE OPINION OF METHOD WITHHELD

Finance Committee Hearing Enlivened by Frequent Objections.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover favors a sugar tariff that will protect both the producers and consumers, although he has not expressed himself as advocating any particular form of duty.

This statement, the first official pronouncement giving the President's views on the tariff since the subject was taken up by Congress six months ago, was issued at the White House late yesterday after testimony had been given before a Senate finance subcommittee that the Chief Executive was "much interested in protection for the domestic sugar industry."

It followed, also, a declaration by Senator Smoot (Republican), Utah, chairman of the finance committee, that he was considering a sliding scale sugar tariff plan as a possible substitute for the flat increased rate of 2.40 cents a pound on Cuban raw sugar, as provided in the House bill. The present rate is 1.76 cents.

"The President has had sliding scales of sugar duties submitted him by members of the committees," the White House statement said. "The object of these was to protect the consumers as well as the producers. He has not expressed himself on them, but of course would be glad to see any arrangement which would effect the dual purpose."

The finance committee chairman, who enlivened the sugar hearing with frequent heated objections to testimony during the day and injected another surprise by declaring for limitation of free importation of Philippine sugar, disclosed he was considering the sliding-scale plan after Stephen H. Love, president of the United States Beet Sugar Association, had testified that he had read a published report that Smoot would propose such a plan.

Soviet Executions Suddenly Mount

Eight Persons Sentenced to Death; Judge Is Included.

Moscow, June 27 (A.P.).—Death sentences in the Soviet union, which had considerably decreased lately, took a sudden jump today. The Moscow circuit court sentenced to death before a firing squad Soviet Judge Pashkov of the state of Tver and the bandit, Sokolov. The prosecutor had shown that the judge had closely cooperated with the bandits in supplying arms and giving judicial protection to the marauders.

The Uzbekistan supreme court sentenced to a similar death four bandits who, operating under the leadership of Fuxalil Maksuma, had hanged several women for not wearing the veil of Moslem custom which has been abolished by the Soviet.

From Minsk came the report that the death sentence was passed on Koney Pinchook for killing a village newspaper correspondent named Sanko. Propetrovsk reported a death sentence imposed on a village bourgeoise there for a similar offense.

FRANCE TO ASK U. S. FOR DELAY ON STOCK DEBT

Postponing of Payments Until December Is Aim of Resolution.

DEPUTIES AUTHORIZE PLEA TO WASHINGTON

BILL OF $400,000,000 FOR WAR SECURITIES

Maturity Date Is August 1; Poincare Pledges His Aid to Proposal.

Paris (Friday), June 28 (A.P.).—The French government will open negotiations with Washington with a view to postponing beyond August 1 maturity of the bill for $400,000,000 for war stocks sold to France when the American expeditionary forces pulled up stakes and went home.

A resolution, framed with consent of the government, authorizing this action was adopted in the first hour of the morning by the chamber of deputies, the members of this body desired to have longer time in which to decide whether to ratify the French war debt settlement to the United States.

According to the Mellon-Berenger debt settlement, France must ratify this agreement before August 1 if the war stocks bill is to be included in its terms. Otherwise this bill falls due on that date. Led by Henri Franklin-Bouillon, who said this arrangement was a knife at the throat of France, parliament rebelled against the arrangement yesterday and in a late night sitting obliged the government to ask Washington for postponement.

Socialists Do Not Vote.

Socialists deputies abstained from voting, which was adopted on show of hands with only two votes opposing. One was from the Communist Deputy Cachin, who said there was no hope of escaping payment and that to postpone it would simply be to be disillusioned once more, while the other contrary vote was cast by a radical.

When the chamber had expressed its will, Premier Raymond Poincare told the deputies he would apply himself with "all my devotion and all my patriotism" to carry out its wishes. That is to say, he will do his best to persuade Washington to postpone the maturity date of the war stocks bill and let Parliament take its time about ratifying the agreement on war debts.

Measure Group Adopts.

The motion adopted by the chamber read: "Before entering upon discussion of ratification of interallied debts and because of the limited time left before maturing of the war stocks debt, the chamber, desirous of proceeding to thorough examination of the text of the Washington and London debt accords and in view of the new experts plan (Young reparations plan), takes cognizance of declarations of the government, which has decided to open new negotiations with the United States with a view to postponing the maturity date of the war stocks obligation."

Earlier in the day Deputy Henri Franklin-Bouillon had introduced a motion by which the chamber would authorize the government to seek postponement until December 31. His resolution came suddenly after the premier had talked for a total of 21 hours to the foreign affairs and finance committees of the chamber trying to persuade them that the debt accords should be ratified very soon.

Franklin-Bouillon, who is president of the foreign affairs committee and a former minister of missions abroad, objected that France was being railroaded into ratification. He declared that he did not believe America would be deaf to an appeal of justice but if America

MACDONALD MAY ASK U. S. TO NAVY PARLEY

Five-Power Conference May Result From Talks With Dawes.

WOULD CUT ARMAMENTS

(Associated Press.)

An invitation by Prime Minister MacDonald to the United States for the latter's participation in a preliminary naval disarmament conference in London was regarded in American Government circles last night as a possible outcome of the conversations now under way among the diplomatic representatives of the five principal naval powers in the British capital.

Although no invitation has been extended to the American Government to take part in such a conference and the Hoover administration has not been sounded out formally on the subject, a five-power conference during the summer on the political aspects of the naval armament reduction question was looked upon as a probability.

Secretary Stimson has declared he shares the optimism expressed by both Prime Minister MacDonald and Ambassador Dawes that some concrete result will be accomplished through their discussions which have been going on in London since Mr. Dawes' arrival.

The Japanese Ambassador, the French Ambassador and the Italian Charge D'Affaires in London have been informed of the nature of these discussions.

Japan's participation in such a conference is believed by American officials to be assured in view of Premier Tanaka's recent declaration of his government's willingness to participate in any step looking toward further naval reduction.

While no comment has been made in officials circles here regarding the attitude of the United States in the event of an invitation to such a conference, it is expected that this Government would be willing to participate to the fullest extent.

The general consensus was that a conference of a preliminary nature in London could deal most readily with discussions of the principle of naval reduction without interfering with the technical aspects of the disarmament question. The technical phase will be dealt with at the next meeting of the League of Nation preparatory disarmament commission which probably will be called to meet in Geneva in September.

American officials emphasized last night, however, that the possible London conference would not interfere in

$50,000 Jewels Stolen From New York Broker

Brookville, N. Y., June 27 (A.P.).—Theft of $50,000 in jewelry from the home of Norman Le R. Whitehouse, wealthy New York broker, was reported today. The jewelry stolen included a $25,000 pearl necklace.

The theft, Mr. Whitehouse said, was committed sometime between 8:30 and 10:30 last night while he and Mrs. Whitehouse were attending a dinner at the home of Ogden Mills. Seven servants left in the house were questioned by Nassau County police. No arrests were made.

Pacific Coast Steamer On Rocks; Asks Help

San Francisco, June 27 (A.P.).—The lumber steamer Hartwood, 545 tons, sent out a wireless distress call tonight, together with a subsequent message announcing she was on the rocks at Point Reyes, about 75 miles north of San Francisco. The vessel was en route from this city to Wilapa Harbor, Wash. She is owned by the Hartwood Lumber Co. and carries a crew of twenty.

Hacker Admits Defeat After Back-Yard Parleys.

A battle over who shall carry the garbage pail from the kitchen steps to the back gate—the ladies of Chevy Chase or the city garbage collectors—ended yesterday in a victory for the ladies.

Morris Hacker, superintendent of the city refuse department, tossed his hands in the air, explained the situation in detail and admitted his capitulation.

"You can't fight the ladies," said Hacker. He said other things, among them that he didn't want the ladies fighting him. Besides, he has known some of the ladies involved since they were little girls, back in the days when Chevy Chase was something akin to undeveloped wilderness, or farms, or something considerably different from its present status as an important would not recognize justice, then France would be able to appeal to justice of the world.

"Versailles was an American peace, the Dawes plan was an American peace, the Young plan was an American peace," he argued, "and to all of them America alone refused to subscribe.

The premier told the chamber, "If my position did not compel me to be reserved, I should associate myself voluntarily with the warming discourse of M. Franklin-Bouillon. However, I must tell the chamber immediately that so far as the negotiations which you invite us to undertake are concerned we would not be worthy of our functions had we not already undertaken them, not only for several months past but for several years."

In the corridors outside, the premier was overheard telling deputies that it seemed of little use to try for postponement since the American Congress would soon be on holiday and could not take action. Nevertheless he would ask Ambassador Claudel at once to see what can be done.

The Mellon-Berenger agreement for payment of the French war debt to the United States was signed by the negotiaters in Washington on April 29, 1926. It followed successful negotiations between Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon and several of the European allied debtors.

(Associated Press.)

The bill for the $400,000,000 war supplies debt of the French government to the United States due August 1 probably will be presented on that date unless the French Parliament ratifies the Mellon-Berenger agreement in the meanwhile.

In expressing this opinion last night, high administration circles said that they knew of no authority under which the Treasury could postpone collection of the debt except unless with the specific authorization of Congress. It was emphasized that the recent congressional resolution permitting the Treasury to postpone the collection of the $400,000,000 becomes effective only if the French Parliament ratifies the Mellon-Berenger agreement. Since Congress will not reconvene to consider the question before August 1 and since the calling of a special session to consider the subject is held unlikely. Government officials can see no other alternative than to present the bill August 1.

News Excites Surprise.

News from Paris that Premier Poincare would instruct Ambassador Claudel to approach the American Government for an unconditional postponement until December 31 was received in official circles therefore with considerable surprise.

The French Embassy late yesterday said it had received no information from the Paris government on the question.

Protest Made on Rum Hijacking Laid to U. S.

Windsor, Ont., June 27 (A.P.).—A formal protest against the practice of hi-jacking of liquor in Canadian waters by men attired in uniforms of United States officers has been made to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the Ontario authorities, Joseph Thibodeau, Port Lambton liquor exporter, said today. "Men dressed as United States officers have seized liquor in Canadian waters along the River St. Clair on four or five occasions recently," Thibodeau said. "Two of them made a seizure of a rowboat containing 18 cases of whisky in Canadian waters last Monday night."

Walter S. Petty, acting collector of customs at Detroit, on hearing Thibodeau's charge, declared that none of his men would have done such a thing.

Mr. Crosby died March 15, 1928.

HOOVER PARES LIST ON FARM AID BOARD

Chicagoan Is Proffered Post; Eliminates Number of 400 Candidates.

SOME REFUSALS RECEIVED

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover is making very substantial progress in the selection of the eight members of the Federal Farm Board, having reduced the 400-odd nominations to a preferred list of around a score of names.

He offered a place yesterday to Alexander H. Legge, of Chicago, president of the International Harvester Co., whom he invited to Washington. Legge returned later to his home to determine whether he could so arrange his affairs as to accept the post.

Legge would take the place set aside by the Chief Executive on advice of farm organizations and heads of agricultural colleges for an outstanding business man. He has been indorsed by a number of farm leaders and others. He has seen previous Government service as a member of the War Industries Board in the Wilson administration.

Another whose appointment is regarded as certain is Carl Williams, of Oklahoma City, editor of the Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman. He might be considered as the representative of the cotton industry, as he long has been connected with the American Cotton Growers Exchange.

Others on the preferred list are Arthur P. Knapp, of Lake Charles, La., who, as a banker, has had wide experience in financing the exportation of rice, one of the basic commodities specifically mentioned during consideration of the farm relief act. He was recommended by Senators Ransdell and Broussard (Democrats), Louisiana, as well as others.

C. B. Denman, of Missouri, president of the National Live Stock Producers Association, is understood to have been offered a place as representative of the live stock industry, another of the basic farm activities.

The President also is known to desire the services of James C. Stone, of Lexington, Ky., president of the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Marketing Association. Stone was here several days ago conferring with the Chief Executive, and is reported to have the matter under consideration.

Stone was among the first prospective members suggested to Mr. Hoover, and he had a long list of indorsements. Reports here are that, while willing to give up his present connection to become chairman of the board, he is unwilling to do so for appointment as a member for only a short period of time.

Another report was that Charles C. Teague, of California, connected with the California Citrus League, had let it be known that he did not desire membership on the board.

While the name of F. B. Wells, of Minneapolis, vice president of F. H. Peavey & Co., grain dealers, has been repeatedly talked of for appointment, it was learned upon high authority that he is not now under consideration.

There were suggestions that a man from Georgia would be among the eight selected and these immediately led to conjecture as to whether Charles S. Barrett, former president of the Farmers Union, was that man. Barrett frequently has been consulted on farm matters by both the Hoover and Coolidge administrations.

New recommendations presented to the President yesterday included John Brandt, of Minneapolis, president of the Land of the Lakes Creamery Association, and S. D. Sanders, of Seattle, president of the Pacific Northwest Poultry Association. Their names were presented by R. E. Sheppard, chairman of the Spokane Federal Land Bank Board.

Woman Tries Suicide By Poison, Police Report

Standing in front of her home last night, Mrs. Mary Hurley, 28 years old of 223 N street northwest, attempted to end her life by drinking a bottle of corrosive poison, according to police of the Seventh Precinct. She was taken to Georgetown University Hospital, where physicians reported that her condition is not critical. Mrs. Hurley refused to ascribe a motive, hospital authorities said.

GANGSTER IS FREED IN MARLOW KILLING

Rocco's Alibi Is Verified by Police; In Boston at Time of Killing.

OTHER SUSPECTS SOUGHT

Boston, June 27 (A.P.).—Michael Rocco, alias "Mickey the wise guy," Boston gangster, was released by the police tonight after they had checked up on his alibi, given when he was taken into custody earlier in the day for questioning in connection with the murder of Frank Marlow, New York boxing manager.

Rocco was released three hours after he had been lodged in the city prison as a suspicious person while New York and Boston detectives verified details of his story. The man accounted for his movements from Monday night, the night Marlow was "taken for a ride," up to the time he was arrested in a barber shop here this afternoon.

Rocco at first refused to talk with two New York detectives and later would not answer the questions of the Boston detectives until his lawyer was present. After his counsel arrived he talked glibly. He said he was a friend of Marlow, but denied having been in New York at the time the alleged racketeer was shot.

After Rocco's release the police said that he was the sixth man who had been eliminated from the list of those who might provide information as to why Marlow was shot.

Rocco was well known to the police here. His record showed that he had been arrested nine times since 1916. He was arrested in December, 1927, on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of John J. Donovan in south Boston, but was acquitted after a sensational trial.

New York, June 27 (A.P.).—Arrest in Boston today of Michael Rocco, known to his gangster brethren as "Mickey the wise guy," brought to custody the first of two men accused by police of riding Frank Marlow, luckless racketeer, to his death at the hands of a gunman here Monday night.

Rocco was identified as a former associate of Marlow and a member of the "riding" party by Police Commissioner Grover Whalen, who said he had obtained the names of Marlow's fatal escort from Miss Mary Selden, 19, dancer, formerly employed by Marlow when he operated the rendezvous night club in Broadway and the last known person to say good-by to the victim. Police said they had learned Rocco was in New York Monday and had eaten in a Brooklyn restaurant, in the general neighborhood of the spot where the body was found, a short time after the killing. Rocco said he was in Boston at the time.

Who the second suspect is Whalen would not say except to assert that Broadway was being scoured and the ranks of the racketeers in Detroit, Philadelphia and Boston were being searched for clews to the man. In all these cities, before his money began to dwindle, Marlow was supposed to have become interested in beer and liquor running besides engaging himself with racetrack gambling and operation of night clubs.

Miss Selden and four men who are being held each under $50,000 bail as material witnesses to the killing were questioned again today, but beyond saying they had learned the identity of the two men who drove Marlow from a Broadway corner to a gutter in Queens where he was found, fatally wounded, police indicated they had not made much progress.

London, June 27 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Frank Marlow, the murdered New York gambler, was planning a trip to London before the underworld decided he was headed in another direction and took him on his last ride.

This bit of information, which may conceivably offer a clew to the mystery of the slaying, came from the lips of Miss Dolores Farris, young and pretty American actress, who was Marlow's sweetheart and he planned to marry her, she says, as soon as he obtained a divorce, which was pending in Cleveland, from his wife.

Miss Farris, who met Marlow at the Silver Slipper night club four years ago, is starring here in the "New Moon" at the Drury Lane Theater. She has been very much broken up since word of his death reached her and was quick today to come to his defense.

The dancer said she wanted to deny the stories which have been printed in the London papers and which emanated in New York.

She banged a clenched fist on a pile of newspapers containing reports of the murder and exclaimed:

"It's lies, lies, all lies—Frank wasn't afraid of being shot. Frank knew no one of whom he need to be afraid. Frank was on the best of terms with Broadway. He knew everybody there and had far more friends than enemies.

"I just couldn't believe it when I heard he was shot dead Monday. I got a cable from him in which he said he was planning a trip to London. I loved him. I had known him more than four years and we were going to get married after his divorce had come through.

"He never carried a gun in his life and I know he was never mixed up in bootlegging or anything of that sort. Surely if he had been I'd have known of it."

Shown a message which stated that Marlow's real name was Gandoleno Curto, Miss Farris said:

"I've never heard such a name. His name was always Frank Marlow to everyone as long as I have known him and his parents are still living in New York."

Miss Farris evinced further surprise when shown a New York report that she was a beneficiary under Marlow's insurance policy and said:

"I didn't even know he had an insurance policy any more than I knew anything about a will."

Robsion Denies Asking Funds of Postmaster

Representative J. M. Robsion, of the Eleventh Kentucky District, in a telegram to Senator Smith W. Brookhart, chairman of the Senate patronage committee, takes exception to a statement filed with the committee by R. B. Waddle, former postmaster at Somerset, Ky., in which claim was made that Robsion had requested Waddle to contribute to his campaign expenses in 1924.

Robsion declared in his telegram that "no person, appointee or other, has ever contributed one dime to me for campaign expenses, or for any other purpose, either in my 1918 or 1924 fight."

Nurse Loses Post Following Arrest

Jury Trial Is Demanded by Mrs. Johnston in Assault Case.

Trouble kept pace yesterday with pretty Mrs. Mildred H. Johnston, 30-year-old nurse, of the La Salle Apartments.

After arraignment at Police Court on an assault charge, Mrs. Johnston revealed she had been discharged from her position as nurse in the employ of Dr. William Gerry Morgan, prominent local specialist, since her arrest Wednesday night.

Mrs. Johnston and Venable Baggett, 27 years old, were jointly charged with assault upon James C. Tipton, a real estate dealer. Through their attorney, Joseph D. Kelly, the defendants pleaded not guilty and were freed in bail for a jury trial. Accompanied by Baggett, the nurse went to Tipton's office to collect a debt of $200, she said. Mrs. Johnston denied she struck Tipton, but admitted she made "a pass" at him when he used abusive language. Baggett was alleged to have prevented Tipton from calling the police after the alleged "pass" by the nurse.

RACE LINE DRAWN, PASTOR QUITS TABLE

Rev. Halley B. Taylor Is Told Negroes Are Barred by Hood College.

WAS AT SYNOD SESSION

Drawing of the color line at the dinner table caused the withdrawal of the Rev. Halley B. Taylor, 1715 First street northwest, pastor of the Fifteenth Street Presbyterian Church, from sessions of the annual conference of the Baltimore Synod and Woman's Synodical Society for Missions of the Presbyterian Church yesterday at Hood College, Frederick, Md., and his return here.

Head of Large Congregation.

Dr. Taylor, head of the largest colored Presbyterian congregation in the United States, registered at the college early yesterday, was assigned a room, which he occupied, attended a motion picture in the "Y" hut on the campus, and later answered the call for dinner.

The fact that the Presbytery of the District of Columbia has adopted a rule not to entertain where the color line will be drawn, operative over several years, and the sessions having to do with missions affecting various races of mankind led Mr. Taylor to expect no embarrassments. He was informed by Dr. Wallace Radcliffe, however, after taking his seat at the table, that it had been learned that it was the rule of Hood College to bar negroes.

Withdraws His Registration.

In response to the suggestion that he obtain accommodations elsewhere in Frederick, he withdrew his registration and returned to Washington immediately. The incident, it was learned last night, resulted in an animated discussion at the conference and was referred to the committee on bills and overtures, which got in touch with Mr. Taylor here and will recommend at today's session a place for next year's conference.

2 Men Held in Maryland Wanted by Police Here

Leonardtown, Md., June 27.—William H. Allen and John Logan, colored, who have been held in Leonardtown Jail since their arrest by Sheriff Clark Saturday, were today admitted to $1,800 bail. They were immediately rearrested and returned to jail awaiting the arrival of Washington officers with warrants charging them with transporting whisky, assault and attempt to rob.

At a trial Monday before State's Attorney P. H. Dorsey, jr., Logan was sentenced to the House of Correction for one year on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, and he, with Allen, was also held for action of the grand jury on charges of attempted robbery. Logan took an appeal on his sentence and furnished bond today on the charge. However, they are held here for the Washington authorities.

Logan was brought back to Washington yesterday and is being held at Tenth Precinct for investigation.

Southern Cross Starts Hop Over Indian Ocean

Sydney, N. S. W., June 27 (A.P.).—Capt. Charles Kingsford Smith and his three companions took off in the Southern Cross from Derby, Western Australia, today for Singapore, Straits Settlement, en route to England. The distance is about 1,650 miles, over the Indian Ocean, Java and the Java Sea.

The Southern Cross left here Tuesday, completing the first lap of its English flight to Derby Wednesday. It was hoped to better Bert Hinkler's record of 15 days.

With Capt. Kingsford Smith were C. T. Ulm, pilot; T. H. McWilliams, radio operator, and H. A. Litchfield, navigator.

Guilt in World War Denied by Germans

Hindenburg Signs Manifesto on Tenth Anniversary of Treaty Signing.

Berlin, June 27 (U.P.).—A government manifesto, denying absolutely that Germany bears "sole guilt" for the World War and signed by President Paul von Hindenburg and members of the cabinet, was issued tonight in connection with the tenth anniversary of the signing of the Versailles Peace Treaty.

The manifesto condemned terms of the Versailles treaty and was made public in connection with the great demonstrations against the "war guilt lie" planned in various German cities for the anniversary observance tomorrow.

Although the high commission of occupation has forbidden any demonstrations in the occupied territory, it was indicated tonight that the speakers at various meetings—and many prominent men are scheduled to speak—will be unhesitating in their denunciation of the treaty.

SUNDAY STOCK DEALS OF CANNON REVEALED

ALL ACTION SPECULATIVE

New York, June 27 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Four of the stock transactions Bishop James Cannon, jr., leader of the Virginia Methodist Episcopal Church, had with the bankrupt and indicted firm of Kable & Co. were consummated on three separate Sundays, according to the company's records, it was brought out today at a creditors' meeting before Robert P. Stephenson, bankruptcy referee, by Harry L. Goldhurst, actual head of the firm and a friend of Bishop Cannon, on the witness stand.

C. Edward Benoit, attorney for the Federal bankruptcy trustee appointed to take charge of the firm's meager assets, had handed Goldhurst photostatic copies of Kable & Co. ledger sheets showing the various transactions in Bishop Cannon's account.

"I understand that one of the transactions set down as of October 16, 1927, fell on a Sunday. Is that correct?" Benoit asked.

Witness Remains Silent.

Goldhurst studied the records with a puzzled expression on his face. He hesitated without replying, his eyes fastened on the photostat.

"If Bishop Cannon did business on a Sunday that must be a mistake—he certainly wouldn't do business on Sunday," Benoit suggested to the silent witness.

A round smile enveloped Goldhurst's face for the first time during the proceedings.

"Of course, he wouldn't," replied the witness.

No further questions were directed along this line, which had specific reference to an entry recording Bishop Cannon as having sold 300 shares of Lehigh Valley Railroad stock for $31,878.

Two Others Shown.

But later it was developed by the attorney that the photostatic ledger sheets contained two other Sunday transactions. These included a purchase by Bishop Cannon of 100 shares of Lehigh Valley on "November 2, as of August 14, 1927."

On Sunday, April 15, 1928, the records hold the bishop to have purchased 200 shares of American Can stock and 1,000 shares of Marconi of England.

Kable & Co. were not members of the stock exchange, but did a partial payment stock business, in addition to accepting deals known in the street as "put and call," considered a purely speculative proposition. No shares can be bought or sold legitimately on Sunday.

All Deals Speculative.

Attorney Benoit also drew from Goldhurst the statement that throughout the extensive trading recorded on Bishop Cannon's account the churchman never owned a single share outright, but all the bishop's deals were speculative.

An expert accountant called to the stand testified the Kable & Co. had $226,804 in liabilities and $24,010 in assets when it failed.

An effort to elicit definite information from Goldhurst as to how he first became acquainted with Bishop Cannon embarassed the witness at first.

"I don't think I ought to answer that," he pleaded.

But when Benoit insisted, Goldhurst reiterated what he had testified in a previous hearing that he "had met the bishop socially in New York about seven or eight years ago."

The hearings will be resumed July 9.

Reichstag, by Vote, Shows Trust in Stresemann

Berlin, June 27 (A.P.).—The Reichstag today rejected by an uncounted show of hands a motion of no confidence in Foreign Minister Stresemann, which was apparently an obstructionist move by Nationalists, Fascists and Communists.

The motion came in conection with a vote on the foreign office budget, which was ultimately passed in entirety in third reading by a vote of 243 to 152.

Pope to Name Schuster Among New Cardinals

Vatican City, June 27 (A.P.).—The Pope will hold a secret consistory for the creation of new cardinals on July 15 and a public consistory on July 18, it was learned today.

The only elevation known definitely in advance is that of Msgr. Schuster, of German-Swiss parentage, to be Cardinal Archbishop of Milan, succeeding the late Cardinal Tosi. Pope Pius himself was formerly Cardinal of Milan. Msgr. Schuster is at present archpriest of St. Paul's outside the walls of Rome.

The newspaper Tribuna says that the pontiff has already elevated Msgr. Schuster to the cardinalate by a brief of the papal secretary of state's office.

Soldier Killed, 3 Hurt in Cannon-Shell Blast

Salt Lake City, June 27 (A.P.).—Private Daniel J. Midgeley, of the 145th Field Artillery, Utah National Guard, was killed and three other enlisted men were injured by the premature explosion of a shell which blew the breech from a French 75 in artillery practice at a summer encampment at Jordan Narrows today.

3 Famed Foreign Beauties Pay Respects to President

Dolores Del Rio, Viscountess de Sibour and "Miss Brazil" Presented by Diplomatic Representatives; Film Star Kept Waiting Two Hours.

An unannounced beauty pageant was staged at the White House yesterday, when three women, internationally famed for their pulchritude, paid their respects to President Hoover.

They were: Dolores Del Rio, widely known motion picture star; Viscountess de Sibour, who is making an airplane-boat world tour, and Senorita Olga Bergamini de Sa, who was "Miss Brazil" in the recent Galveston beauty pageant. Each was presented to the Chief Executive by a diplomatic representative of her country.

Senorita de Sa, who was presented by Ambassador do Amaral, of Brazil, delivered to President Hoover the good wishes of the women of her country. She told the President, in English: "This is the happiest moment of my life," and carried on the rest of her part of the conversation in her native tongue, the ambassador acting as interpreter. President Hoover wrote an inscription in her memory book, after which, accompanied by Ambassador do Amaral and Chief Usher Hoover, of the White House staff, she made a tour of the Executive Mansion.

Miss Del Rio was accompanied by a representative of the Mexican Embassy, while the Viscountess de Sibour was presented by an attache of the French Embassy.

Miss Del Rio arrived at the White House alone, and after waiting for two hours for an audience with the President learned that diplomatic etiquette required that she be introduced by a diplomat of her country. She immediately communicated with the Mexican Embassy, and her presentation was properly sponsored.

Cunningham Arrest Order Is Dispatched

Supreme Court Mandate on Sheriff Is Sent to Philadelphia.

(Associated Press.)

The mandate of the Supreme Court ordering the arrest of Sheriff Thomas W. Cunningham of Philadelphia by the sergeant at arms of the Senate in connection with the Senate investigation of the election of William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, was mailed yesterday to the clerk of the Federal District Court at Philadelphia.

Sergeant at Arms David S. Barry is preparing to place the sheriff under arrest early next week. Under a Senate resolution, introduced by Senator King (Democrat), Utah, the sergeant at arms will be authorized to release Cunningham under bond of $1,000 for his appearance before the Senate when wanted.

During the investigation of the election of Vare as United States senator, Cunningham twice appeared as a witness before the Senate committee and testified he had contributed $50,000 to the State Republican organization for campaign purposes. He refused to answer when questioned as to the source of his income. He was being paid a salary of $8,000 a year as clerk of the quarter sessions court.

Utility Publicity Inquiry Concluded

Sessions to Resume About September 10 for Rebuttal Testimony.

(Associated Press).

The extended investigation of the Federal Trade Commission into publicity activities of public power utilities, during which approximately 175 witnesses and 4,500 exhibits were examined, was completed yesterday.

The conclusion of this phase of the inquiry was announced by Commission Chairman Edgar A. McCulloch. The investigation has included the publicity activities of power interests in nearly every State of the nation, and financial holdings of power companies in more than a dozen newspapers.

The commission will resume its sessions in the fall, probably about September 10, with the power interests presenting rebuttal testimony.

Another phase of the commission's investigation—the fiancial structure of power utilities—is now awaiting a Federal court decision in connection with the refusal of officials of the Electric Bond & Share Co. to submit reports for the commission's record.

THREE IN PLANE DIE, 2 HURT IN BAY CRASH

Amphibian Falls Into Barnegat After Making 30 Trips With Passengers.

TWO BODIES RECOVERED

Beach Haven, N. J., June 27 (A.P.).—Three persons were killed and two others injured here late today in the fall of an amphibian plane, owned by the Curtiss Flying Service of North Beach, Long Island, into Barnegat Bay.

The persons killed were Frank Conklin, member of the Beach Haven police force; Harold Potts, 30, Beach Haven plumber, and Leslie Broome, 28, a yacht captain and member of the Beach Haven Yacht Club. The bodies of Potts and Conklin were recovered.

The injured are Alison Price, 19, of Beach Haven, and Paul Mashelle, pilot of the plane, of New York City.

The plane had come to Beach Haven this morning from North Beach at the request of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce to study the feasibility of the Curtiss Company's New York-Atlantic City line making Beach Haven a scheduled stop.

The plane had made thirty trips over the bay and town, carrying from two to four passengers on each trip. When it fell it was returning to the landing-point and was only about 20 feet above the water. When it came to the surface, the pilot and Price, who were in the forward seat of the open cockpit, were able to free themselves. The three occupants of the back seat, however, were killed instantly.

BRITAIN MAY INVITE U. S. TO CONFERENCE

any way with the work of the preparatory commission.

The new American naval disarmament "team" of Ambassadors Dawes and Gibson, have been suggested as the probable delegates of this Government to a conference if called by Mr. MacDonald. It is possible, however, Ambassador Dawes might be the sole representative of the United States, as Ambassador Gibson probably may devote particular attention during the forthcoming months to the questions confronting the preparatory commission.

Ambassador Dawes Silent On Disarmament Plans

London, June 27 (A.P.).—Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, inaugurating weekly press conferences at the American embassy, talked to American newspapermen today about developments this week in negotiations for naval disarmament, but declined to disclose anything of the intentions of the American or British governments as to the next movment toward solution of this paramount international question.

Ambassador Dawes said his discussions with Ambassador Hugh Gibson had been of the greatest value to him in reaching an understanding of the naval problem. He and Mr. Gibson discussed the matter "from the Washington standpoint and in the light of Mr. Gibson's experiences at Geneva."

Swedish Plane Delayed By Damaged Crankshaft

Reykjavik, Iceland, June 27 (A.P.).—The trouble with the Swedish plane Sverige, which forced it back here this afternoon a few hours after starting for Ivigtut, Greenland, was found tonight to be a bent crankshaft. It was supposed that it had been strained when the plane was towed to the Westman Islands after the airplane had been forced down on its flight from Bergen, Norway.

The Iceland Air Co. will provide a new shaft which will be installed tomorrow and Capt. Albin Ahrenberg hopes to get away shortly thereafter.

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

THE oxygen treatments being administered to the Bishop Cannon dry Democratic movement in Virginia by C. Bascom Slemp, virtual head of the Republican organization in the Old Dominion, are causing no end of curiosity among political wheelhorses. They are wondering does any one get anything out of it—and if so who, and what?

Meanwhile two gentlemen, one in New York and the other in New Jersey, who went down deep in their pockets, at Mr. Slemp's suggestion, last fall, to finance this same Bishop Cannon movement when it was patent that the purpose was to aid Herbert Hoover, have been reading reports from Roanoke and Richmond with great interest. For it was ex-Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey, and E. C. Jameson, of New York, who put up a considerable portion of the money which enabled the Cannon organization to function successfully in the presidential campaign.

These gentlemen were interested in the movement by Mr. Slemp. So far no one of the three has cashed any dividends as a result of this investment, except that Mr. Jameson was entertained at luncheon at Belle Isle while Mr. Hoover was in Florida.

AS a matter of fact Mr. Jameson did not even get the normal publicity which such entertainment during a dry news period should have entitled him. For it so happened that he was merely one of a number of guests on the same day, and there was considerably more interest on the part of attendant scribes in the presence of Louis K. Liggett and Charles Francis Adams. Which was correct judgment, for nothing whatever has happened about Mr. Jameson, though many of his friends thought he would land in the Cabinet, and if anything is scheduled for Senator Frelinghuysen, who rather fancied a diplomatic appointment, it is still in the offing.

Mr. Liggett explained his presence and that of Mr. Adams by saying he had brought the former America Cup skipper to Miami from Palm Beach to look at the late Col. James Elverson's yacht, "Golden Days." As the yacht was at Miami, and her palatial fittings and 186 feet of length seemed almost Morgan-like as a symbol of wealth, and as Mr. Liggett mildly mentioned that he had decided to buy it, the excuse for the visit seemed sufficient. No newspaper the next day contemplated the possibility of Mr. Adams entering the Cabinet.

* * * *

BUT the fact remains that no one connected with the Cannon movement, generally conceded much of the credit for putting the five States of Virginia, North Carolina, Florida, Texas and Tennessee in the Hoover column, has gotten anything more out of it than a meal at the Hoover board. Which makes the "regular fellows," who play politics with their cards very close to the chest, and with an eager eye on the main chance, wonder just what their old playmate Bascom Slemp is after. The wonder is the greater because Mr. Slemp has long been recognized as ranking very high in native shrewdness, so far as the ancient art of getting what he was after in politics was concerned.

Mr. Slemp surprised everybody when he accepted the place as secretary to Mr. Coolidge. Then they began figuring that he would follow Cortelyou and other distinguished predecessors by graduating to the Cabinet. His reward came along different lines, but was unique. He is the only man who wrote a book about Coolidge which the former President ever commended! Again and again President Coolidge advised the newspaper men covering the White House to buy it and read it!

As the book was almost exclusively composed of quotations from Coolidge's speeches, the presidential encomium of Mr. Slemp was not quite overwhelming enough to offset Mr. Slemp's disappointed ambition

* * * *

TURNING to the Hoover movement as soon as it was evident that the "Draft Coolidge" procession was not getting anywhere, Mr. Slemp became one of the corps commanders at Kansas City, ranking just a little below Jim Good and Dr. Work, and just a little above George Moses.

He was one of the first to turn on Col. Horace A. Mann, getting Virginia out from under his jurisdiction, and then began the task of supplying the Cannon organization with funds.

This having netted nothing so far, apparently, the regulars want to know what Slemp is after now. If he should succeed in the campaign this fall in electing a Cannon Democrat as Governor of Virginia, the regulars demand, what good will it do Slemp? There is much talk of this coalition paving the way to the election of a Republican senator next year against Carter Glass or whomever the Democrats nominate in his place, but this seems to the regulars a terribly long shot for Slemp to be worrying about.

If President Hoover were interested in the move that would be something else again. There are plenty of ways in which he could reward distinguished leaders in a lost cause.

All of which makes some of the regulars ask—Is the President interested in this fight to smash the present Democratic organization in Virginia?

SEARCH ABANDONED FOR SPANISH FLIERS

NEW WRECKAGE REPORT

Madrid, June 27 (A.P.).—The Spanish Government considers that it has done everything in its power to trace the missing airplane of Maj. Ramon Franco and his three companions who disappeared last Friday after taking off on a round-trip flight from Spain to New York, and has given them up for lost.

Minister of Marine Garcia de Los Reyes announced to the press this afternoon that further search virtually had been abandoned as useless. There was no news from the destroyers combing the seas between the coast of Portugal and the Azores, first stop of the Spanish aviators.

The minister said Premier Primo de Rivera had received a telegram last night from Spanish Ambassador Merry Del Val in London to the effect that the British admiralty reported one of its hydroplanes had seen wreckage. Senor de Los Reyes thought that the ambassador's information would prove mistaken.

"The British airplane carrier Eagle," he said, "sent bad news, saying she had sailed over the whole zone south of the Azores without sighting anything, and was obliged to return to Gibraltar at reduced speed. She will search the water as far as Cape St. Vincent on her way."

from students who are about to write essays or from those who are to take part in debates.

Reverting to the prohibition posters, it had been expected that a contract for them would be awarded in a week or so. The lithograph companies had submitted a score or more of rough sketches, and the best one was to be printed and copies of it placed in the Federal buildings of the country.

But, as has been said, none of them seemed to "ring the bell." One of them showed a huge bottle bearing the words "Bootleg Liquor." In the wide shadow cast by this bottle were pictures of men shooting each other and in other unconventional poses.

The caption on this poster was "Remove This Shadow From Our Fair Land."

LUTHERANS PUT BAN ON LODGE MEMBERS

Synod Holds Right to Give Communion Is Optional With Pastors.

TWO MINISTERS OUSTED

River Forest, Ill., June 27 (A.P.).—After debating three days the thirty-fourth triennial convention of the Evangelical Lutheran Missouri Synod today reaffirmed, with only one negative vote, its traditional application of the synod restriction barring lodge members as communicant church members.

By this policy individual pastors may give holy communion to lodge members if they are conscientiously convinced they are dealing with a parishioner open to conviction. But the synod instructed the pastors to consult with their vestry, congregations and synod officers.

The Rev. William Single, of Bay Village, Ohio, cast the only negative vote. Yesterday Mr. Single, together with Carl M. Zorn, of Cleveland, offered an amendment absolutely refusing holy communion to lodge members. It was withdrawn today.

The appeal of the Immanuel Church, of Omaha, Nebr., suspended by the Nebraska district because the pastor, the Rev. F. W. Seesko, continued to violate the restriction against lodge members, was threshed out in committee today after having been recommitted this morning. The committee at that time recommended that the Nebraska district be upheld.

Another church, St. Paul's Lutheran Church, of Baltimore, Md., will be investigated for like violation of the restriction against lodge members, the synod voted today.

Two pastors, the Rev. P. G. Schwankoevski and the Rev. George J. Ristow, of Detroit, were expelled today when the synod upheld the Michigan district in taking this action.

A total of $19,390 was voted by the synod to aid foreign Lutheran institutions.

WHO'ZIT?

"Whozit?" is a test of your knowledge of history and current events. The statements below describe a character whom you should be able to identify. Match your knowledge and memory against those of your friends and then look in tomorrow's paper to see who wins.)

1. He was an European.
2. He lived since the discovery of America.
3. He was a member of a royal family.

SECOND WOMAN OFF ON ENDURANCE TRIP

FOUR PLANES NOW IN RACE

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., June 27 (A.P.).—Miss Viola Gentry took off at 8:49:26 o'clock tonight, Eastern daylight time, in her second attempt to set a refueling endurance record. She was flying The Answer, a light cabin biplane.

In the plane with Miss Gentry was Jack Ascraft, who placed sixth in the Spokane (Wash.)-to-New York air race last September. The plane carried 116 gallons of gasoline and plans called for the first refueling some time tomorrow morning.

The Answer will refuel from a biplane piloted by Carl Dixon. Clyde Kincaid will accompany him to feed the fuel to The Answer.

As The Answer took off, another plane, The Three Musketeers, also on an endurance flight, circles overhead with its occupants watching the start with interest.

Flight Rough Game, Says Note.

Just between girls, this endurance flying is a pretty rough game. So, in effect, Mrs. Martin Jensen informed Miss Gentry today in a note dropped from the endurance plane Three Musketeers some 20 hours after it went aloft.

Mrs. Jensen is the Musketeeress of the trio making the latest assault to be launched against the refueling endurance record. The Musketeers of the group are Jensen and William Ulbrich.

Miss Gentry, one-time holder of the woman's solo endurance record and recent participant in a refueling endurance flight, was waiting at the field today for arrival of an expected refueling ship to start another attempt.

Pretty Lonesome, She Says.

"Say, young lady," read the note from Mrs. Jensen to Miss Gentry, "it's pretty lonesome up here at night. Hurry and get off so you can keep us company. I have torn one nail loose, cut my hands in several places, and have got a toothache. That's all. Love, Peggy."

Jensen also dropped a note in late afternoon which was full of optimism. "The old crate is working fine," he wrote, and added that a good ship, good engine and good crew were a combination "that can't lose."

The endurance record is 172½ hours, and before the Jensen plane reaches that mark its three pilots faced the possibility that it would have been beaten by Thorwald Johnson and Owen Haughland, who went up at Minneapolis Sunday and were still circling around late today.

Western Fliers Up 100 Hours.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 27 (U.P.).—Beyond the 100-hour mark in their attempt to set a new endurance flight record, two pilots steered the bright red monoplane Miss Minneapolis to the southern part of the State today to escape a rainstorm that tested their skill at the controls.

The pilots, Owen Haughland and Thorwald ("Thunder") Johnson, were in the air 100 hours at 9:03 a. m. The storm was the second they have encountered in 24 hours. They rode out of a similar disturbance last night safely.

The fliers dropped notes from the single-motored cabin plane today saying their ship "was good for another 200 hours" and that they hoped to remain aloft until the Fourth of July.

Haughland and Johnson have been in the air four days and four nights, but must remain above the ground until about 10:30 a. m. next Sunday to exceed the record of 172 hours, 32 minutes and 1 second established May 26 at Fort Worth, Tex., by James Kelly and R. L. Robbins.

Cleveland Attempt Starts

Cleveland, Ohio, June 27 (A.P.).—Two Cleveland pilots took off in a big cabin monoplane tonight at Cleveland Airport, in an attempt to set a new world's record for an endurance refueling airplane flight.

Pilots Al Mitchell and Byron K. Newcomb lifted their craft, The City of Cleveland, off the field at 7:16 p. m. with the intention of keeping it aloft at least 200 hours. The present record, made by Reginald Robbins and James Kelly at Fort Worth, Tex., is 172 hours, 31 minutes and 30 seconds.

The second plane, which will supply fuel in midair to the City of Cleveland, will be piloted by Ernest E. Bashom. The endurance flight is under supervision of the National Aeronautical Association.

Japan Ruler Indorses Kellogg Pact Signing

Tokyo, June 27 (A.P.).—The emperor today approved ratification of Japan's signature to the Kellogg renuncitaion of war pact. The privy council approved ratification at a meeting yesterday.

CHEVY CHASE LADIES WIN GARBAGE CLASH

suburban section of the National Capital.

Apparently some of the ladies knew courteous Hacker, too, for their ire was not directed so much at the superintendent as at W. E. Wood, superintendent of the garbage collection department. It was Wood, they said, who had told them flatly that they either would place their garbage pails near the alley or suffer the alternative of not having their garbage collected. Then there was an explosion of indignation.

The ladies did not relish the task of carrying their garbage to the back gate. Some of the husbands are judges, some hold other high posts, and are dignified and important men and the ladies could not envision with equanimity their toting garbage. They looked at their maids and then they looked at the husky, dark-hued garbage collectors in the pay of the city and decided that the job didn't belong to their maids either.

According to the ladies, there was a bombardment of telephone calls to Hacker. Hacker said they were three or four calls. But, however many, Hacker and Wood and some of their assistants jumped in their automobiles and sped to the battlefront.

There they saw the uncollected garbage by the laidies' kitchen doors. There they heard the adamantine declarations of the ladies. There Hacker capitulated. It was only a few steps, Hacker reasoned, and the collectors could just as easily walk up the backyards and get the garbage. And so it has been ordered.

New York, June 27 (Special).—Thomas B. Love, president of the Virginia Hotel Co., Washington, returned from Europe today on the U. S. Lancastria, arriving from Southampton. Mr. Love was welcomed by a number of friends, including Kermit Roosevelt, son of the late President Roosevelt. He lieves at 1925 S street northwest, Washington.

Hoover Wires Thanks To Virginia Republicans

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday wired Robert H. Angell, Virginia Republican chairman, as follows:

"I thank you for your message and deeply appreciate the expression of encouragement and support adopted by the Virginia Republican convention.

"They furnish added proof of the purpose of the people of your great State to rise and remain above the level of a single party control in local government.

"The example initiated by the people of Virginia themselves under their own chosen leadership will prove an inspiration to other States throughout the South to do likewise and thus establish and maintain that wholesome rivalry between parties out of which come clean and efficient administration of public affairs, in which the people of all parties alike are primarily interested."

G.O.P. FUND TARGET AT PATRONAGE QUIZ

Brookhart Calls $100,000 Prod to Office Seekers to eGt Campaign Cash.

INTIMATION DRAWS DENIAL

San Antonio, Tex., June 27 (A.P.).—While Federal officeholders might not be asked to contribute to a $100,000 fund being raised by the Republican organization in Texas, that campaign is a good reminder to them to donate, Senator Smith W. Brookhart, Iowa, chairman of the Senate patronage committee, said today while interrogating a witness in the Texas patronage investigation.

Eugene Nolte, Seguin, Republican State executive chairman, had denied that office holders were asked to contribute and said $100,000 was being raised only for maintenance of the State Republican organization.

"The principal business of that organization is to control the delegations to national conventions?" Senator Brookhart asked.

"It is not," Nolte replied.

"And then to control patronage?"

"No, sir."

"I have been unable to discover any other State in which either party is now campaigning for funds, and if you know of any I would appreciate it if you would tell me of them," Senator Brookhart said.

"Your campaign is a good suggestion to office holders whose terms are about to end that they should contribute, isn't it?"

"We don't intend such a suggestion," Nolte replied.

Politics in Hidalgo County once more came under discussion when two witnesses charged that the Republican party, by refusing to put a ticket in the field, left the Democratic "machine" in control.

Col. P. J. Hennessey testified that 30 days after he had recommended an investigation into the lack of cooperation between immigration and customs officers along the Mexican border in guarding against the smuggling of liquor, narcotics and aliens, he was relieved of his post as coordinator of the Eighth Corps Area.

"I heard it said that Roy Campbell (customs collector at Laredo, Tex.) boasted he had put the skids under me," Col. Hennessey said.

DRY SENATOR ADMITS BUYING GRAPE JUICE made wine from elderberry flowers and grapes.

"God Almighty put these flowers and vines on the earth," he declared, "and he intended them to be used."

Senator Gould, who in the past has been interested in the development of hydroelectric power in Aroostook County, where he lives, was elected in 1926 to fill the unexpired term of the late Bert M. Fernald. He has not declared himself a candidate for reelection in 1931, when the term expires.

St. Louis, June 27 (A.P.).—A two-year-old letter, written by United States Senator Arthur R. Gould, of Maine, known as a dry, to a St. Louis grape juice company, in which he told of getting "some very good results" with the concern's unfermented product, and said he favored modification of the prohibition law, was made public here today.

The letter was taken into Federal Court by Ray Weinbrenner, attorney for the Colony Vintages Co., successor to the Fresno Vineyards Co. of St. Louis, for presentation along with letters from several other customers to support its claim that its products were satisfactory. The case on trial is r $100,000 breach of contract action brought by West Coast Vineyards Co. against the Colony company and the Italian Swiss Colony Co. of California, charging that the grape juice, which the West Coast concern had contracted to distribute, spoiled in the hands of customers.

The letter was not introduced in evidence today, but the attorney said he hoped to read it into the records.

The letter was written on stationery of the committee of commerce of the United States Senate and was dated May 11, 1927. It spoke of "our little unsettled matter," and continued:

"I have none of the data here with me, but as I remember it you sent me some goods that refused to work. You gave me further instructions, and after a good deal of bother I got some very fair results, but in another way I had some bad luck. When I came here (to Washington) in December I left the goods in what I thought was a safe place. When I returned home Christmas time I found less than half of each package, the balance having been stolen. However, that was a pretty good recommendation for the goods, for if it had not had some virture it would never have been pilfered away. I took care of about 3 gallons in each keg, which I still have on hand, and it is improving every month."

The senator then acknowledged receipt of a case of cordials the company had sent him and asked for a bill, that he might pay what he owed the concern.

Not Loyal to Prohibitionists.

"As you know," the letter continued, "I come from a prohibition State and I am supposed to be a prohibitionist, but I am about as loyal to the prohibition element as some of these Southern Democrats are to the Democratic party. I note they are obliged to be Democrats to hold their jobs in Washington, but some of them often vote with the Republicans. While I am from a prohibition State and find it is not policy to be too outspoken as to my sentiments, I don't mind telling you and the world that I believe a license for light wines and beer would be a great improvement over the present prohibition law that seems impossible to enforce."

The letter stated that a great many other senators and congressmen "feel just about as I do but lack the moral courage to stand up and vote as they believe." It concluded "I may be able to be of service to you people before my term expires here."

While the Western States Co. bases its claim for damages in the suit solely on the grounds of spoilage, the Colony Co. offers in its defense a clause in the contract under which the Western States Co. agreed to "inform its customers properly on the most practical methods of handling the products sold and endeavor at all times to service the products shipped to its customers in a manner that will give maximum satisfaction within all Federal and State laws."

G. O. P. LOSS FEARED IN VIRGINIA COALITION

Westmoreland Club Just Laughs and Laughs at 'Antics' of Republicans.

VOTE FACED WITH APATHY

By CARLISLE BARGERON
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

Richmond, Va., June 27.—The Westmoreland Club held its blue-blooded sides tightly and laughed until it thought they would break today over the Republican convention here Wednesday night.

"Cy" Beall, Harvard graduate and one of the three Republicans in the club, was decidedly alone. He walked in early to the group sitting in the lounging room.

"Well, that was a right good meeting we had last night," he ventured, whereupon a roar of laughter swept the room.

"Oh, so that's what it was?" razzed St. George Bryan, whose blood runs back countless years and through an unbroken Democratic vein. "So it was a meeting. I've never seen anything so funny in all my life. It was the best exhibition of trained seals we've ever had in these parts. That secretary you had must have been a confidential secretary because nobody ould hear a word he said. And who was that man that insisted on shaking hands with everybody? Upon my word of honor, the Democratic conventions are funny, but the Republicans are funnier."

"Aw, I thought it was pretty good," Beall insisted.

"All right, you fellows go on off with Bishop Cannon now," interjected another voice. "You'll soon be having the Methodists and Baptists fighting and then we honest people will get our dues. You mark my word, the bishop will be able to carry about 5,000 of his followers with him and the Republicans will lose about that many because of disgust with the deal."

It might be said that generally this is Virginia Democracy's reaction to the Republican-Cannonite coalition. It may be wrong. It underestimated the force of the bishop last November.

For one thing, the coalition is looked upon as virtually insuring the nomination in August of John Garland Pollard as the regular Democratic gubernatorial candidate.

The coalition draws from G. Walter Mapp, of whom no one could be more bone-dry. So is Pollard for that matter. Mapp is the man Bishop Cannon referred to when he said there was no doubt as to which of the regular Democratic candidates he would support were it not for the new movement.

Mapp spoke here tonight. He feels put out that Cannon "ran out on him." When he first heard of the Cannonite movement, he discounted it. Cannon could not possibly go back on him, he avowed. Nevertheless, the bishop did.

It is too bad, because it is Mapp's support that the bishop is taking. And, strangely enough, it is likely to defeat the avowed purpose of the movement. This is to overthrow the present machine. The machine is Gov. Byrd and Senator Swanson. Mapp is generally known not to be Byrd's candidate. Mapp, himself, is "fighting the machine." Byrd has not said anything publicly yet in behalf of Pollard, but is known to be doing everything he can to help him. Mapp was defeated four years ago by Byrd. He has, in fact, had an uphill career, and it would seem that he is getting all the bad breaks this time.

Regardless, however, of how lightly the coalition movement is being taken there is a noticeable change in the attitude of the leading newspapers toward the Cannonites. They are not attacking them, as was their wont during the November campaign. They do seem to have a way of patronizing them, but in such a position that they can hardly take offense. They are being treated as erring brothers, utterly foolish, of course, but perhaps sincerely so and people who, if let alone, will sooner or later realize their mistake and come back home.

As to whether the newspapers are afraid of them, their flighty temperament, their readiness to see red, is not known. It is more likely, though, that they believe they can be more effective by dealing with the Cannonites sympathetically rather than by stirring them up to that high pitch of the November caimpaign. The political leaders learned a lot about men and women at that time.

So far the Democratic primary campaign has not attracted more than passing interest. Pollard, Mapp and Rosewell C. Page, an outsider with little or no chance, have been making speeches, but there is an unusual apathy for this stage of the campaign.

It is probably relaxation from last year's intense bitterness.

Georgia's Lower House Deplores DePriest Aid

CRY FOR NEW SCREEN TALENT URGE BEHIND POST-FOX TEST

stars who flickered their way to glory in the days of the movies ten years ago. And five years from now, how many of the men and women mentioned above will still be "packing them in" at the cathedrals of moviedom all over the United States.

Not many. Why? Because another set of younger actors and actresses will be shoving their way into the front line. New names and new faces will be found where motion pictures are shown. Already a great change has been noticeable in the make-up of casts in the short time that talking pictures have been the vogue.

Would you like to be one of the newcomers who will replace those now getting the big headlines, the big salaries, and the glory that goes with a place in the "picture" sun?

If you would, the first step is to secure recognition from the executives of some film company. Once recognition is gained, half the battle has been won. The Washington Post and the Fox Washington Theater are now offering to those living in and near the City of Washington, the opportunity to obtain that recognition.

There are being shown at the Fox Theatre now, 24 motion picture screen tests of Capital residents who have already qualified in the Fox-Post Screen Test Contest. Many others have qualified and their tests will be shown in the days to come. But there is still opportunity for you and yours to enter and have a film test made. If you obtain eight subscriptions to The Sunday Washington Post for a year by 6 o'clock Saturday night, your screen test is assured. If you can not do it that quickly, you have next week in which to secure ten subscriptions which will entitle you to the test.

After the contest is closed and all the screen tests have been made, ten will be selected as the best. These will be sent on to the Fox Film Corporation head offices where directors will look them over with a view toward securing talent for pictures which that company has planned. In addition, each of the ten will receive a six months pass to the Fox Theater. And every entrant will receive the strip of film on which his or her test is recorded as a souvenir.

There are no age or residence requirements in the contest. All you have to do is to get the subscriptions. The film test may do the rest for you in bringing you to the attention of those who make and break the "players" of the pictures.

Details may be obtained on the fourth floor of The Post Building from John E. Campbell, director-producer of the contest or by calling National 4206, circulation department.

REAL ESTATE BOARD AIM TOLD BY PETTY

Capital Secretary Describes Service Plan at Boston Convention.

URGES FREE INFORMATION

Special to The Washington Post.

Boston, Mass., June 27.—An "ask me another" service for everybody on real estate problems is what a real estate board is, among other things, according to John A. Petty, executive secretary of the Washington (D. C.) board, who talked today to executives at the annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

"To the average layman, methods and procedure as well as customs and practices in connection with the purchase, sale, leasing and mortgaging of real estate are complicated and fraught with uncertainty and doubt," Petty said. "To one about to enter into a real estate transaction in which the technicalities and formalities seem so hazy and complex nothing is more acceptable than disinterested, impartial and authoritative advice and information from a reliable source.

"Frequently attempts are made to obtain this assistance from sources which lack the proper qualifications, and one accepting such assistance sometimes suffers.

Can Furnish Valuable Service.

"A real estate board can render a personal service to the public by holding out to every one the opportunity of obtaining from it advice and information pertaining to any real estate problem. When a service of this character is made available the public becomes familiar with the fact that a tremendous amount of valuable assistance can be rendered, particularly in guarding investors.

"A real estate board can protect neighborhoods and communities from undesirable and unnecessary changes in occupancies.

"Nothing perhaps is more disturbing to the happiness of a home community, and nothing interferes more with the stability of values, than the invasion of undesirable occupancies. There are different forms of unwarranted changes which menace the stability of a neighborhood, and varying methods must be pursued to protect the investors in homes. It is a paramount duty of a real estate board to be of assistance to property owners in such matters through the cooperation of special committees.

"Trends of population, tendencies to center at specific points, extension of business and commercial territories, changes in transportation facilities and traffic diversions are all fundamental factors in the appraisal, sale and use of real estate. Real estate boards' activity in the study of these matters is a constructive aid to real estate as a whole.

Would Prevent Many Mistakes.

"Periodic surveys, which real estate boards are now making, tabulation and analysis of factors in market conditions, assembling and classifying statistics pertaining to real estate conveyances, mortgages, building operations, foreclosures and vacancies, studies of advertising in respect to costs and effectiveness—these are activities of a real estate board. The aggregate results will be reflected in real estate practice generally. Many errors which have occurred in building and subdivision activities could have been averted if correct information had been available.

"Representing as it does through its individual members large numbers of property owners as well as capital invested in real estate in sums tremendously impressive, the real estate board above all organizations is charged with the obligation and responsibility of being alert at all times to guard real estate interests and unwise legislation, much of which often is predicated on ignorance," Petty concluded.

Leonard P. Reaume, of Detroit, six years a director of the national association, today was nominated for president prior to the elections tomorrow.

Grand Army Veterans Will Be Guests at Picnic

Three Men Are Seized In Alleged Rum Chase

Four charges were placed against Albert Grant, 28 years old, colored, 1750 T street northwest, last night by Detectives William McEwen and William Laflin of Eighth Precinct following a chase which ended at Eighth and Euclid streets northwest. Two other men face two charges as a result of the chase.

Grant is charged with illegal transportation and possession of two quarts of whisky, reckless driving and failure to exhibit his automobile registration card. Thomas Kenney, 29 years old, 1924 Temperance avenue northwest, and Arthur Brown, 23 years old, 1618 Covington street northwest, who police say were with Grant, also are charged with transporting and possessing the two quarts of liquor.

Seaman, 19, Returned Here in Larceny Case

William Thomas Monroe, 19-year-old seaman, of 1316 I street northwest, was brought back to this city last night from New York to face a charge of grand larceny in connection with the theft of $60 from Henry H. Yaffe, cafe proprietor, of 3217 Connecticut avenue northwest, his former employer.

In a nation-wide search, Monroe was traced to the metropolis by Detective Sergts. H. K. Wilson and Oscar Mansfield, after he had eluded the police for two months by enlisting for an ocean voyage to San Francisco. Monroe is charged with taking the money from the cash register of Yaffe's cafe on April 21. He was locked up at the First Precinct Station pending arraignment in Police Court this morning.

DEFENDANT IN LOVE SUIT TAKES STAND

"GOLD-DIGGING" IS DENIED

Chicago, June 27 (A.P.).—Franklin S. Hardinge, wealthy manufacturer of oil burners and watchmakers' tools, took the stand today in the $250,000 breach of promise suit brought against him by Ann Livingston, comely divorcee, of Tulsa, Okla.

The 62-year-old love defendant was on the stand only long enough to tell how he came to Chicago from Toronto, Canada, at the age of 21 with $150 and a patent, when court adjourned for the day.

Attorneys for Miss Livingston, who claimed she was deserted on her wedding eve when she refused to sign a prenuptial agreement limiting her claim on the Hardinge estate to $100,000, reviewed the case shortly after the opening of the afternoon session. By stipulation, a statement was placed into evidence showing the net worth of Hardinge to be $652,369.22.

Self Is Only Witness.

Ann's only witness was herself.

Defense attorneys in the closing cross-examination, attempted to make her reveal herself as a "gold digger."

"Don't you remember," asked Attorney John Bussian for the defense, "of being at a New Year's party in 1927 where you toasted Charley Nax as 'here's to my sweetheart?'"

"No," answered Ann demurely.

"Well, don't you remember some one's saying 'why don't you toast the man who's buying your clothes?'"

"No, sir, I do not," Ann replied emphatically.

Admits Gift of Clock.

Nax is a St. Louis newspaper man. The defense sought to show that he was Ann's real sweetheart all the time she was waiting to marry Hardinge. She admitted Nax gave her a traveling clock.

Ann had testified that Hardinge bought her dresses, coats, shoes, pajamas, underwear, and other things and that he gave her rings from the family jewels.

She gave two of the rings to a lawyer because she had no money to pay him for services, she said in response to questions from Bussain, while a third was taken away from her by Hardinge during a quarrel over a dinner date with another man.

Aged Man Defeats Daughter in Court

Jury Awards the Possession of Household Articles to Contractor.

Claim of Charles W. King, 88-year-old blind contractor, who directed construction of the District Supreme Court building in 1882, that a quantity of silverware, household articles, an automobile and a radio were unlawfully withheld from him by his daughter, Mrs. Alice K. Rooney, and her husband, Harold E. Rooney, was upheld yesterday by the verdict of a jury of three women and nine men before Justice William Hitz in circuit branch of the court.

The aged contractor sued out a writ of replivin in July, 1927, and since the controversy the articles have been held in storage by the United States marshal. King told the jurors that he had never given any of the articles to his daughter or her husband. He was represented by Attorney Robert E. Lynch.

Mr. and Mrs. Rooney denied they held the articles wrongly. Mrs. Rooney declared many of the articles were given to her by her mother, who is now dead. She and her husband asked the jury either to grant them the articles or damages of $3,000.

17 DEFENDANTS FACE JURY INDICTMENTS

12 COUNTS ARE IGNORED

Seventeen indictments, based on charges of thefts, joy riding and violations of the dry law, were returned by the grand jury yesterday to Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy in the District Supreme Court. A dozen charges, including one of homicide, were ignored by the jurors.

Charges of embezzlement, larceny after trust and grand larceny were made against Garrett M. Van Hoesen, 29 years old, formerly a note teller at the Second National Bank. The indictment alleged that Van Hoesen converted $1,813.50 to his own use during April 30 and August 2, 1928, while employed at the bank. The charge set forth that he took $101.50 on April 30, $100 on June 18, $403 on July 18, $403 on July 19 and $806 on August 2.

Clarence Herman Myers, one of three men recently convicted in Police Court on liquor charges that grew out of the sensational raid on the Ambassador Oyster House, at 2106 Eighteenth street northwest, last August, was indicted on a charge of transporting liquor in violation of the Jones liquor felony law.

Jones law indictments were also reported against Joseph Raymond Kelley and Maceo Hill, who were charged with transporting and possession. The jurors ignored dry law accusations against George Henry Stewart and Harry Badtke.

A charge of homicide against John Wills in connection with the death of Ernest Allen, an inmate of St. Elizabeths Hospital, was also ignored by the jurors. Others absolved of criminal charges included Charles Davis and Robert Ford, violation of the District policy laws; William H. Collins and Paul J. Price, joy riding; Carmine Martello and Dominic D'Angelo, violation of motor vehicle theft act; Clifford Davidson, James E. Bogler and Thomas A. Holt, receiving stolen property; Eugene Brown, assault with a dangerous weapon, and Ernest L. Cox, larceny after trust.

Others indicted included: Thornton H. Johnson, Norman A. Maynard and Grantley W. Edelin, housebreaking and larceny; Mario Juliano and Julian Brant, grand larceny and joy riding; Lorenzo Gray, Oriander C. Liberty, Powhatan C. Stephens, Raymond Banks, William Stoney and Robert Taylor, joy riding, and Carl P. Ihme, carnal knowledge.

BETTER AIR SERVICE FOR CAPITAL LOOMS

104-Acre Purchase on River for Washington Airport Bares Expansion.

SEAPLANES WILL BE USED

Purchase of 104 acres of ground just south of the Highway Bridge, including the site of the Arlington Beach amusement resort, by the Washington Air Terminals Corporation, announced yesterday, revealed plans for an improved Washington Airport together with increased flying facilities in the Capital.

The announcement included the fact that the Washington Air Terminals Corporation, which is said to be controlled by the Federal Aviation Corporation of New York, has taken over all the property and assets of the United States Air Transport, Inc., which for two years had operated the Washington-New York Air Line and the Washington Airport.

Price of the 104 acres of ground was set at $675,000 and plans include the razing of the Arlington Beach resort as soon as the owners of that amusement park are able to move out.

Howard Sutherland, alien property custodian and former senator from West Virginia, is president of the new corporation and the directorate is composed of a group of nationally known men. These include C. Bascom Slemp, attorney and one-time secretary to former President Coolidge; David K. E. Bruce, son-in-law of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and connected with Harriman & Co., bankers; Maj. Gen. William Wright, U. S. A., retired; M. C. Cooper, vice president of the Federal Aviation Corporation, and James O. Watson, of Hambleton & Co., bankers. The president of the Federal company is Col. C. E. Fauntleroy, long identified with commercial aeronautics.

Acquisition of the property along the Potomac river at the amusement park site will enable the new company to have seaplanes land at the Washington Airport. The new field, when completed, will be a model six-way landing and departing field solely for passenger planes. With its more than 100 acres it will be the largest commercial flying field which may be reached quickly from the business district of Washington.

Improvement of the Washington-New York air line has also been announced with a fleet of Lockheed-Vega six-passenger planes to be operated in the service. These, so the company asserts, are the fastest passenger ships obtainable.

In addition to the development of the new field south of the Highway Bridge, the company plans continued improvements at the Thousand-Acre airport two miles south of Alexandria, Va., so that it will be made into the most completely equipped flying school and aviation center of the nation.

Washington Flying Service, in as far as possible, will conduct its operations from this larger field which will include flying clubs and accommodations for air tourists.

The Thousand-Acre field, which in reality covers nearly 1,300 acres, is the largest field in the world so close to the Capital of a nation. Its total acreage exceeds the combined size of Templehof field near Berlin, Croydon near London, and LeBourget near Paris.

Bids for Fourth of July Celebration Are Issued

Invitations to the official ceremonies of the Fourth of July celebration were issued Wednesday by the committee on invitations, E. C. Snyder, chairman, to the Diplomatic Corps, members of the Cabinet, and of the Senate and Congress, judicial, civic, and military officials of the city. A large number of guests will be accommodated at the Sylvan Theater on the evening of the Fourth.

Mrs. Virginia White Speel, chairman of the committee on community participation, yesterday issued an appeal to all civic and citizen's organizations, urging them to join in observing the day in a befitting manner.

E. J. Murphy, chairman of the finance committee, will present his report to the executive committee today, and it is hoped that a large part of the fund will either be in hand or subscribed at that time.

NEARLY 200 ARRESTS IN DRIVE ON CAPITAL'S TRAFFIC VIOLATORS

traffic lights and other signals; failure to give pedestrians right of way at crosswalks; making turns without giving proper signal, and weaving in and our of moving traffic. Although the legal speed limit is 22 miles an hour, Inspector Brown pointed out that regulations require automobiles to slow down to "reasonable" speed at intersections, and that all drivers who fail to observe that ruling are to be arrested on a charge of "unreasonable" speed.

Police Judge Given, presiding in Traffic Court, has announced that no leniency would be shown to traffic violators. He immediately proceeded to demonstrate the determination of his announcement by imposing maximum sentences, and many offenders who would ordinarily have gotten off with fines of $10 were taxed $25, and first offenders came in for as stringent punishment as habitual violators of the traffic rules.

The additional motorcycle men will be retained as long as their presence seems necessary, according to William H. Harland, traffic director.

Only four accidents were reported by police yesterday. Although this was an increase over Wednesday when there was but one, it is, nevertheless, a sharp decrease under the usual number, and, being an exceptionally small number for a community the size of Washington, is indicative that the public is convinced the police mean business.

Henrietta Sebastian, 21 years old, of 1116 Neal street northeast, received cuts on her left leg when an automobile in which she was riding with Victor S. McCloskey, 25, of 135 Thirteenth street northeast, collided with a machine driven by Joseph L. Simmons, 28 years old, of Mitchellville, Md., which was knocked against a car operated by Carl O. Christenson, 28 years old, of 3025 Fourteenth street northwest, at Twelfth street and Florida avenue northeast. Miss Sebastian was treated at Casualty Hospital and later returned to her home. Her condition was not serious.

Shortly after midnight yesterday morning James N. Moore, colored, 27 years old, of 1930 Second street northwest, suffered lacerations of the scalp and on his right hand when an automobile he was driving south on Benning road near Eastern Branch, collided with another machine, the driver of which is unknown, and turned over. Moore, after being taken to Casualty Hospital by a passing motorist, was treated and sent home, his condition not being serious.

Samuel McLurkin, colored, 31 years old, of 1647 Third street northwest, sustained bruises on his right leg and lacerations of his right hand yesterday morning when struck at Sixth and S streets northwest by an automobile driven by E. J. Heffernan, of 4115 Wisconsin avenue northwest. Heffernan took the injured man to Freedmen's Hospital, where he was treated and sent home.

Thrown to the street when his bicycle collided with an automobile at Eleventh and D streets southeast, Edward Hawks, 15 years old, of 402 Fifteenth street southeast, was severely injured yesterday. Paul O. Wax, of Oxon Hill, Md., operator of the machine, took the boy to Providence Hospital where he was treated for lacerations of the knee and lacerations and bruises of the head. His condition was undetermined last night.

Charles Francis, driver of the automobile which collided with a taxicab at Twelfth and Water streets southwest last Monday night, causing the death of Mrs. Alice S. Henderson, wife of Irving Henderson, and companion of Francis, was reported as slightly improved last night at Sibley Hospital, where he has been in a state of coma since being taken to Sibley Hospital from a train Wednesday morning as he was on his way here from Philadelphia to testify at the inquest into Mrs. Henderson's death.

Police are searching for a taxi driver who, according to witnesses, was racing his machine down Water street in an illegal speed test against Norman S. Clark, driver of the taxicab which collided with Francis' car.

POPE PIUS RECEIVES WASHINGTON RECTOR

Mgr. James H. Ryan Is Given Congratulations as University Progress Is Heard.

PONTIFF PRESENTS GIFTS

Vatican City, June 27 (A.P.)—Pope Pius today received the Right Rev. James H. Ryan, rector of the Catholic University of America at Washington, D. C.

In the half-hour conversation the pontiff asked about the university's progress and congratulated Mgr. Ryan, giving him the pontifical blessing to be transmitted to the university's faculty and students.

Mgr. Ryan reported particularly concerning the development of the School of Liturgical Music to be opened in September, for which Mrs. Justine Ward, of New York, has given $1,000,000. The Pope recalled the visit of Mrs. Ward two years ago and said he expected great things from the new school.

The pontiff also was deeply interested in Mgr. Ryan's report concerning the new Medieval Academy of America designed to further historical and other studies of the Medieval Age.

Pope Pius presented the American prelate with a beautifully bound book on the life of the Blessed Coema da Carboniana, who was beatified last Sunday, and also three relics of St. Theresa, Little Flower of Jesus, for Mrs. Ward, Mgr. Ryan's mother and the prelate himself.

Mgr. Ryan will leave the latter part of next week for a tour of the European universities. He will attend the consecration of Mgr. Borgongina Duca, new Ambassador of the oly See to Italy as titular archbishop of Heraclea on Saturday.

Guatemala-Salvador Railroad Is Celebrated

Dr. Adrian Racinos, Minister of Guatemala, and Dr. Carlos Leiva, Charge d' Affaires of Salvador, were presented yesterday with gold spikes symbolizing the closing of a new 80-mile link of railroad uniting the two Central American republics.

Ceremonies commemorating the rail connection were held yesterday at the Pan-American Union. Representatives of other Central American countries were present, as was Dana S. Munro, of the United States Department of State, and George J. Eder, chief of the Latin-American section of the Department of Commerce. The presentation of the spikes was made by Fred Lavis, president of the International Railways of Central America, builders and operators of the Guatemala-Salvador line.

Woman Is Awarded Two Years' Alimony

Mrs. Coles Wins Suit for $9,050 in Back Dues Off Halstead.

A judgment of $9,050, representing alimony in arrears, was awarded Mrs. Lillian B. Coles, of Katonah, N. Y., by Justice William Hitz, yesterday in circuit branch of the District Supreme Court, against Nathaniel B. Halstead, of Washington.

Mrs. Coles was divorced from Halstead in July, 1920, and the decree awarded her alimony of $150 a month. Two years later, she married Remson Coles and in 1926 began her fight to collect the back alimony from Halstead. The defense contended that Mrs. Coles, by not prosecuting her contention sooner, was negligent, but the woman declared she encountered difficulty in locating Halstead, who left New York after the divorce was granted.

A year ago, a judgment was awarded Halstead, but the woman's attorney, Ralph A. Cusick, succeeded in having the verdict set aside. When the jury was impaneled in the first trial, the attorney contended he asked whether any of the members had been involved in domestic litigation and they answered in the negative. Cusick contended that the foreman of the jury, Richardson A. Baker, had been involved in litigation and biased the other jurors by relating his domestic troubles in the jury room.

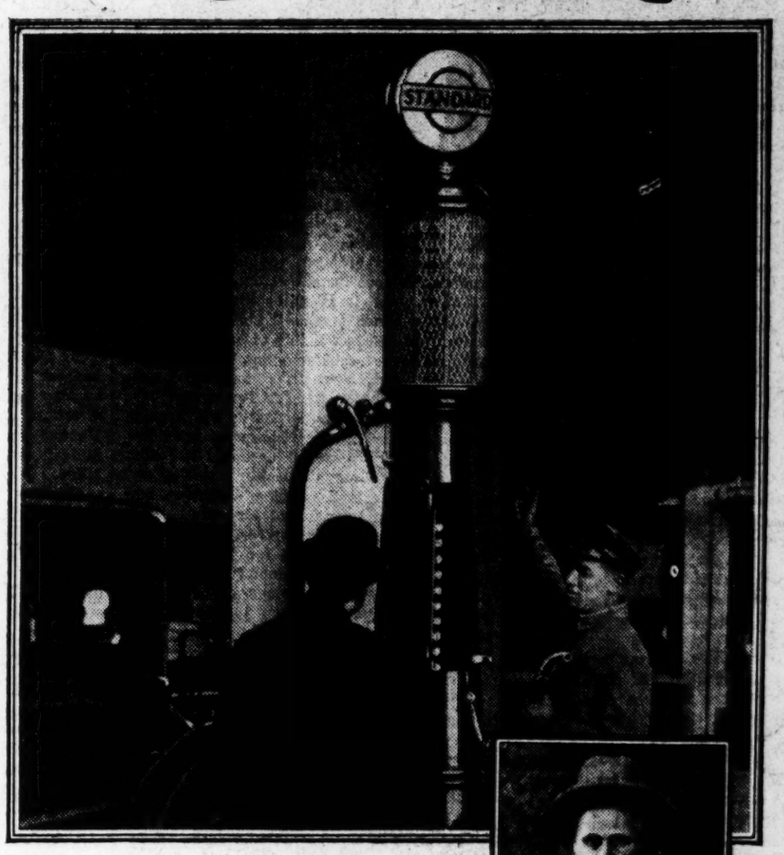
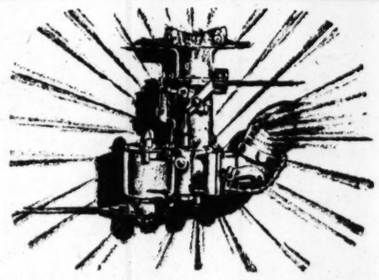
Big Car POWER

is that quality in a gasoline which enables you to exact the most from your motor no matter whether it be a Ford or a Chevrolet or a de luxe Rolls Royce . . . that quality of flexibility which despite weather or loads never fails to start on the punch of the pedal, to accelerate in swift surges of pick-up . . . to keep on delivering a maximum of power from each and every drop.

YOU may be sure that improved "Standard" Gasoline gives "big car power." Little cars. Seven ton trucks. Seven passenger limousines. Any kind of motor vehicle delivers "big punch power" with improved "Standard" Gasoline . . . a white gasoline so designed that its range of boiling points insures smooth, powerful, continuous firing in the cylinders. So cleanly refined that it burns completely. Leaves no carbon. No gummy residue. No crank case dilution. So rich that it gives extra power from every gallon. So uniformly good that it outsells every other gasoline in this state two to one. ". . . it's the champion."





TECHNICALLY SPEAKING: There is, in most cases, an automatic air regulator on your carburetor. When you open the throttle wide to get "big car power" at the start of a tortuous grade, this regulator admits a rush of both air and gasoline into the carburetor. In these seconds improved "Standard" Gasoline—because it is a rich volatile fuel—more than shows itself to advantage. Instantly as the cylinders suck in this dynamic gasoline they fairly swell with power—ready to conquer any hill, to carry any load.

THE furnishing of uniformly good "Standard" Gasoline and "Standard" Motor Oil is only a part of the widespread service offered by "Standard" dealers. Wherever you see big, red "Standard" pumps there you will find not only those little "extras" that make motoring worth while but also "that service with a smile."

W. J. WEEKS, chief engineer for Pennell & Harley, Contractors of Spartanburg, S. C., now making many of the South Carolina roads, is one of the many experienced operators who gets "big-truck power" from "Standard" Gasoline and "Standard" Motor Oil.

REST IN PEACE.

President Hoover has snuffed out a well-meant but stupid scheme in halting the plan to create sentiment for the eighteenth amendment by indirection and subterfuge in the public schools. The prepared pamphlets, with prohibition data interwoven in examples of arithmetic, English and current events are to be relegated to the scrap heap and the same fate awaits similar forms of propaganda. In their stead comes a lesson in common sense that all who cherish the institutions of the country will commend.

Probably nowhere was there more pronounced opposition to the schoolroom propaganda scheme than among the sincere supporters of honest efforts to strengthen the eighteenth amendment. Neither the President nor Secretary of the Treasury Mellon were apprised in advance of the plan which the Prohibition Bureau or some of its under officials proposed to put into operation.

The only charitable thing that can be said for the plan is that it was founded on good intentions. It was apparently an outgrowth of the idea that everything held sacred in American life, even the schoolrooms provided for the education of coming generations, must be made subservient to a selected form of propaganda. In the United States the fountains of education so far have not been polluted with partisan propaganda of any description. Soviet Russia uses the schools to sow the seeds of communism in youthful breasts, but America is not being guided by that example.

The feature of the plan was its stupidity rather than its danger. It brought undisguised joy to wet organizations and embarrassment to the sincere drys. It conjured up the picture of youngsters squirming in their seats to answer why the former saloon-keeper's property had doubled in value now that prohibition had provided the once-starving family with bank accounts and shoes. It brought to mind the youngster proudly raising his hand in reply to the question "What is bootlegging?"

Of course, any such plan would be a two-edged sword, for the Government does not control schools in the States, although it exercises, indirectly, a form of control in the District. In Maryland, however, or in New York, there might be an offset campaign in charge of wet propagandists who would demand the same privileges as the drys. And here the examples in arithmetic might have to do with the number of speakeasies in the community. There might be problems in algebra with X equaling the bootlegger's number of cases and Y representing the daily deliveries. But, fortunately, the whole idea of injecting prohibition propaganda with its serious, its humorous and its highly controversial political aspects into the schools has died at its inception.

JURY REFORMS.

The functioning of juries in the administration of justice is a subject which is seldom neglected when groups of judges and lawyers meet. The problem was given attention this week at the second judicial conference of Pennsylvania at Bedford Springs. As a result the Pennsylvania Legislature will be called upon to overhaul the system of selecting juries and to abolish the tradition of unanimous verdicts.

Under the present law jurors must be selected from the current list of taxpayers. A proportionate number must be chosen from every ward. Both of these restrictions would be abolished under the recommendations of the conference. Instead of having one list from which the names of jurors for the entire year must be drawn, four lists would be prepared, one for each season. A person whose work did not permit him to serve in summer would be placed on the autumn or winter panel. Jury service would become less burdensome, citizens would be more willing to serve and the result should be more intelligent jurors.

This method is not unlike that in operation in New York, under which jurors for all courts are drawn from a single group. Less time is wasted, influencing of jurors becomes more difficult and the services of more business and professional men are secured. The practice of jury pooling is gaining rapid popularity.

The most revolutionary recommendation adopted at the judicial conference is that which would allow conviction in criminal cases—excepting felonious homicide—on agreement of five-sixths of the jurors. The jury would deliberate six hours, and if at the conclusion of that time a verdict had not been reached, ten of the twelve jurors would be able to render a verdict. If three out of twelve men could acquit a defendant there is little chance that an innocent man would be convicted. On the other hand the large number of guilty persons who are freed because of the stubbornness of one juror would be reduced. Hundreds of criminals who have been caught at great expense to the State are turned loose every year because of the numerous safeguards given them by law. Not a few of these cases result from disagreement of juries by a margin of one or two members.

A few States already provide for criminal convictions by fewer than twelve men. Pennsylvania will make a distinct contribution to judicial reform if it can prove the efficacy and justice of verdicts by a five-sixths majority.

POLITICS IN VIRGINIA.

The approaching State campaign in Virginia promises to be one of the most interesting ever held. For a time it was uncertain whether two or three sets of candidates would be placed before the electorate. Now that the anti-Smith Democrats and the Republicans have nominated the same candidates, chief interest will center in whether or not the coalition holds together.

The bolting Democrats who held their convention at Roanoke last week assumed the attitude that they were forming a new political party. They established a "permanent" organization and called for support of insurgent elements in other States. The Republican convention almost ignored the anti-Smith group, but it nominated the candidates for governor and attorney general who had been previously accepted at Roanoke. The Republicans also added their own candidate for lieutenant governor, making a ticket of one Republican and two former Democrats running on a Republican platform.

The situation appears most embarrassing for Prof. William Moseley Brown, gubernatorial candidate. Last week he was a revolting Democrat, carrying the prohibition banner of Bishop Cannon. But before the Republican convention he declared himself "the candidate of no single individual or special groups." He made no mention of his Democratic affiliations but styled himself an independent in politics who welcomes the support of all citizens. It is reported also that Prof. Brown is under pledge not to be dominated by Bishop Cannon in the campaign.

The Republicans are making a big sacrifice in an effort to hold the strength they showed in the last presidential election. It is generally conceded that Bishop Cannon will be the foremost issue in the campaign in spite of the Republican platform. One element of the Republican organization is extremely hostile to the bishop. This is probably the reason why less than half of the 2,000 delegates to the Richmond convention arrived, and also accounts for threats of rebellion which had to be ironed out in preliminary "soothing conferences." The Republicans may lose more than they gain by accepting the candidates of the revolting Democrats.

If Prof. Brown is able to conduct a campaign without antagonizing either group of his supporters he will be a political marvel. It hardly seems possible that the growing Republican organization will be sufficiently strong to swallow and digest the Cannon following. And it is equally improbable that they will yield to the bolting Democrats. The outcome, especially should this strange coalition win, will be of interest far beyond the borders of Virginia.

NEW TOWNS AND AIRPORTS.

Between Liberal, Kans., and Amarillo, Tex., a chapter in history is being written that echoes the past. Eighteen new towns, nine of them with new grain elevators, have sprung into being and the countryside, that until recently was given over exclusively to grazing, is planted in wheat. The metamorphosis is easily explained. A new line between the two points is being built by the Rock Island Railway, opening up the last of the great Oklahoma grazing areas.

The railroads are responsible for the birth and development of thousands of American towns and cities. They are equally responsible for the death of numerous communities that they passed by. Today it is so unusual as to be remarkable when a railroad is the direct cause of the establishment of a new community. But there is a new agency of transportation that promises to play a profound part in the development of cities.

The airplane, in all probability, will not be the direct cause of the establishing of new towns, but unquestionably it will affect the development of existing cities. Where there are satisfactory airports, commercial planes will make regular landings. Towns that have no airports will be overlooked in the working out of commercial air transport schedules, and they may not realize until too late their mistake in failing to make provision for planes. The establishment of eighteen new towns between Liberal and Amarillo along a new railway line should serve to remind city authorities everywhere of the part the railroads played in the developing of American cities, and awaken in them a resolve not to permit the airplane to pass their communities by.

A PROBLEM OF AVIATION.

The controversy that has been brewing for a year or more between the old Westbury Golf Club and Roosevelt Field, and which has recently come to a head, has its humorous as well as its serious side. The two properties adjoin, and the golf club complains not only that the occasional emergency landing of planes has injured its course, but also that the noise of the planes continually droning overhead has had a serious effect on the scores of its more nervous members. Its several protests to officials of the field having had no effect, the club has undertaken to erect a fence high enough to keep planes from flying over its property, and already a series of postholes have been dug. Field officials point out that the fence will contribute in no small measure to the hazards of flying, and they have indicated their intention to take the matter to court.

The picture of a golf club erecting a fence more than 100 feet high to keep planes from flying over its property will strike many as amusing. Is not the air free? Are not golfers expected to cultivate nerves that will be unaffected by extraneous noise? On the other hand, planes from Roosevelt Field have injured the club property, and they must be considered potential menaces to life.

The airplane is facing difficulties that have been faced by every transportation machine. In New York City, until recently, there was a railway siding upon which one or two trains a day were run, preceding each of which there rode a man on horseback carrying a red flag. An ordinance adopted when the tracks were laid, years ago, made it necessary for the horseman to ride ahead of each train, warning the populace of the approaching danger. Early in the history of the automobile more than one locality adopted a regulation compelling each gas buggy to be preceded by a watchman bearing a red flag or sounding a bell. Today such measures are laughed at, and it is more than likely that when the airplane is developed to a point of efficiency comparable with that of the modern motor car there will be less fear of it.

The Old Westbury controversy, however, is of the present and not of the future. It typifies a situation that exists wherever a flying field is located in a populous community. Locally, a similar situation is apparent along the road that lies between two flying fields on the Virginia side of Highway Bridge, over which planes taking off and landing fly at low level. Traffic in the highway is menaced by these planes. What can be done about it? One solution lies in locating flying fields away from scenes of activity, but the usefulness of a field is impaired if it is not close to the center of population. The problem of locating flying fields so that planes that use them will not endanger or annoy others is becoming so important that it should challenge the best minds of the aviation industry.

15 YEARS AGO TODAY

By PIERRE TERIN,
In the New York Herald Tribune.

The twenty-eighth of June is Vidov-dan—the day of St. Vid—a national holiday of the Serbs. It commemorates the Serbian encounter with the Turks at Kosovo Polje in 1389, and besides St. Vid is a house patron of many a Serbian family.

In 1914 Vidov-dan in Sarajevo was a most beautiful day. Not a cloud in the sky, and there was festivity in the air. I donned my best clothes, and so did everybody else. It was Sunday. It was a Serbian holiday. The Archduke Francis Ferdinand, with his wife, Sophie, was to make an official visit to the city. Royalty had visited Sarajevo often. Nevertheless its coming was always a big affair.

In front of the Beledija—the city hall—I found a place in the first row. Boys always get good places. At the front steps of the Beledija stood the mayor, a wealthy Moslem, with other city officials waiting to greet the archduke. When the time drew near noon the crowd began to be restless.

Then, all at once we heard a detonation. Nobody really knew what it was. In fact, that was the first attempt on the archduke's life. Not a half mile from the Beledija, Gavrilovic had thrown a bomb that did not reach its aim, but wounded the archduke's aid in the next car.

The mass of people in front of the Beledija was ignorant of this occurrence. Finally the archduke, his wife and the governor of Bosnia-Herzegovina, Gen. Potiorek, arrived in their car. The archduke stepped out of the car while the crowd cheered. Before the mayor had a chance to utter a word of greeting the archduke spoke, gesticulating nervously while his wife stood behind patting his arm to cool him.

The mayor was perplexed. However, he made his welcome speech and the archduke with his retinue entered the Beledija. After a short stay there—he was in a hurry to visit his wounded aid—the archduke emerged and entered his car, perfectly calm by this time. The crowd cheered again and dispersed, mostly following the direction of the cars down the embankment.

I also followed the cars. As they were not going fast I never lost them from sight. Some three blocks from the Beledija the cars turned from the embankment into a street to the right. At the same moment I heard two shots about 200 yards away from me. Nobody knew what was going on, but all at once a great commotion started. Everybody was running toward the source of the shots, I with them.

There I saw the archduke's car running backward over the bridge leading to the konak near by. The konak was the official residence of the governor. In the car I saw the archduke and his wife lying motionless on the rear seat, while stooping over them was Gen. Potiorek, apparently trying to assist them.

By that time everybody realized what had happened. Then a young man, surrounded by an angry crowd, was led by the police in my direction. It was Gavrilo Princip, the assassin. He had been beaten, and the police had a difficult job in defending him from being killed.

The city fell to brooding over the consequences of the double assassination. The criminal was a student of Serbian origin who had shortly returned from a trip to Serbia. The Austro-Hungarian Empire had been at odds with Serbia for some time. Did it mean war with Serbia? The idea gave us a start, not without a thrill.

A war, in our imagination, would be a splendid affair. Here was a chance to show our mettle. We demanded revenge for this assassination. This note was played up by the newspapers and some intangible sources to such a degree that a general hatred against all the Serbs was aroused. It was a bad omen for all the Serbs living in Sarajevo—that is, for almost one-third of the city's population.

Shortly afterward groups of ruffians formed, armed with picks and sticks. They started with a sort of demonstration against the Serbs, but it culminated with a general smashing of Serbian stores and properties.

Two days after the assassination the bodies of Francis Ferdinand and his wife started on their trip from Sarajevo over Dubrovnik and Trieste to Vienna. It was again a beautiful day. Above the city to the south at the foot of the mountain Trebevic led the railway over which the funeral train was to pass. The bodies were borne from the konak up the hill to the Bistrik station.

As the train pulled out thousands of people stood in every street with uncovered heads, their eyes toward that mountain, some of them crying, all of them silent. The train moved impressively along the mountain. In one of the shining black coaches the bodies rested. It was the most dramatic exit I have ever witnessed. The whole populace gazed up southward with awe until the train disappeared.

Not long afterward along the same railway line came trains loaded with wounded and dying soldiers.

Packaged Peanuts.

New York World: Once upon a time, it will be recalled, there was such a thing as justice for the peanut buyer. Peanuts were scooped out of a pile with a measure plainly marked "1 Pt." True, it did not as a rule hold a pint; still, it was what it was; you could see how much you were getting, and it made you feel that some effort was being made to give you value for your nickel.

But now what do we find? The measure has disappeared. In its place are a neat row of paper bags, each already filled with peanuts and each containing the unknown quantity X. Perhaps, as has been argued, these bags hold as much as the old measure. It must be admitted that they could hardly hold less. But that is not the point. A principle is involved here, called caveat emptor; and since the purchaser must beware, he should at least be able to see what he is getting. So we demand a return to the old measure. If it did not actually give you any more peanuts, it at least made you happy, and is not that, after all, what we live for?

Furthermore, if bags have to figure in this transaction, we want a picture of an elephant on them.

CARE.

The weeds of folly rankly thrive,
The flowers of worth are slow to grow;
'Tis hard to keep the good alive
Against the bitter winds that blow.
The dreams of splendor soon are lost,
But common things outlive the frost.

Life is a garden asking care,
Its charms are difficult to win,
One may plant Junetime's roses there
But soon the weeds come breaking in.
Unless man keeps a watchful eye
The weeds will live; the roses die.

Not without labor good is won,
Nor without pain and sacrifice;
To weeds the finest soil will run,
For beauty man must pay the price.
No man his honor may neglect
And hope to win the world's respect.

Men do not idly drift to fame,
Good luck no splendors can bestow;
Who would the joys of manhood claim
Will find that such a growth is slow.
Out of our lives no more we take
Than that we've sacrificed to make.

Men Respect the White Hair of a Wise Man, Not the Hair of a White Mule.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN a man founds a newspaper, he can adopt either of two policies. He can expend his capital to produce a better paper than his income justifies, and thus quickly win the patronage necessary to make his venture profitable, or he can produce a sorry newspaper and thus keep expenses down to the level of his income, and improve his product slowly as the increase of patronage justifies greater expenditure.

In the former case he succeeds quickly; in the latter he develops slowly, if at all, and success is gained by appealing to local patriotism and rebuking an unresponsive public that answers: "What do you expect for nothing? Give us a newspaper worthy of support and we will support it."

A business or cause that has merit and offers its patrons full value in return for their support is practical and sensible and need make no appeal except to the public's self-interest. It achieves success by earning it.

But when any business or cause makes appeal to sentiment and asks for support in the name of patriotism, chivalry, duty or charity, the public rightly assumes that it is asked to pay for more than it will receive. It feels resentment and contempt, and as a rule both feelings are justified.

An appeal to patriotism is a confession that the business hasn't sufficient merit to stand alone. If the aid society serves oysters to raise money for the heathen, your dollar will buy 10 cents' worth of oysters and 90 cents' worth of salve for your conscience.

The business or cause that would endure and triumph must earn as much as it asks—must prove itself worthy of the support it invites.

"Respect the courts," urges the statesman. Very well; let the courts be respectable and they shall have respect.

Respect for law is not to be won by appeals to a sense of duty. People respect only such laws as they consider respectable.

Mr. Wickersham, chairman of the so-called "crime commission," speaks of the "present attitude of the people toward law," thus implying that the attitude of moderns is unlike that of their fathers.

He is mistaken. The American attitude toward law has not changed. Decent people still abominate evil and respect the laws designed to overcome things they regard as evil.

Americans who threw tea in Boston's harbor showed disrespect for a law they did not consider respectable. Our fathers showed disrespect for ancient "blue laws" they did not think respectable.

The people are the source of law and the final judges of a law's worth. There will be no universal respect for law until all laws are made respectable—or a new generation is taught to believe present laws worthy of respect.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Synthetic Gold Would Not Bring Untold Wealth to Its Discoverer; the World Is Fortunate That the Philosopher's Stone Remains Undiscovered.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I note that M. Jollivet-Castelot, president of the Alchemist Society of France, claims to have discovered a process for making gold in the laboratory. No doubt he believes that he is on the way to untold wealth, but if he stops to consider he may realize that artificial gold would not be so valuable after all.

Gold, of course, has a certain intrinsic value. It is, for example, superior to any other material that has thus far been used in the manufacture of dental inlays and it is used in the manufacture of certain delicate instruments. The high price of gold, however, comes not from its intrinsic value but largely from its comparative scarcity. If the markets were suddenly flooded with huge quantities of gold, its price would be destroyed.

M. Jollivet-Castelot is campaigning for official investigation of his process. He claims to have received indorsement from prominent scientists but he complains that the "official savants" refuse to investigate the discovery. It is only natural that they should. A long line of individuals have claimed to have discovered the philosopher's stone by which base metal could be transmuted into gold, but their processes never have stood rigid investigation. The world may count itself lucky that the philosopher's stone has not been discovered. The whole financial structure would crash were a workable process for manufacturing artificial gold discovered.

James Smithson, Who Died 100 Years Ago, Bequeathed Not Only an Institution but Also an Idea That Has Become the Basic Idea of Modern Achievement.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One hundred years ago yesterday, James Smithson, an Englishman, founder of the Smithsonian Institution, died in Genoa, Italy, without ever having set foot in the United States.

But although he had no first-hand knowledge of this country, Smithson bequeathed to it not only his personal fortune of about $540,000, not alone an institution, but an idea then almost a century ahead of his time, the idea of scientific research which has become the basic idea of modern achievement.

Although Smithson never was a truly great scientist as a research worker, he was thorough and indefatigable, making numerous chemical analyses of minerals and writing hundreds of papers. His name lives in the mineral smithsonite, carbonate of zinc. He never married, and when his health failed in his later years, it was probably with a sense of unfinished effort that he willed his estate "to the United States of America to found at Washington, under the name of the Smithsonian Institution, an establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men."

In the hands of Joseph Henry, first secretary of the institution and the foremost American scientist of his day, Smithson's bequest became the inspiration of American science, and even of world science, and this has been developed steadily, so that today the Smithsonian Institution stands out as probably the world's leading organization for scientific research.

ROGERS AUSTIN.

Suggested Curriculum for a Public School Course in Prohibition.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I rise to suggest that the addition of a prohibition educational section to the prevailing school curriculum should include the following departments:

(a) How personal wets become legislative drys.

(b) Congressional applause of homicide.

(c) Why Federal agents indicted for murder of peaceable citizens have their cases transferred from State to Federal courts.

(d) The economic effect of prohibition on agriculture.

(e) A list of the communities which have been made dry by prohibition.

(f) How the loss of $3,000,000,000 in revenue is made up by increased taxation.

(g) This department should show the effect of prohibition on the anti-cigarette agitation recently launched under the banner of "The Anticigarette Alliance," and there should be a discussion of the approximate date we might expect the vegetarians to begin their national crusade against the horrible meat eaters.

THOMAS H. R. CLARKE.

School Days Are Over.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: June is the month of graduation. These are times when men and women who have sought the laurels of learning have been rewarded with diplomas certifying them to the world. We hear the band play and the cheers of happy seniors fill the air. With broad smiles they walk across the rostrum and grab that coveted degree.

But amid the joy and the laughter there is something more than a beginning of a new life. It is really an ending of old friendships.

Friends who have studied and struggled together to gain the gate that opens into the world, little knew what it would mean to graduate. The bonds of companionship are shattered and their freedom is but a bondage.

The old poker gang who played 'neath the drop cord into the wee small hours of the dawn have departed, leaving the deck idle on the green while the faint smoke from a cigarette fades away into nothingness. The "bull sessions" have adjourned sine die and each one of the gang has taken his place in the world as a man.

Behind the gaiety there is a tear and behind that tear there is love. So while graduation means a beginning of a new life, it is an ending of old ties—it is a parting of the ways.

There is weeping 'neath smiles and sad hearts 'neath glad faces. There is the sigh, the salute and the handshake, a bid of farewell and adieu, but some are mute and say nothing while others laugh and stroll on. Our parting will be a closer gathering and our distances but a myth. We are men of the world.

Hoovers Hold Garden Party For Veterans

Annual Fete on Lawn of White House Draws Officialdom.

By JEAN ELIOT.

PUT off from the day before because of inclement weather, the White House garden party for the disabled veterans was given yesterday afternoon. The day had been cloudy, but the grounds had dried out sufficiently for comfort and the sun broke through just as the guests were assembling to etch long shadows on the grass and paint rainbows in the fountain.

There were new hosts in the President and Mrs. Hoover this time, and new groups of officials to help make welcome the special guests. But for the rest this might have been a veterans' garden party in President Wilson's day—or President Harding's or President Coolidge's—except that it was smaller. From year to year the pitiful line of war casualties grows shorter, as some pass beyond suffering and more and more are rehabilitated to resume their active place in the world. And there seemed to be rather fewer guests from the official world than in previous years.

However, there were the same men in uniform and hospital blue, with Red Cross workers in crisp white, nurses in blue, ambulance drivers in smart uniform, the famous Gray Ladies of Walter Reed Hospital and representatives of other groups of women who have done their bit for the men in hospitals through the long years since the war. The Grand Army of the Republic had sent a large delegation and there were present numerous representatives of the American Legion and other patriotic organizations.

Guests Arrive Early.

Invitations had been issued for 4 o'clock, but the guests began assembling a full hour earlier and most of the company had arrived by the time the President and Mrs. Hoover made their entrance, preceded by the group of White House aids in their white uniforms.

They took their places under a giant tree, with a little table behind them on which stood a tall vase of red roses and on which was displayed a cane just presented to President Hoover by one of the members of the G. A. R. Col. Campbell Hodges and Commander Robert Munroe, the President's military and naval aids, alternated in making introductions.

Mrs. Hoover wore a becoming garden party gown of printed chiffon in a design of roses and green leaves on a dark ground. Her hat was black, a modified poke shape of straw, with only a narrow band of ribbon for trimming, and—wonder of wonders in this day—she had it fastened on with a small jeweled hatpin. Her slippers were of green kid and she wore hose of a neutral tint. She wore no gloves, but the sleeves of her gown were long.

The President had on the blue coat and white trousers, so popular for summer "uniform" and wore a Panama hat, which he doffed early in the afternoon.

Greet Men in Chairs.

Once formal greetings were over, the President and Mrs. Hoover made a pilgrimage among their guests, stopping to give special greeting to the men in wheel chairs. Later they paused beside the little inclosure in which the White House raccoon sat atop his stump, surveying the scene with bright eyes. The President remarked that he had been told this wasn't a very good example of the genus raccoon, but that he had just been returned to the White House after having been lent to a boys' baseball club as a mascot and that his team had won the series, proving the beastie was "a pretty good 'coon."

Vice President Curtis, with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, were early arrivals at the fete, the Speaker of the House and Mrs. Longworth coming in soon afterward. Secretary Mellon of the Treasury came late, but was soon surrounded by groups of veterans clamoring to be presented. Others noted from the Cabinet group were the Secretary of War and Mrs. Good, the Postmaster General and Mrs. Brown, the Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Charles Francis Adams, and the Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Davis.

Mrs. Davis was in her Gray Ladies' uniform, its gray veil very becoming; and she spent most of the afternoon pushing the men in wheel chairs from one colgn of vantage to another. Other Gray Ladies on duty through the afternoon were Mrs. Eldridge Jordan and her pretty niece, Miss Virginia Peters; Mrs. Reeve Lewis, Mrs. A. Garrison McClintock and Miss Francesca McKenney.

Mrs. Gann had chosen a gown of printed chiffon in rose and gray, worn with a gray chiffon coat and a small hat which was rather beige than gray. Mrs. Good's costume was of rose beige in a small printed design, with matching accessories, and Mrs. Brown's gown was of dark blue braided in white and worn with a small blue hat.

Mrs. Longworth Center of Group.

Mrs. Longworth lost the Speaker soon after her arrival and wandered about through the gardens always surrounded by an animated group. She had chosen a tub silk frock of beige striped with lavender and wore a small beige straw hat. Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, who has been in Massachusetts, had returned to town especially to attend the garden party and to look after some matters of veterans' aid in which she takes so keen an interest. She has sponsored some of the most important veterans' legislation put through Congress since she came to the House and she has never missed this annual fete for the disabled since it was instituted years ago.

Instead of the Gray Ladies' uniform, which she usually wears on such occasions, Mrs. Rogers had on this time a thin black afternoon gown, with a small black hat, and had a cluster of gardenias pinned on her shoulders. Groups of men who had served in Massachusetts outfits were crowding about her all afternoon.

Vice President Curtis made the round of the wheel-chair cases and had a friendly handshake for each of the soldiers as they came up to speak to him.

The Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley were among the guests, as were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Charles P. Summerall, the latter in a graceful gown of blue and white chiffon and a big blue hat; Admiral and Mrs. Charles F. Hughes, Maj. Gen. Wendell C. Neville, Commander and Mrs. Joel T. Boone, Mr. and Mrs. French Strother, Miss Mary Randolph, Miss Anne Randolph and Miss Ruth Fesler.

Marine Band Plays.

The Marine Band played through the afternoon, its stand tucked away behind the shrubbery, specializing in soldier songs and such martial hymns as "Onward Christian Soldiers." Sandwiches, ices, cake and lemonade were served from gayly striped marquees set about under the trees. And groups of pretty girls wandered about bearing trays of cigarettes for the soldiers. Among them were 48 from the Veterans Bureau, one from each State. Each wore a sash bearing the name of her State across the bodice of her gay summer frock.

Mrs. Herbert O. Williams, wife of Brig. Gen. Williams, was in a printed chiffon gown, white background with rose and capucine figures, fashioned on long draped lines, and she wore a large hat of beige horsehair.

Mrs. Hugh Cumming, wife of the Surgeon General of the Public Health Service, had on a black chiffon gown figured in yellow and orange.

Mrs. Creed Hammond, wife of Maj. Gen. Hammond, wore a frock of black crepe with a small black hat.

Mrs. Arthur Willard, wife of the commandant of the navy yard, was in a black chiffon printed with mauve orchid. With this she wore a large black hat.

Mrs. Frank Hines, wife of the chief of the Veterans' Bureau, had on a gown of beige crepe Elizabeth, trimmed with bands of fagoting. She wore a large beige hat of rough straw.

Mrs. Charles E. Riggs, wife of the surgeon general of the Navy, wore a blue printed chiffon with a large hat to match.

Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley was in a white georgette frock, fashioned with a tucked bodice and a circular skirt. Her hat was also white and of a silk braided straw that turned smartly off her face.

Mrs. Joel T. Boone wore a chiffon ensemble of beige printed in large red and green figures. Her hat was red and very small.

Mrs. Robert Munroe, wife of the naval aid to the President, wore a plaited gown of capucine printed in small green figures. Her hat was of green silk.

Mrs. James Clement Dunn wore a smart suit of navy blue and chartreuse green crepe and a small blue hat.

The Ambassador of Peru, Dr. Hernan Velarde, has sailed for Europe and will pass the next six months in France.

The Italian Ambassador, Nobile Giacomo de Martino, was host last night to a few friends at an after-dinner reception, held in the patio of the embassy, which was effectively illuminated for the occasion.

MRS. JOHN FRANCIS BYERLY, who was Miss Marian Reeves Scott until her wedding yesterday. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Sidney L. Scott.

Dinner Given Bridal Couple Of Tomorrow

Miss Devereux and Fiance Feted; Miss Scott Is Married.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Robert W. Kennedy entertained at dinner last evening at the Plage Deauville for their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Kennedy, in honor of Miss Mary Devereux and her fiance, Ensign Raymond Fowler Crist, jr., whose marriage will take place tomorrow evening. The guests were the members of the bridal party.

This group includes the matron of honor, Mrs. Richard Hall Jeschke, sister of the bride-elect; the maid of honor, Miss Anne Sinnott Devereux, also a sister of Miss Devereux; the bridesmaids, Miss Elizabeth Kennedy, Miss Mary Elizabeth Alexander, Mrs. Nelson Jeffress, Miss Helen Louise Minnigerode, Miss Dorothy Donoghue, of Philadelphia, and Miss Elinor Gilmore O'Reilly, a cousin of the bride-elect, of New Orleans; the best man, Mr. Edward Winslow Coffin Devereux; and the ushers, Ensign Jacob Wilson Waterhouse of Wheeling, W. Va.; Ensign Charles Cannon Fitzgerald, of Baltimore; Ensign George Herrick Wales and Ensign Arthur Sinclair Hill, of Washington; Lieut. Charles Dorsey Warfield, United States Marine Corps, of Baltimore; Lieut. Edward Colton Dyer, United States Marine Corps, of Baltimore; Lieut. Raymond Bowles Sullivan, jr., United States Marine Corps, of Quantico, Va., and Lieut. James Patrick Sinnott Devereux, United States Marine Corps, also of Quantico.

On Tuesday Miss Helen Minnigerode entertained at a supper party for the briday party, and Wednesday evening, while Ensign Crist was entertaining at his bachelor dinner, Miss Mary Alexander had a dinner for Miss Devereux and her attendants. This evening following the rehearsal for the wedding there will be a supper party at the home of the bride's parents.

The marriage of Miss Marian Reeves Scott, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Sidney L. Scott, to Mr. John Francis Byerly, of Frederick, Md., was solemnized yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock in St. Matthew's Church, with a small company of guests to witness the ceremony. The Rev. Edward L. Buckey officiated. The church was decorated with pink and white peonies. Mr. Byerly is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Byerly, of Frederick, Md.

Miss Scott was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Sidney L. Scott, jr., and had her sister, Miss Henrietta M. Scott, as maid of honor. The best man was the bridegroom's brother, Mr. Charles F. Byerly, jr., of Frederick.

The bride wore her traveling costume, a smart ensemble of navy blue flat crepe, with white blouse and a long scarf collar of white on the coat. Her hat was navy blue straw trimmed with a velvet bow in a lighter tone. She carried white roses. The maid of honor's costume was also of navy blue flat crepe, a smart model embroidered in white in a daisy design, and she wore a big hat of brown horsehair. Her flowers were yellow roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Byerly on their return from their honeymoon and after a short visit with her mother, will be at home at 2222 Q street. The bride is a granddaughter of Mrs. I. S. K. Reeves, of Washington.

Mrs. Alfred J. Brosseau, honorary president general of the D. A. R., will sail tonight on the Statenden for Amsterdam, Holland, where she will be joined by Mr. Brosseau, who preceded her to Europe. They will remain in Europe for a month and will then go to their country place at Greenwich, Conn., for the summer.

Classical Selections Are Offered

"Dance of the Camorrist" on Program Over WRC Tonight; "Mosquito," a Russian Folk Song, on WMAL.

Atmospheric conditions were again good last night. Stations came in all over the dial. WBT, at Charlotte, N. C., was heard with especial clarity.

Under the direction of Rosario Bourdon, the Cities Service Orchestra will present a group of classical selections, while Merle Johnston, saxophonist, will supply the more modern compositions in the regular broadcast at 7 o'clock tonight.

"The Dance of the Camorrist," from Wolf-Ferrari's "Jewels of the Madonna," will be featured, together with "Blue Flame" (Grofe), selections from "The Little Whopper" (Frimi), "Meditation" (Tschaikowsky) and "Witches Dance" (MacDowell). Merle Johnston will play "Modnistik" and "Fascination." The Cavaliers have been rehearsing "Little Boy Blue," "Absent" and "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" for the program.

Another tuneful half-hour program will be broadcast in "Summer Melodies" at 8 o'clock. Bolores Cassinelli, soprano, and Julian Oliver, tenor, will assist the orchestra, under the direction of Harry Horlick. The complete program follows:

"Rendezvous" (Alleter)) and "Oh, Cease Thy Singing, Maiden Fair" (Rachmaninoff), orchestra; "Lilies of Lorraine," soprano solo; "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," orchestra; "One Alone," from "The Desert Song," tenor solo; "What My Mother Wants to Know," orchestra; "Serenade" (Schubert), duet by soprano and tenor, and "Viennese Dance No. 2" (Gartner).

Veracini, one of the early Italian masters, will be represented by his violin sonata, interpreted by Raphael Galindo, as a feature of the hour of Slumber Music to be broadcast at 10 o'clock. Ludwig Laurier will conduct the program, which follows in detail:

Overture, "Die Heimkehr Aus Der Fremde" (Mendelssohn); "Symphony No. 2" (Beethoven), "Sonata" (Veracini), "Ballet Suite" (Gluck) and "Nachtstueck" (Schumann).

Dorsey Byron, soprano of the Doc West program, will sing "When My Dreams Come True" at 9:30 o'clock over WMAL. She will also contribute a popular number entitled "Me and the Clock." A quartet will join in harmonizing such numbers as "Just a Passing Fancy," "Red Hair and Freckles" and the "Pagan Love Song."

"Mosquito," a famous Russian folksong, will be the feature of the program that "In a Russian Village" is offering at 9 o'clock. This composition is a satirical song created by the Cossacks about Catherine the Great and Graf Potemkin. Mme. Valentinova will contribute two Russian solos—"Bright Morn" and "The Ribbon."

"Oceana Roll" and "I'm Just Breezin' Along With the Breeze" will open the "Then and Now" program from WMAL at 7:30 o'clock, followed by "My Wife's Gone to the Country" and "Here Comes My Ball and Chain," "St. Louis Blues" and "Kansas City Kitty," "Gee I Wish I Had a Girl" and "I've Got a Girl," "So This Is Love" and "A Precious Little Thing Called Love," "Till the Clouds Roll By" and "Watching the Clouds Roll By."

Following the Civic Hour, Bran Hughes and his Melody Boys will present a half hour of dance music from WJSV at 7:30 o'clock. Three barytones will be presented at short intervals during the early part of the evening—James Chamberlain, F. W. Hart and David Martin.

The Harmelody Boys and the Gondoliers will be presented between 9:20 and 10 o'clock.

WOL has arranged several short musical features for the early evening, including dinner music, Kathryn Dunning, pianist, and the Red Wings.

Formal and Other Suits

● VOGUE

THE suit, this season, instead of being the classic, utilitarian uniform of recent years, goes from one extreme of the mode to another—from the beach, perhaps, to the wedding reception, depending upon its interpretation. Exquisite fabrics and soft lines go into the making of the formal suit, while rough and ready materials and simple lines make the sports suit.

Here, we show the two extremes in suits of black and white. The one shown at the left may be present for a cool drink after a sail, and the other would appear at tea in town. The sports suit of jersey consists of a white pleated skirt and a black sleeveless jumper dotted in white. The short coat that completes the costume is in black bound with white. Taffeta plaided boldly in black and white is the effective fabric of the second suit. The deep pleats of its skirt are stitched to knee length, and its jacket is tailored with lapels and lined with the white silk crepe of the blouse.

Vogue will be glad to assist in solving individual problems of dress. Inquiries may be made to The Washington Post and must be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Wired Radio Found Better Than Spaced

Remarkable Efficiency Is Found in Demonstrations Over Telephone and Power Cables, Gen. Squier Says.

The remarkable efficiency of wired radio as compared to the present space radio is demonstrated, according to Gen. George O. Squier, U. S. A., retired, based on information just received from Freeport, Ill., where the system is being tried out. Five watts of energy have been found sufficient, Gen. Squier is informed, to saturate satisfactorily 6,000 cable pairs. This power is less than a tenth of that used in the average electric bulb socket.

There are two kinds of wired radio in Gen. Squier's scheme; the kind that is connected with the telephone wires and the sort that uses the electric power wires. The former is being tried in Freeport and the latter, he says, is to go into operation shortly in Cleveland. By fall the system may be installed in Washington and shortly afterward it will be spread to other parts of the country.

The latest form of receiving set designed and constructed by the Kellogg Switchboard & Supply Co., of Chicago, was used in the Freeport tests. It comprises three tubes under a special circuit arrangement of their own design. The first is the new A. C. shield grid tube, the second a power detector, and the third an audio amplifier with an undistorted power output of approximately 1½ watts, sufficient to operate a dynamic speaker.

The range of choice in programs is limited to three stations or systems, but it is expected to make these the best obtainable. No tuning is required, the selection of one of these programs being made simply by throwing a switch or pressing a button.

Volume control is provided and static and fading are eliminated. There are no hetorodyne effects, seasonal changes nor day and night variations which are inherent in space radio.

"The novelty of the radio has worn off now," Gen. Squier said, "and the listener is no longer satisfied with dallying about on the dial trying to get Cuba or some far Western station just to say that he did. Quality in programs and good reception are the first demands."

Gen. Squier admitted that it was difficult for some listeners to give up their belief that radio could only come through the air and that wired radio is an imposter. He called attention to the fact, however, that approximately 95 per cent of the radio transmission is over wires now, that is from the main studio of a chain system to its several stations.

"We are merely filling in the other 5 per cent with wire," he added.

The greatest result Gen. Squier expects from his wired radio, however, is not just merely cheaper and better operation. His "pet theory" just now is that it will make the superuniversity, which he proposed recently, a reality.

Encouraged by the rapidity with which Secretary of the Interior Wilbur seized upon the idea of governmental promotion of education through the air and assured that President Hoover is heartily in favor of putting the plan through during his administration, Gen. Squier believes that it will be only a matter of a few years before the waste of duplication of teaching staffs will be eliminated by providing courses of instruction from the best teachers available over huge wired radio chains.

"By this means, education will not stop in the prime of a young man's life but will go until the man's death," Gen. Squier suggested. "The farmer as well as the resident of the largest city will be able to hear lectures by the best minds of our State universities and departments at Washington. The day of the untrained rural school teacher will be at an end."

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

JUNE 28.

THE creator of the famous Helen and Warren characters in the syndicated stories which appear in newspapers all over the country, Mabel Herbert Urner, was born this day, 1881, in Cincinnati. Her real name is Mrs. Lathrop Colgate Harper.

Besides writing the Helen and Warren stories, Mrs. Urner has written "The Journal of a Neglected Wife," "The Price Inevitable" and "The Woman Alone." Her hobby is the collecting of embroidery work of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

Viola Dana, famous star of the stage and silver screen, was born this day, 1900. She has been on the stage since childhood. She made her first appearance on the screen when she was only 11 years old. One of her biggest hits was in "The Poor Little Rich Girl." She is the sister of Shirley Mason.

Jane Regny INTERPRETS the MODE

Smart beige sports dress combining flat material and pleated incrustations; wooden buckle. (Courtesy of Jane Regny, Paris.)

THE classic tailleur which, with the sports dress, has been the last to yield to the movement toward flaring lines and fullness, is beginning to capitulate. During several seasons in which the straight line has been losing ground steadily, the tailleur and the sports dress have held to it firmly. The originality expressed in tailleurs has been largely one of detail and fabric rather than basic line.

Now, however, we are beginning to see the first signs of a decided change in both tailleurs and sports wear.

The tailleur, which has held rigidly to a classic and not unattractive straight slimness, begins to show curves!

• • • •

The jacquettes, which are showing more and more fantasy, commence on a few models to show volant effects around the bottom, which give somewhat the effect of a bask. The skirts, too, are yielding to the godet influence and sometimes show godets all around, sometimes on the sides only. The hemline is losing its evenness and showing a tendency toward the back-dipping effect.

Of sports wear, much the same can be said. The straight skirt, often pleated, is giving way to the flaring line, and godets are making their appearance on many models.

Thus does the evolution of a silhouette begin to near completion!

Jane Regny and sports wear—the two spell elegance and chic!

Quiet elegance, as expressed in the beige jersey frock I illustrated for you today, with its pleated incrustations in a geometrical design. Today's frock will show you why sports wear will never go out of vogue.

• • • •

For teas and informal dinners, the closely-fitting spangled hats are truly a delight, and fill a long-felt want. Well achieved in amber spangles for blondes, bronze for auburn-haired beauties, and black for brunettes, there seems to be some method in their delightful madness!

• • • •

Did we ever tell you about the fun we had in Paris designing and having made some very special kind of evening hats? One was a tiny bonnet-shaped thing, high on the forehead like my coiffeur, made of very stiff and heavy dull gold lace. And, sh-h-h-h-h, we had evening slippers made to match it!

The other was of black tulle, with rows and rows of silver braid sewn on very flat in just the direction of the coiffure.

The Perfect Bloomer!

A form-fitting bloomer, ingenuously cut on the bias to eliminate any vestige of surplus material! That's what we tell you how to make in this week's illustrated leaflet for which you may send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post. And, sh-h-h-h, it takes just one yard of material!

The weekly fashion letter in The Sunday Post contains much of interest. Be sure to see it.

HOLDINGS INCREASED IN DISCOUNTED BILLS

Federal Reserve Board Also Reports Expansion in Reserve Deposits.

GAS LIGHT STOCK SOARS

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Increases of $57,600,000 in holdings of discounted bills and of $10,100,000 in Government securities and a decrease of $4,200,000 in bills bought in open market were shown yesterday in the consolidated statement of condition of the Federal Reserve Banks on June 26, announced by the Federal Reserve Board.

Member bank reserve deposits increased $52,000,000; Government deposits, $2,200,000; cash reserves, $25,900,000, and Federal Reserve note circulation, $9,300,000. Total bills and securities were $53,700,000 above the amount held on June 19.

Holdings on discounted bills increased $65,900,000 at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, $13,600,000 at Philadelphia, and $6,800,000 at Boston, and declined $13,900,000 at Chicago, $9,000,000 at San Francisco, $6,100,000 at Kansas City, and $5,500,000 at Atlanta. The system's holdings of bills bought in open market decreased $4,200,000, while holdings of Treasury notes increased $9,000,000, and of Treasury certificates, $1,000,000.

Federal Reserve note circulation declined $2,300,000 at Atlanta and increased $6,900,000 at Cleveland, $2,700,000 at Philadelphia, $1,500,000 at Chicago, and $9,300,000 at all Federal Reserve Banks.

The statement on the condition of weekly reporting member banks in central reserve cities showed a total of $3,542,000,000 in loans on securities to brokers and dealers, an increase of $122,000,000 over the week ended June 19, and of $364,000,000 over the corresponding period in 1928.

Loans for own account totaled $1,038,000,000, and represented a gain of $155,000,000 over the preceding week and one of $97,000,000 over the comparative period a year ago.

Loans for account of out-of-town banks aggregated $1,536,000,000. This was a decrease of $56,000,000 under the preceding week, but an advance of $53,000,000 above the similar period last year.

Loans for account of others, $2,969,000,000, were an increase of $24,000,000 over the week before and one of $1,215,000,000 over the week ended June 27, 1928. Because of the national holiday next Thursday, the statements of condition of weekly reporting member banks in central reserve cities and of the condition of Federal Reserve banks will be issued on Friday, July 5.

Gas Light Stock at New High.

A new high for Washington Gas Light stock was the sole feature of a quiet and irregular market on the Washington Stock Exchange yesterday, twenty shares of this stock selling at 125½, a point-and-a-half rise from last sale price and a new all-time high mark in the issue. The market closed with 124½ bid and 126 asked for the stock.

Volume of bond transactions, $4,700, marked a recession of $6,000 from Wednesday and a 445-share aggregate of stock sales, a falling off of 34 shares from the previous session.

There were small sales of Capital Traction at 92¾, fractional advance; Washington Railway & Electric preferred at 96, last sale price; Barber & Ross common at 19, last sale price; Federal-American Co. common at 47½, fractional rise; Merchants Transfer & Storage Co. common at 120, seven-point decline, and Potomac Electric 5½ per cent preferred at 107, fractional gain. Federal-American National Bank was out at 352.

National Mortgage & Investment preferred led in trading volume, 300 shares changing hands at 4½, fractional increase. Sales of 22 shares of Mergenthaler Linotype at fractional reactions from 105 were also listed.

In the bond division, two lots of Washington Gas 5s totaling $2,000 transferred at 99⅛, fractional decrease, while $1,000 of the A bonds were sold at 101, fractional recession. A $200 lot of the Bs traded at 103, point fall. A $500 lot of Washington Railway & Electric 4s at fractional decline from 86¼ and a $1,000 one of Potomac Electric Cons. 5s at 100¾, fractional loss, were also sold.

Tells of Seaboard's Problem.

The problem of the Seaboard Air Line Railway Co. at the moment is not primarily that of having earnings sufficient to meet fixed charges, but rather the necessity of providing funds for the substantial debt maturities of the early future, particularly those of 1930 and 1931, says Robert L. Nutt, chairman of the board, in a letter to holders of the road's common and preferred stocks and 5 per cent adjustment bonds.

Mr. Nutt points out the danger that the encouraging increase in operating revenues being reported by the company may cause some holders of the company's adjustment bonds to believe a continuation of this increase assures the road's prosperity as to remove the need of consummating the beneficial program proposed under the reorganization plan. A careful consideration of the pertinent facts, he indicates, will show this to be a mistaken attitude:

Record Gross Earnings Reported.

Record gross earnings and other income of $52,618,711 are reported by the Associated Gas & Electric System in a consolidated statement of earnings and expenses of its properties since dates of acquisition for the twelve months ended April 30, 1929.

This compares with $40,900,262 in the corresponding twelve months of the preceding year, an increase of $11,718,440 or 29 per cent. These figures do not include any earnings from Rochester General properties acquired since the above date. After deducting operating expenses, maintenance, all taxes, &c. net earnings remained of $23,818,643 as against $18,141,598, an increase of $5,677,045, or 31 per cent.

Anaconda Expected to Benefit.

In an analysis of Anaconda Copper Mining Co., Hornblower & Weeks point out that the company is certain to benefit from the diversified industrial demand for copper and many electrification projects now being carried out, which should assure a steady and increasing demand for the metal over the next five years.

New Rio de Janeiro Offering.

Offering of a new issue of $6,000,000, State of Rio de Janeiro, United States of Brazil, external 30-year 6½ per cent secured sinking fund gold bonds of 1929 dated January 1, 1929, and due January 1, 1959, at 91½ and accrued interest with yield to maturity of 7.20 per cent, is announced today by E. H. Rollins & Sons, Bancamerica-Blair Corp., Blyth & Co. and J. G. White & Co., Inc.

The proceeds of this loan will be used for retiring the external 5 per cent sterling loan of 1912, an extensive sanitation and colonization program, construction of a canal to afford inland transportation and the building of roads.

Executive Council Elected.

At a meeting of the auditors' section, District of Columbia Bankers Association, last night at Olney Inn, the following executive council was elected for the new administrative year: Raymond G. Marx, Riggs National Bank; J. Dann Faber, American Security & Trust Co.; Arthur J. Linn, Federal-American National Bank; Ralph Endicott, Washington Loan & Trust Co; William M. Harris, Lincoln National Bank. Officers elected were Mr. Marx, chairman; Mr. Endicott, vice chairman, and Mr. Linn, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Faber, retiring chairman, was presented with a silver tray.

Bank Employes' Pay Increased.

Directors of the Woodridge-Langdon Bank have declared the usual semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent and an extra dividend of 1 per cent, payable on July 15, 1929, to stockholders of record on June 30, 1929. Substantial increases in the salaries of the employes of the bank were also granted.

Lions Hear Bealer Talk On Chain Store History

History of the chain store movement was described to the Lions Club yesterday in the Mayflower by Pierre M. Bealer, retired official of the A. & P. Tea Co. He told of the founding of the first group of chain stores in 1859 by George Huntington Hartford and of subsequent developments. The talk was one of a series of addresses by members on sidelights of various fields of business.

Edward Arnold and Roger Pryor, members of the National Theater Players, were guests of the club. Mrs. Edward Arnold sang. President Alfred H. Lawson announced that Robert L. McKeever, former president of the local club, who was chosen third vice president of the Lions International at a convention in Louisville recently, will render a report at next week's meeting.

CIVIL WAR IN CHINA NOW SEEMS BALKED

YEN'S DEPARTURE HINTED

Shanghai, China, June 27 (A.P.).—What appeared a month ago to be certain war between the Nationalist government and Feng Yu-Hsiang and a group comprising the last faction of militarists in the opposition, now appears dissipated through the reported decision of Feng to go abroad to "investigate foreign conditions."

While this reported development on its face value gives the Nationalist government a tremendous forward step in its campaign of unification of the country, the situation of entire China north of the Yangtse is considered still in a state of extreme flux, with the next few days likely to reveal authentic reactions.

It is believed by observers that if Feng should go abroad, this act would represent but a step in the real activities which have been going on for the past month, in which Chaing Kai-Shek, president of the Nationalist government, has displayed ability termed as "uncanny," in straightening out the difficulties between Feng and the central government.

It was announced that Feng would turn over all his armies and dominions to Yen Hsi-Shan, known as the model governor of Shansi Province. Yen is declared to be working with the Nationalists, while developments even indicate that he also is planning to leave China in event of which the Nationalist government directly and bloodlessly would take over the vast northwest areas which remain the last considerable territories in which the Nationalist government authority is not established.

For the past three weeks the Nationalist government has been silent concerning developments, although it was known that Chiang Kai-Shek and his associates were striving in every way to bring pressure against Feng in order to oust him from the northwest without resorting to arms.

In some quarters, inclined to question Feng's decision to leave, there is a tendency to wonder whether Feng will not reappear later in northwest China in an effort to regain the influence which he apparently has lost.

Autoist Escapes Death From Mystery Bullet

H. Robert Fetteroll, of New York City, stopping at the Annapolis Hotel, reported to police headquarters last night that while driving his automobile in front of 3523 Sixteenth street northwest, earlier in the evening, a bullet fired by an unidentified person crashed through the windshield of his car.

Despite the shattering of the windshield, Fetteroll was uninjured. Police of the Thirteenth Precinct were ordered to investigate, although it is believed probable that the bullet was accidentally fired in Fetteroll's direction by a boy playing with a rifle.

Two Birmingham Banks Are Closed

Affairs of Institutions Are Taken Over by State Department.

Birmingham, Ala., June 27 (A.P.).—Officials of the State banking department today had taken over the affairs of two banks here while officials of one of the institutions had issued a statement to the effect that "every dollar in the bank will be safe."

The Avondale Bank & Savings Co., a house of more than ten years standing, failed to open for business this morning. State Superintendent of Banks C. E. Thomas issued a statement during the day in which he said the institution closed because of inability to realize on assets.

Several hours after the closing of the Avondale Bank was announced, large depositors began withdrawing from the City Bank & Trust Co., resulting in an order by the board of directors to close shortly after noon. J. B. Lassiter, of Birmingham, is president of both banks.

Pennsylvania Railroad Makes Personnel Shifts

Changes in the personnel of the local office of the Pennsylvania Railroad were made in a partial realignment of the system's traffic organization announced yesterday.

A. B. Smith, division freight agent at Cleveland, Ohio, becomes general passenger agent at Washington, succeeding O. E. McCullough, who is transferred to Chicago as passenger traffic manager. H. A. Karr is appointed to the post of division passenger agent at Washington.

Action to Restrain Levee Work Loses

Injunction Is Denied Group in Suit Against U. S. River Project.

St. Louis, June 27 (A.P.).—An application for an injunction to restrain the Federal Government from proceeding with the setback levee in connection with the Mississippi River floodway between Birds Point and New Madrid, Mo., until the Government deposited $15,000,000 to assure land owners full compensation for damages, was denied today by Federal Judge Charles B. Faris.

The court said in the decision that the Constitution provided that compensation must be given for all lands taken by the Government. However, construction of the setback levee, the court held, will do no harm to the land in the floodway between the levee and the river.

The opinion said no harm will be done until the existing levee following the river shore is lowered in height as the "fuse plug" for overflow of floodwaters. If the Government has not fully compensated land owners in the district by the time to establish the fuse plug, the court added, an injunction against construction of the plug will be proper.

Man Badly Injured in Fall.

William Wiltshire, 61 years old, of 1367 East Capitol street, suffered a possible fracture of the skull, a fracture of the nose and lacerations of the scalp when he was said to have fallen on the pavement in front of his home. Fifth Precinct officers, charging him with intoxication, removed him to Gallinger Hospital, where his condition was reported as improved.

THROUGH THICK and THIN

the par value of Shannon & Luchs, Inc. First Mortgage Notes has always been 100

And now, for the reinvestment of your July Funds, we recommend a New Issue which yields a Net Annual Return of 6%.

THIS fact is of vital importance to you, since in this market, where values are as variable as the weather, it is a difficult task to prudently choose a medium for reinvestment of your July funds which will afford the largest possible return consistent with absolute safety which you demand.

This new issue of Preferred First Mortgage Notes is secured by a splendid new apartment edifice now nearing completion in one of Washington's most aristocratic and desirable sections. The issue of Shannon & Luchs First Mortgage Real Estate Notes yields a net annual return of 6%.

By a NET INVESTMENT we mean that the owners of the securing property agree to refund, upon application, the District of Columbia Intangible Tax of one-half of 1%. Thus this investment insures a net annual return of 6%.

The value of this building, after a very careful and conservative estimate made by our staff of experts, has been determined to be $500,000. This valuation includes the site and the apartment building. The amount of the First Mortgage Loan is $300,000, or 60% of the value of the property, so for every dollar invested in 6% Real Estate Notes secured by this splendid building there is a direct real estate security of more than $1.66.

The annual rentals from the building will be approximately $70,000. After operating expenses are deducted the net earnings of the building will be equal to more than three times the annual interest charges on the First Mortgage Notes.

Investors in these notes will be fully protected against loss through fire and other causes. Title to the property is guaranteed by the District Title Insurance Company, The Lawyers' Title Insurance Company, and the Washington Title Insurance Company. Suitable bond has already been posted for completion of the building in accordance with the plans.

The supervision of this apartment residence will be in the hands of the Property Management Department of Shannon & Luchs, Inc. A careful analysis of the property has been made and a rental schedule established which is so reasonable as to assure prompt occupancy. This element, which is an important one, and the environment and character of the building have already attracted many applications for suites at the date of completion.

Associated Gas and Electric System

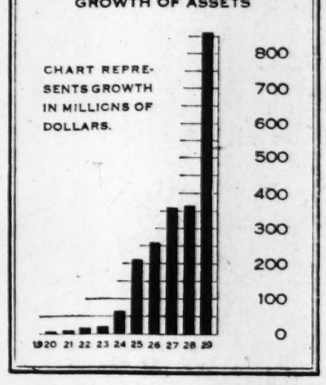
A Major Public Utility System with

Assets of $800,000,000

EXTENSIVE hydro-electric developments and steam generating plants, gas plants and mains, thousands of miles of transmission and distribution lines—altogether the ASSOCIATED SYSTEM controls income producing assets valued at more than $800,000,000.

Located in 18 States, the three Maritime Provinces of Canada, and throughout the Philippine Islands, the ASSOCIATED SYSTEM serves an estimated population of 5,300,000 in over 2,200 communities.

This widespread distribution of properties coupled with the essential nature of the service and its diversified uses contribute to the stability of earnings which have increased steadily from year to year. During the twelve months ended March 31, 1929 net earnings increased 25%.



An investment in ASSOCIATED securities carries with it an opportunity to share in the increasing earnings of the company and in the forward march of the electric light and power industry as well.

"Rights" to subscribe at $42 per share to additional Class A Stock of Associated Gas and Electric Company have been mailed to June 14th holders of record. This is considerably less than the current market price.

Subscribers may pay out of income as follows: Upon subscription, $10 per share; Oct. 15, 1929, $16; Jan. 15, 1930, $16. Interest at the rate of 6% per annum will be allowed on all payments from date of receipt to the date when dividends begin to accrue on the Class A Stock.

A copy of the colored map demonstrating the growth possibilities of the territories served, and a copy of the Annual Report, will be sent to you on request.

BRISK RISE HALTED BY READJUSTMENT

OILS DISPLAY STRENGTH

New York, June 27 (A.P.).—Extensive readjustment of speculative accounts, prior to the issuance of the weekly statement on brokers' loans, checked a brisk rally in today's stock market, leaving final quotations irregular but mainly higher. The commodity markets were reactionary, wheat and corn losing about 2 and 1½ cents a bushel, respectively, on reports of better weather while cotton closed 40 cents a bale higher to 40 cents a bale lower.

Neither the Bank of England nor the New York Federal Reserve Bank made any change in discount rates, although additional purchases of gold in London for British and American account were announced during the day. Call money held steady at 10 per cent for the third successive day although the offerings were not as large as yesterday. Time money, commercial and bankers' acceptance markets were quiet with rates unchanged.

Total sales fell just short of the 4,000,000 share mark with both the Associated Press, railroad and public utility indices in new high ground for the year. The industrial index showed a small fractional decline.

Brokers' Loans Increase.

Brokers loans increased $122,000,000 to $5,542,000,000, which is still well below the high record of $5,793,000,000 established on March 20. New York bankers increased their loans by about $155,000,000 while out-of-town banks withdrew $56,000,000, the balance of the gain being accounted for by loans of corporations and foreign banks.

The market opened with an outburst of strength and moved ahead rather steadily until the late afternoon when heavy profit-taking developed in anticipation of a large increase in brokers' loans. Some of the selling also was inspired by the belief that the market was entitled to a temporary set-back after the rather sustained advance of the last week.

Publication of another series of favorable May railroad statements, declarations of extra dividends by the Barnsdall and Jersey Central Railroad Companies and unconfirmed reports that investments trusts were increasing their portfolios of common stock all helped to create bullish sentiment.

"Merger" Shares Sell Off

The traditional "selling on the good news," followed the announcement of the Curtiss-Wright merger. Curtiss closing 3¼ points lower at 163¾ after having crossed 170 while Wright showed a net loss of 7¾ at 132½ after having sold 1½ points below that figure. Heaviness of these issues, combined with a sharp break in United Aircraft stocks, tended to unsettling market in the late trading.

Oil shares showed signs of strength for the first time this week, with buying influenced by the extra dividends on Barnsdall and an increase of more than 60 per cent in Sinclair's net income in the first five months of the year. Atlantic Refining touched a new high at 73. Houston Oil closed 3 points higher and Mexican Seaboard, which has been under steady accumulation yesterday on rumors of important developments in Kettlemen Hills, closed a point higher.

New High Records Established.

New high records were established by Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, International Telephone, North American Co., Commercial Solvents, Mathieson Alkali, Allied Chemical, Newport Co., Underwood Elliott Fisher, General Electric, Westinghouse, Sharon Steel Hoop, Morrell & Co., American Bank Note, Ludlum Steel, Atchison, New York Central and Chesapeake & Ohio.

Auburn Auto broke 17 points and rallied 6½. Allis Chalmers, American Water Works, Timken Roller Bearing and Westvaco Chlorine lost 3 to nearly 6 points. U. S. Steel common, Anaconda, General Motors, Chrysler and some of the other favorites lost a point or so. The Chicago & Alton issues sank to new low levels for the year.

Establishment of a new high for the year by French francs was the only development of consequence in the quiet foreign exchange trading.

BOND PRICES STEADY AS TRADING EXPANDS

FEDERAL GROUP IS QUIET

New York, June 27 (A.P.).—The bond market steadied today as the support given to the convertibles was extended in lesser degree the representative rails and utilities. Issues having stock options sold higher, but both their volume and their net advances fell short of the figures made in Wednesday's session. After a dull morning monopolized by the convertibles, interest in the general list quickened somewhat and the afternoon brought out buying in several pivotal bonds, mostly rails. Atchison general 4s, which had dipped ⅜, recovered virtually all of their loss Rock Island 4½s, Chicago & Northwestern 4½s, Great Northern 7s, New York Central debenture 4s and general 3½s, St. Louis & Southwestern Consolidated 4s, Baltimore & Ohio Refunding 5s and Denver & Rio Grande general 5s were firm to stronger on the appearance of fair buying orders. Central Railroad of New Jersey 5s, moving against the upward trend, sold off 3 points to a new 1929 low of 105.

Public Service of New Jersey 4½s stood out in the convertible section with a net gain of 6 points, and at the price of 244 were at a new high. The active telephone issues, International and American 4½s gained a point each, although their respective final quotations of 136½ and 143 were slightly below the rest of the day. Atchison 4½s managed to keep in high ground most of the day and closed at a new peak of 126¾ for a net gain of ¾.

The attention paid to utility stocks overflowed to some extent into the bond list and brought nominal gains to Columbia Gas & Electric 5s, Kansas Gas & Electric 6s, Rochester Gas & Electric 7s, North American Edison 5½s, Pacific Gas & Electric 5s and New Orleans Public Service 5s, most of which held their advances at the close.

Industrials moved sluggishly and new lows appeared in National Radiator 6½s and Gotham Silk Hosiery 6s. Steel bonds held their recent firmness.

Oil company securities showed irregularity on an improved volume. Pierce Oil 8s, Sinclair Consolidated 7s and 6½s and Standard of New York 4½s sold off fractionally, while Standard of New Jersey 5s overcame an early loss and finished slightly higher.

Chilean obligations met the most extensive selling in the foreign list as a new $20,000,000 issue of Chile Mortgage Bank 6s was publicly offered at 92. Declines in other issues of this series and in the government bonds ranged from ½ to 2½ points. Pierni of Italy 7s, convertible, soared 5¾ as the strength of the stock was maintained.

United States Government securities showed an almost complete lack of interest, except in the Fourth Liberty 4¼s. Price changes in all were minute.

SCHMELING POUNDS OUT DECISION OVER PAULINO; WASHINGTON GOLFERS FARE POORLY IN U. S. OPEN

MACKENZIE AND VOIGT IN RUNNING BUT HOPE IS DIM FOR TWO PROS

McLeod, With 84, and Larkin, With 82, Far Behind Leaders.

Mackenzie Steady in Carding 78; Voigt Shoots a 79.

Special to The Washington Post.

MAMARONECK, N. Y., June 27.—The flat terrain and the well-trapped greens and fairways of the Winged Foot Golf Club's west course, where the national open golf tournament began at an early hour this morning, took a heavy toll of the golfers of the Washington region who teed off today for the first eighteen holes of their quest for the national title.

Roland Mackenzie, whose home course is the Columbia Country Club, led the Washington contingent home with the not brilliant but not hopeless score of 36—42—78. George Voigt, another amateur, who now plays from the North Hills Golf Club, of New York, but who is a Washingtonian in spirit if not in registration, trailed him closely with a 37—42—79.

Freddy McLeod, the doughty little professional veteran from Columbia, scored a 40—42—82, while Gene Larkin, assistant pro at Chevy Chase, was two strokes behind McLeod with a 45—39—84.

McLeod and Larkin Facing Struggle to Survive.

With scores what they were today, Mackenzie will be one of the 60 low scorers at the end of 36 holes who will compete for the national title over 36 holes on Saturday. Less than 40 are ahead of him in the first day's scoring, and a second round no better than today's should place him in the select circle. With anything save a poor round tomorrow, George Voigt is also a likely qualifier.

Freddie McLeod, who was laughing at the trailers from a position well up in the front ranks a year ago when the national open was played at Olympia Fields in Chicago, will be required to play the good golf of which he is capable tomorrow if he is to be one of the championship contestants. As for Larkin, he must play just two strokes better than what would be a good round for McLeod to get back into the running.

Mackenzie Plays Steadily to Equal Par on First Nine.

Mackenzie kept his score down today by playing steady golf. In his 18 holes he scored a single birdie, a 3 on the 439-yard eighth hole, but for the first 14 holes he went a stroke over par only twice. This performance gave him a 36 for his first nine holes, exact par figures and gave him par on eleven of the 18 holes and a stroke better than par on one. On the fourth a 406-yard par four hole which is surrounded by an irritating belt of tall trees, he was in difficulty off the tee when he sliced his tee shot, and when, although he was down with two putts, he required three strokes to reach the green. It was his only mishap out of the nine holes.

The short 213-yard thirteenth broke his stride again, just as it did that of many of the others in the field, and Beger Is Beaten, 2 Up, by Bannerot After Stern Battle.

DEAL, N. J., June 27 (A.P.).—Maurice McCarthy, jr., of Georgetown, defendant champion in the national intercollegiate golf tournament here, and Lester Bolstad, of Minnesota, Big Ten title-holder, both were eliminated today by the golfing wizardry of Tommy Aycock, a slender, bespectacled Yale student from Jacksonville, Fla.

Aycock, who holds the amateur championship of his home State, shot 33 holes over the difficult Hollywood Golf Club links in just one stroke over par to put out McCarthy by one up in the morning 18-hole round and then to account for Bolstad, 4 and 3 in the afternoon.

Assuring Yale its first individual championship since 1924 when Dexter Cummings won the crown, a team mate, Marshall Forrest, of Lowell, Mass., came through to the final in the other half of the draw and will meet the Amazing Tommy in the 36-hole battle for the title tomorrow.

Forrest, the new president of the Intercollegiate Golf Association, defeated Don Moe, of the University of Oregon, 1 up, in the morning and then proceeded to defeat a fellow Yale man, Fred Bannerot, 4 and 3, in the semi-finals. Bannerot defeated J. H. Beger, of Georgetown, 2 up.

Champion Gives Aycock Stern Battle.

After Aycock had gone dormie 2 by virtue of his own deadly shooting and Mac's unsteady putting, the champion stayed in the running by winning the seventeenth with a birdie 2, his 40-foot putt going down after caroming off his opponent's ball a foot from the hole.

There was no such luck on the home hole where Mac's 35-footer hung on the lip of the cup and the best he could get was a half in 4.

Giants Beat Phils, 9-3; Sothern Slams Homer

New York, June 27 (A.P.).—The Giants defeated the Phillies by 9 to 3 here today in the opening game of a series of five engagements. This ran the New York string against the Phils to eleven out of twelve on the season. In only one of these games have the Giants scored fewer than eight runs.

The home team scored three unearned runs in the first after the side should have been retired, but thereafter hit Roy hard for its markers. Sothern and Leach featured with home runs. Terry made his 100th hit, a mark yet reached by no other big leaguer.

MACKS DOWN YANKEES, 6 TO 3

Champions Drop to 3d Place; Hoyt Hard Hit in Pinches.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27 (A.P.).—The Athletics clubbed Waite Hoyt hard in the pinches here today to take the first game of the series from the Yankees by a score of 6 to 3. The victory increased the lead of the Mackmen over the champions to 11½ games, and dropped the Yankees into third place. The Browns, victorious over Chicago, moved into second place, and remained 10½ games behind the leaders. The current series calls for two more games.

Nats-Giants Series In South Discontinued

There will be no spring series between the Nationals and the Giants, it was learned yesterday.

The New York National League team will take on the Chicago White Sox in 1930 and will probably play them a series of games in Mexico.

MacBeth Again Heads District Soccer League

In a surprisingly peaceful meeting the Washington and Southeastern District Soccer Association elected officers last night for the 1929-30 season. John MacBeth was reelected president, Jess Burton was elected vice president, Richard S. Tennyson secretary and Robert Bruce treasurer, completing the official body.

John Kremelmeyer, Dick Hodge and Martin Grieve were named delegates at large. Of the above-named officials Kremelmeyer, Burton and Tennyson did not serve last year.

Nats Are Held To 5 Hits by Morris

Red Sox Win, 4-1, by Bunching Hits Off Liska's Shoots.

Gerber's Fielding Is Sensational, Cutting Off Runs.

Special to The Washington Post.

BOSTON, Mass., June 27.—Big Ed Morris snapped out of his pitching slump and held Washington to five hits in the home-coming game of the Red Sox at Fenway Park today. This brand of pitching, coupled with the spectacular fielding of Walter Gerber at second base and the timely hitting of Russ Scarritt and Ken Williams gave the home heroes a clean-cut 4-to-1 victory.

Williams and Scarritt made five of the eight home hits. Gerber, a new choice for second base duty, cut off three Washington drives that seemed on the way to become hits. He also went far back to the right field foul line to snag a looper in the seventh with two Washington runs on the bases.

On the second base side he came up with hot ones all afternoon and when the totals were completed it was discovered he had seven assists and a putout. Not one of his chances was actually routine.

Morris Pitches Tight Ball in Pinches.

Morris wavered at times and put Washington runners on the bases, but on the whole his pitching was tight in the pinches. He gave four bases on balls, but none of them helped the Nats to their lonely run. Williams was the leading Boston hitter with a double to the left center field bank, a triple against the center field bleachers and a hard hit single in four times at bat. Scarritt made a double and a single, and together these boys had a hand in every Red Sox run.

The first came in the fifth, when Russell and Williams doubled in succession, thereby giving young Adolph Liska, the Nats' underhanded right-hander, notice of a somewhat unpleasant afternoon.

In the third Bob Reeves walked with none out, went to third on Rhyne's hit-and-run single through shortstop, hesitated while Williams rolled out and scored on Scarritt's tap toward first base.

Ed Morris looked at four bad ones to start the home fifth. He was forced by Reeves, who went to second on Rhyne's infield hit. Came Mr. Williams with a screeching triple to right center and Mr. Scarritt with a single off Liska's glove.

Gerber Robs Barnes of Hit, Halting Nats' Rally.

The Nats seemed on the point of breaking loose early in the game but they did no real business until the sixth, which Joe Judge opened with a double to left center. He went to third when Goslin hoisted a fly to Williams, which Ken took far back of normal position, and scored on a hot single to center field by Buddy Myer.

The following inning, after Reeves had thrown out Bluege, Morris got into serious trouble but was rescued through the brilliant Gerber fielding. Edward walked Cronin and Tate singled to left. Manager Johnson apparently thought that the break had come, for he sent Stewart in to run for Tate and inserted Barnes to bat for Liska. Barnes connected fiercely and the ball shot like a rock to the right of second base. Gerber went a mile for it, trapped it on the short hop and tossed to Rhyne for a force out as Cronin went to third.

Joe Judge hooked a little fly into the right field sector and with Bill Barrett it seemed destined to fall safe with Cronin and Barnes tearing around the bases. But Gerber, in some unexplained manner, got under it almost on the foul line. Moreover, he held on to it and thus terminated the Nats' menace.

Gerber made two more brilliant stops in the vicinity of second base, robbing Cronin in the fifth and West in the sixth after the Nats had scored their run.

45,000 SEE YOUNG GERMAN BATTER BASQUE TO NEAR FINISH IN LATE ROUNDS OF SLOW, MAULING MATCH

THE FIGHT ROUND BY ROUND

(Associated Press.)

ROUND ONE—Paulino walked out carefully, his body bent and arms folded across his head to meet Schmeling's pawing left jabs. Max backed away and then put his head down to Paulino's and they tried to cuff each other from deep cover as Maxie adopted the Spaniard's style and danced in front of him with his own arms forming a protecting barrier. Max forced the fighting in the center of the ring, pecking at Paulino's head with his left. Uscudun seemed content to lean in and wait, testing the power of the German's heavy runs. He took three solid right cracks on the head before loosing a wild left hook that missed Maxie by a foot. They put their heads together again and pawed for openings, while the crowd murmured disapproval at the bell.

ROUND TWO—They went back to a slow and desultory pace that seemed to displease the customers. They leaned upon each other and smote at protected heads and sides. Schmeling lifted a right uppercut through the maze of Paulino's gloves and arms and bobbed the Spaniard's head back. The Basque shook off some of his caution, bulled into Schmeling and drove two lefts to the body. Taking a leaf from Paulino's book, the German, too, kept his arms close to home for protection and there was little damage as they mauled in close. Schmeling stood up straight and dropped two left hooks on Paulino's jaw. The Spaniard could not seem to get the range, but he still bored at Schmeling's gloves as the bell sounded and the boos increased.

ROUND THREE—Max came out apparently full of fire and determination to get somewhere. He bounced half a dozen straight lefts off Paulino's granite countenance and dropped over a short right. Paulino never faltered as Max bounced his famous right on the swarthy one's chin and came back with three hooks that seeped into Schmeling's body. The pace increased. As Paulino swatted freely, trading his short hooks to the head for Schmeling's darting right. The Spaniard grew careless and dropped his guard and Schmeling whaled both hands to the head. Max winced as Paulino's sweeping left hook dropped low, but he made no protest as the bell sounded.

ROUND FOUR—The Spaniard again seemed content to let Schmeling carry the offensive, biding his time and bobbing under what punches he could. The others took a pounding on the head and body but seemed to make no impression on him. He seemed to be waiting as Schmeling stepped around him in brisk fashion, pecking with lefts and dropping over occasional rights that mostly were blocked. They bent over with their heads together and poked upward at each other's chin. Through the tangle of chins and arms, Max wrestled a bit while their arms were locked and threw Paulino off balance. The Spaniard kept his balance and came back unperturbed, still apparently holding his fire at the proper moment.

ROUND FIVE—It seemed as though Schmeling would have to do all the fighting until backed to the ropes and save the Spaniard an opening. Paulino bounced a left hook off Schmeling's chin, but could gain no further advantage as they slugged and mauled again with their heads and gloves bunched together. Paulino came out of his spell again, but his sweeping left and right hooks whistled harmlessly over Schmeling's head. Max got a bit impatient poking at Paulino's gloves and elbows and opened up with both hands to the Spaniard's forehead. Paulino looped a left hook through the punches and brought up his right to the chin at close quarters. He went to his corner at the bell with a trickle of blood seeping from one nostril.

ROUND SIX—Paulino rushed the limber German to the ropes and for the first time the slow, draggy pace broke out into a real hot scrimmage. They stood apart at the tramp and cracked at each other's head. Paulino boomed a half dozen short lefts into Schmeling's body but Max cracked two solid rights on the Basque's chin. They seemed to catch the fighting fever, however, and punched freely. Paulino looped his hands in short arcs at Schmeling's head while Schmeling threw everything he had behind his right hand. Paulino looped over a long overhand left to the chin as the bell rang.

ROUND SEVEN—The inevitable deadlock, head and arms locked together into an almost impenetrable barrier, broke up again into a flurry of free punches. Schmeling opened up straight, the Basque ducking and whanged across a left hook to the head, his best punch of the fight so far. Max drew back from the next two, as they stood flat-footed by the ropes, and drilled two clean rights into the Spaniard's chin. It was time to get together again and they locked arms and wrestled, punching and mauling in turn as each got an arm free. They cuffed and tore to the head and body at the ropes, neither doing much damage, while the crowd became more insistent that they set down to business and slug.

ROUND EIGHT—Schmeling went back to the job of wearing down this block of human granite from the Spanish pyrenees. He slashed and cut at Paulino's swaying, arm-bound head until Paulino let drive with a left and right hook that came from way back. They barely glanced off the German's head. Then Uscudun cuffed Schmeling's head in a neutral corner. His right hook dug into Max's body and made him bend a little more. The Spaniard bulled Schmeling to the center of the ring, keeping up a slow and determined fire on the German's mid-section. Max brought this to a sudden halt with a solid smash to the chin as the bell rang.

ROUND NINE—Max was more than half-way across the ring in his eagerness to get going, but Paulino marched stolidly and heavily onward to close quarters. The Basque looped a left hook to Schmeling's side, but took two straight rights on the chin in return. The second, a full clout under the ear, seemed to stagger the Spaniard a trifle, but he came plowing back with a wild attack that missed Schmeling more than it landed. They struggled and pulled each other along the ropes until Paulino got his left loose and swung it to the jaw. The fans in the covered section joined in a chorus of "Sweet Adeline" as action continued to be noticeably absent up to the gong.

ROUND TEN—Schmeling opened things up under the bell by choosing to punch with Uscudun in clinches rather than fuss and wrestle. Uscudun threw two wild hooks that never landed, but left him wide open to Schmeling's short, jarring right. Paulino spat blood as he drew away and lanced back into a rousing right uppercut. Schmeling leaned down with the Basque and lifted his left and right to the Spaniard's chin. Schmeling straightened the Spaniard up with a left hook to the chin and shook him to the heels with a full right under the ear. Paulino wobbled and lumps began to rise on his cheeks as he flung both hands in desperation to Schmeling's body. He was still a bit wobbly at the gong.

ROUND ELEVEN—The limber German, keen and eager, ripped from his corner and never let up for a second as he leaned over and darted both hands to Paulino's head. The Spaniard swayed a bit as Max found his chin with his jolting right and bulled the Basque about the ring. He bobbed in front of Paulino, looking for openings and his hands flashed like shears through into Paulino's damaged head. Two full rights to the chin rocked the Spaniard again and he leaned tiredly on the powerful young German, sweeping his hands in cumbersome arcs just at the parts of the anatomy Schmeling seemed always to have protected. The Spaniard was fighting desperately, his face steadily growing more bloated as the gong.

ROUND TWELVE—Schmeling strove relentlessly to get into the burly Basque, flicking lefts to face and watching for an opening for his right hand. Paulino rallied, drove the German to the ropes with sweeping hooks to the body and mauled at Max's body as he laid there tiredly resting in the hollow of the Teuton's shoulder. Max pushed him away and chopped at the Spaniard's head. He hammered a left hook into Paulino's head as he pushed him aside and the Spaniard almost fell into the German's corner. Paulino seemed anxious to stand close, leaning into the German like a man fighting a gale of wind, but facing instead a steady deluge of leather. The Spaniard was still holding tight at the gong.

ROUND THIRTEEN—Max was pecking and slashing at Uscudun's head, leaning in with him to outspeed the Spaniard with punches when an opening offered. It was a head-to-head struggle with the Basque's

LILI DI ALVAREZ NEAR MATCH WITH HELEN WILLS

Spanish Girl Eliminates Miss Ryan

Betty Nuthall Defeated in Upset; Helen Jacobs Wins.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 27 (A.P.).—Thursday was a day of almost complete triumph for Americans seeking English tennis titles at Wimbledon; with Miss Elizabeth Ryan alone of the Yankee contingent falling by the wayside.

The former Californian was stopped in her quest of the women's single title when she met Senorita di Alvarez, of Spain. The Spanish star approached a step nearer to the finals in which she lost last year to Helen Wills, when she defeated Miss Ryan in straight sets, 6—4, 8—6.

While the selection of the successor to Rene laCoste as the men's singles champion temporarily was halted, mixed doubles and women's matches held the attention of the fur-coated gallery. Miss Wills made her first appearance on the famous center court, scene of many former triumphs, and paired with her fellow countryman, Francis T. Hunter, defeated the English team of A. Brown and Miss Tyrell in straight sets, with the loss of only one game. Then paired with Edith Cross, the American, British and French champion won easily from the French team of Mme. Mathieu and Mlle. Barbier.

The victory of the Spanish senorita over the veteran American enabled her to look forward to another final match with Helen Wills. Senorita di Alvarez was forced to play her best tennis to defeat the indominitable Californian and proved herself the master of all strokes with a repertoire equaled by few women.

Miss Ryan Makes Brave Effort to Stem Tide.

Miss Ryan made a brave effort to stem the tide but lost the first set 6—4, after lagging 2—5. She used her chop stroke to great advantage. She was behind by the same margin in the second set and forced it to deuce games. The match point was scored by the Spanish star after the fifth time. Senorita di Alvarez was somewhat handicapped by an injured tendon in one leg.

A surprise to the gallery and a blow to English hopes in the women's championship was provided by the defeat of Miss Betty Nuthall. The upset was accomplished by Mrs. Leo Mitchell, formerly Peggy Saunders, also of England, in straight sets, 6—3, 6—2. Miss Nuthall was regarded as the ace of the English feminine stars. California's other Helen—Miss Jacobs—advanced by eliminating Mrs. Randolph Lycett of England, 6—2, 6—2.

Big Bill Tilden had a brief workout in the mixed doubles. Paired with Mrs. Molla Mallory, former American champion, they defeated Baron von Kehrling of Hungary and Miss J. Jamison 6—2, 6—2.

Dr. Jack Wright and Willard Crocker, Canadian Davis Cup stars, made a vain effort to avoid defeat at the hands of Jean Borotra and Christian Boussus of France, but finally lost in three sets after the third set went to 17—15, the longest of the tournament thus far. The set scores were 6—1, 6—3, 17—15.

CROYDEN was allowed to rate along back of the early pace. He came around DRAWING BOARD in stretch, took lead and won nicely in hand. DRAWING BOARD set the early pace and was next best. SPECTACULAR was kept well up and had no mishaps. GAD ALONG closed a big gap. BLABBER quit badly.

SECOND RACE—About two miles. Purse, $1,500; conditions. Steeplechase. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:01. Off at 3:03½. Winner, Greenbaum Stable's ch. g. (4), by Trompe La Mort—Lady Hillington. Trained by V. Powers. Value to winner, $1,100; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 4:14.

ALEXANDER MOORE	142	5	4	2¹	2²	5	Fell		Fitzpat'k	12	4	1-1

HILLOCK, showing improvement over recent race, ran into lead early, fenced well and held on gamely at the end. FIRE FIGHTER was nicely rated, closed gamely, but pulled up very lame. YOUNG PRINCE fenced well, but lacked speed on the flat. BLOCKHEAD made a determined bid around turn, but weakened fast. ALEXANDER MOORE fell three fences from the finish.

THIRD RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,000; conditions. For 3-year-old fillies. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 3:27. Off at 3:28½. Winner, Mrs. George Carroll's ch. f. OKAYBEE broke fast, rushed to the front, opened a wide lead, saved ground and won galloping. ELECTA made up ground around the turn, but hung badly at the end. BLUSTERY just galloped along back of the leaders. VOTERESS was outrun.

FOURTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $2,000 added. The Woodhaven Claiming Stakes. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:55. Off at 4:01½. Winner, G. A. Cochran's blk. c. (2), by Black Toney—Dragnet. Trained by H. McDaniel. Value to winner, $5,325; second, $500; third, $250. Time, 1:01 3-5.

LAMP BLACK, away fast, rushed to the inside, displayed good speed and held on gamely. FOX BOLT was hard ridden all the way and ran a good race. GO TO IT finished with a rush in final sixteenth. BOB SHANNON was on inside all the way and had no excuse. RASSELAS was bothered just after the break.

FIFTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 2-year-old fillies. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:24. Off at 4:29. Winner, G. W. Loft's b. f. (2), by On Watch—Sox. Trained by A. G. Robertson. Value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 1:01.

MABLA broke running, opened a wide lead, but was driving hard to win. MAD KISS broke slow, but closed with a rush. TRIPPING TOE kept swerving over to the inner rail and the boy had his hands full keeping her off the rail. GREYOLA should improve over this effort.

SIXTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,200 added. The Old Rosebud Claiming Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:50. Off at 4:52. Winner, Mrs. A. L. Austin's b. c. (4), by Sun Briar—St. Fey. Trained by A. L. Austin. Value to winner, $970; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:23, 0:47 4-5, 1:13 3-5, 1:39 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LE FLORE, $7.12, $3.52, $2.88; BOYS PREFERRED, $4.72, $3.34; WHISK ARROW, $3.36.

LE FLORE, away well and hard hustled, raced into a good lead on far turn and, holding on gamely, withstood BOYS PREFERRED'S challenge near end. Latter, crowded back approaching the turn, came again when clear through stretch and closed resolutely. JEFF O'NEILL, outpaced most of the trip, came with a good burst of speed last eighth. MY WORD, fourth, PERSONEY went well for half a mile. NEPTUNIS was always far out of it. VENDEUSE refused to break.

SECOND RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,200. For 2-year-old colts and geldings, maidens. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:28. Off at 2:30. Winner, C. C. and G. Y. † Murphy, Laffoon and Yeiser entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LONG RUN, $40.40, $11.98, $7.60; PROSE AND POETRY, $5.92, $3.98; PUNNY PAL, $26.36.

LONG RUN, closer up than usual and displaying good courage through stretch, disposed of WILD OLIVE and, continuing gamely, lasted to hold PROSE AND POETRY safe. Latter, prominent from start, but taken back slightly on the turn, came again when straightened out and closed going strongly. SUNNY PAL worked way up steadily with a loss of ground and got up final strides to outfinish BUSTLING. Latter, outpaced most of the trip, finished going stoutly last sixteenth. OVERBOARD went well, but swerved last sixteenth. WILD OLIVE displayed most early speed to the head of the stretch, where she faltered badly when put to a drive. BAGSMASHER was away badly.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:57. Off at 2:58. Winner, M. Goldblatt's b. g. (3), by Volta—Erase. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:46, 1:11 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VIRADO, $8.22, $3.92, $2.62; HOT SHOT, $4.06, $2.88; THE OKAH, $2.70.

VIRADO, never far back and racing slightly restrained, moved up fast on extreme outside when called upon and, continuing well, gradually disposed of HOT SHOT. Latter showed a lot of speed to the main stretch, where he began tiring under his heavy impost. THE OKAH set the pace for entire trip and fought to hold JEM safe. Latter came with a belated rush last quarter and was going strongly at the end. OUI MONSIEUR saved much ground on inside.

FOURTH RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:25. Off at 3:27. Winner, H. P. Headley's b. f. (3), by Supreme Air—Cushion. Trained by W. W. Taylor. Value to winner, $900; second, $254; third, $156. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:47 4-5, 1:13, 1:39 3-5, 1:44 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HOLD FAST, $4.84, $2.80, $2.52; PURPLE SAND, $3.92, $2.84; LADY VIOLA, $3.30.

HOLD FAST, forward and saving ground until reaching far turn, was taken to outside and gradually wore leaders down. PURPLE SAND worked way to the front on the stretch turn, continued well through stretch, but was overmatched. LADY VIOLA suffered some interference on the stretch turn, recovered quickly and closed strongly thereafter. FLORHI, outrun most of the trip, closed a good gap through stretch. EDNA GLENN stopped suddenly after reaching the last turn.

PEACOCK, SCASSER, MILLER, STEVINSON IN SEMIFINALS

Close Matches Mark Early Rounds of Invitation Play.

2 Extra-Hole Clashes, 15 Matches Decided on 18th Green.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE four survivors who will play in the semifinal round this morning in the invitation golf tournament of the Congressional Country Club are Roger Peacock, an 18-year-old member of the Indian Spring Club, against his fellow club member, LeRoy Sasscer, former champion of the Argyle Club, in the upper bracket, and George F. Miller, Manor, paired against Miller B. Stevinson, Columbia, and District amateur champion, in the lower half. In the consolation flight of the first sixteen, two members of the Beaver Dam Club, M. F. McCarthy and Lindsay Stott, are paired against each other in the semifinal round this morning, while Byrn Curtiss, a junior member of the Indian Spring Club, will oppose Robert E. Lewis, of the Beaver Dam Club.

In the first round of match play in the first sixteen all of the contests were more or less easily decided except the victory of Robert C. Hird, Manor, a blonde-haired youngster, who won from Lewis on the eighteenth green. Peacock reached the final round by defeating James A. Maloney, Congressional, and R. A. Loftus, Chevy Chase, while Sasscer eliminated Lindsay Stott, Beaver Dam, and Harry Chandler, Concord Country Club, Wilmington, Del. Miller did not have to play to the home green to dispose of Hither Byrn Curtiss, Indian Spring, or Elliott Spicer, of the same club, while Stevinson had walkaway matches, 5 and 4 and 4 and 3, respectively, against S. F. Colladay, Columbia, and young Hird.

Stevinson Outstanding In First Sixteen.

In a championship flight, in which Stevinson was the outstanding player and which contained many contestants who had never before reached the high pinnacle of qualifying in the first sixteen, the matches were not marked by any upsets and were totally lacking in anything which resembled a thrill.

The summary:

JONES SETTING PACE IN OPEN TOURNAMENT

but he was not once over par for the remaining fifteen holes. Quite to the contrary, he administered a series of knockout punches to the "Old Man" that had him groggy and on the ropes.

Two eagles and three birdies helping him to clip seven strokes off perfect figures, figured in one of the greatest rounds of Bobby's career. Starting the homeward nine, he clicked off five successive threes and missed making it six in a row by the margin of a fraction of an inch as his bold putt curled off slightly at the fifteenth hole.

The greatest shots in the Jones repertoire were made at the 517-yard fifth, where a marvelous brassie reached the green on a bee-line and a 45-foot putt gave him his first eagle three, and at the 213-yard thirteenth, where his recovery from the rough, 35 yards below the green, was dead to the pin for a par three. A 22-foot putt accounted for the other eagle three at the 497-yard twelfth, after a fine iron to the green. "Calamity Jane," Bobby's famous goose-neck putter, clicked off putts of 8 to 45 feet on his five 1-putt greens.

Eighth Is Farrell's Waterloo With Shots in Trouble.

In sharp contrast with the pace-setting performance of the man he beat for the title at Olympia Fields last year, Johnny Farrell's downfall, the biggest upset of the day, came after a performance marked by bad golf as well as bad luck. The stylish young Irishman, smiling at the start, was a grim figure after taking 46 to the turn. Ten strokes over par, and his most courageous efforts over the last nine were unable to make up any lost ground.

Espinosa Wastes Chance to Take Lead on Final Holes.

Of all the field of nearly 150 starters, swarthy, black-haired Al Espinosa, always a threat, had the best chance to upset the lead of Jones, his round of 70 sparkled with brilliant putts and fine recoveries, but he forfeited an opportunity to score 68 by getting into trouble on the last two holes, on each of which he went one over par.

Corinthians Celebrate At Banquet Tonight

After eleven years of organization, the Corinthian Athletic Club, the oldest amateur sandlot baseball organization in local sports circles, will hold a banquet tonight at the Immaculate Conception Hall, Eighth and N streets northwest, at 8 o'clock.

More than 100 boys are expected to answer Walter Newman's roll call tonight, including many of those who first joined the club as far back as 1918, the year of its organization. Some 900 members have been in the club since Newman's reign as president, which began six years ago, and many have gained prominence in sports either locally or out of town during that time or since.

Among those who have made names for themselves and who began their careers with the Corinthians include Willie Wolf, "Tack" Ensor, Ray Roberts, Everett Cross, Frank Cumberland and Wilbur Minor.

Mr. Newman, anxious to make the banquet a real get-together event, sends out invitations to the following "old guard" to attend, in addition to those already expected to be present: Boltl, Cohn, Cross, Clayton, Cifala, Defillipis, Donnel, Dove, Dwoin, Entin, Garfinkle, Harrison, Hermann, Jones, Nelson, Potts, Stein nd Vandercook.

MANGIN WINS IN COLLEGE TENNIS

Battles Jacobs Today; Pare Defeated in Quarter Finals.

HAVERFORD, Pa., June 27 (A.P.).—Gregory Mangin, Georgetown University, seeded player No. 4, today eliminated Donald Strachan, Princeton, from the intercollegiate lawn tennis championship at the Merion Cricket Club. The scores were 2—6, 6—4, 6—1. It was a quarter final match.

Berkley Bell, University of Texas, seeded played No. 3, defeated Emmett Pare, Georgetown University, seeded player No. 8, in another quarter final match, by the scores of 13—11, 1—6, 6—1.

In the third quarter final match of the day, Julius Seligson, Lehigh University, defending champion, defeated Ben Gorchakoff, Occidental College, 10—8, 4—6, 6—3. This was the third straight year that Seligson has eliminated the Californian from the intercollegiates. Last year Gorchakoff was runner-up to Seligson.

Edward Jacobs, University of Pittsburgh, defeated Harris Coggeshall, Grinnell College, 6—3, 6—8, 6—2, in the fourth quarter final match.

In the semifinals tomorrow, Seligson will encounter Berkley Bell, of Texas, and Gregory Mangin, Georgetown, will meet Edward Jacobs, Pittsburgh University.

Gregory Mangin (Georgetown) defeated Donald Strachan (Princeton), 2—6, 6—4, 6—1.

Berkley Bell (University of Texas) defeated Emmett Pare (Georgetown), 13—11, 1—5, 6—1.

Julius Seligson (Lehigh) defeated Ben Gorchakoff (Occidental), 10—8, 4—6, 6—3.

Edward Jacobs (University of Pittsburgh) defeated Harris Coggeshall (Grinnell College), 6—3, 6—8, 6—2.

League Players Barred From Legion's Series

With a view to preventing disputes which he foresaw in the near future, W. W. Watt, manager of the local American Legion series, last night ruled at a meeting of the Legion team managers that no players under contract of June 27 in the Capital City League will be permitted to play in the Legion series.

The ruling came as a result of protests voiced by managers of Junior teams of the Capital City League charging that players were being recruited from the team for play in the American Legion series.

As a result of Watts' edict no players today under contract to a Capital City League team can compete in the Legion championship games.

The Legion team managers decided to play two rounds before August 15, the date set for the naming of a District champion. In order to complete the two rounds the teams will have to play July 4 and as many week day games as possible.

Von Porat Stops Christner In Ninth in Semifinal.

Otto von Porat, heavy hitting Norwegian heavyweight from Chicago, disposed of K. C. Christner, Akron iron man, by a technical knockout in the ninth round of a ten-round semifinal.

Although there were no knockdowns, it was a groggy battle and Christner, never knocked out in his brief career, was in bad shape when the referee stopped the fight.

Christner made his bid in the sixth round when he cut Von Porat's left eyelid, ear, and started his nose bleeding. From that point on the Norwegian's husky right hand made a bloody mark of Christner's face.

The Return Of OLD KING BRADY

Revived by MERLE W. HERSEY.

(Copyright Protected Reproduction in Whole or in Part Prohibited.)

In the fifth chapter the Emerald is located down the shore a good distance where the tidal wave had stranded it up on the beach, the crew was lost with the exception of the captain, engineer, cook and steward. Old King Brady investigates the Belle of Bolton and finds three skeletons and only a small part of the treasure supposed to be on board. Three of the men decide to go down the coast in search of help.

The Search for the Lost 'Frisco Liner.

CHAPTER VI.

Harry, Capt. Harding and one of the drivers had started down the coast for help. Rounding the first point a startling discovery was made. It was a small steamer not far off the beach and about 3 miles down the coast. Capt. Harding whipped out his glass and looked her over closely.

"She has drifted in there, she is not anchored. No sign of life on board. I think she must be leaking badly," he declared.

"She looks like the OX," said Harry as they drew nearer, "and I believe that is what she is."

"Yes, and her bow is stove in," added the captain; "that steamer has been on the rocks."

They pushed on and came opposite the derelict. It was the OX, in a damaged condition, deserted by captain and crew. They decided to investigate, and find out if she was in condition to use in their emergency. So Harry and the young diver stripped and plunged into the water and swam out to the boat.

The boats were gone—everything washed clean. Evidently she had had experience with the tidal wave also. Harry hurried forward and looked over the bow where he could see the diver standing in the break.

"Hello, Sam, what's the word?" he called.

"There are two water-tight compartments and they are all right. She won't ship any more water. Capt. Harding can tell better than I can," and with these words he came aboard.

Harry swam back to the shore where, making their clothes in bundles, they tied them to their heads and watching the waves, the captain and Harry made their way back to the ship.

"The fire under the boilers is low, but not out," Sam called down.

"I'll be with you in a moment, as soon as I make an examination here," said the captain coolly. "I dare say we shall be able to use her."

In a few moments the captain came up the ladder with a look of triumph on his face. "She'll float for a year!" he declared. "It's only her plating that's stove in."

"It's the luckiest thing I ever heard of," said Harry. He hitched up his trousers and prepared to see what had been left in the staterooms.

There was water in the cabin and as he started to wade through his attention was attracted by a dismal cry, coming from one of the staterooms.

"Oh, say! Whoever you are, won't you let me out?"

"Somebody here, after all," muttered Young King Brady. "Probably Willy. I haven't forgotten that voice."

Harry threw open the door and found Willy Whigmore, just as he had expected. The little dude was lying in his berth, bound hand and foot.

"You!" he cried as he caught sight of Harry. "By Jove, how came you here?"

"Well, I'm here, that's all," replied Harry. "Now we can come to some sort of an understanding before I let you free."

Willy's face was a study. "Oh, come now! I believe you have found the treasure of the Belle of Bolton. You ought to be all awested, that's what!" he cried.

"If I promise to set you free will you promise to be good and not make any trouble?" asked Harry.

"Yes. Yes. I'll promise anything."

"Tell me what happened."

"Why, it was that howid Capt. Pollock. He set upon me with two of his men and dwagged me here. All because I wouldn't pwomise to give them part of the tweasure. Just as though their wages weren't enough."

"Are you aware that you are alone on this steamer—or were until I and my friends came on board?"

"Bless my soul! You don't say so! I thought it was awful quiet."

"Well, I'll set you free, but mind you, if you are not good you'll get tied up again quick." And he was as good as his word, leaving Willy to dress himself.

Capt. Harding had a good report to make when he came up on deck. He reported they could make San Francisco all right. Just then he gasped, "Where did that thing spring from? Is it alive?"

It was Willy in his shirt-tail! "I want my twousers! I cawn't find my twousers! They've taken them away!" he wailed.

Old King Brady Caught Napping.

About ten o'clock Old King Brady was interrupted in his explorations in the cabin of the Belle of Bolton by Dr. Stoppinham. "There is a steamer coming around the point, and it may be the OX," he said.

The detective surveyed it through his glass. "Your're right."

As the steamer neared them they could make out Capt. Harding at the wheel, much to their surprise. Two other figures came on deck and they saw Willy Whigmore and Harry.

And this was the way in which the OX announced herself. The doctor and Old King Brady hurried down on the beach to meet it.

After some delay they succeeded in making a landing. Willy received the men in sulky silence.

"Young man, you'll find it to your interest to be civil. Tell the truth now. Do you know anything about Capt. Pollock and his men?"

"No, I don't. I told your partner all I know," he answered. "What do you propose to do with me?"

"Nothing at all," replied the old detective. "Your game has failed. We are right in it—you simply don't count."

"I see there is a big steamer buried over there in the sand—is that the Belle of Bolton?" Willy inquired.

"As I presume you are Mr. Whigmore's heir I shall answer your questions. Yes, it is the Belle of Bolton."

"Is the gold on board?"

"Part of it—the bulk of it seems to have been carried away," said Old King Brady. "You can see for yourself."

"All right."

"But tell me first, and answer me honestly, are you your grandfather's heir?"

"I am, of course," replied Willy, sullenly.

"I read it in your face that you are lying," said Old King Brady. "Not for an instant do I believe you sole heir, nor that Mr. Whigmore told you to dismiss me and my partner."

The remainder of the day was spent in conveying the goods of the Emerald on board the OX, after the boat had been made tight, which was easily done.

At dusk all went aboard the steamer, thankful enough for the good fortune which had come their way. A good dinner was prepared and served.

"And now," observed Old King Brady when he and Harry found themselves alone on deck a little later, "we must get back to our old methods, boy. There must be no carelessness. Either you or I must be constantly on the watch."

The following day was a busy one. The skeletons were burried, the gold transferred to the steamer and locked in a stateroom. At 11 o'clock that night Willy Whigmore came up to Old King Brady, who was on watch.

"Now, then, Mr. Brady, I want to have a talk with you," he said sullenly. "I want to know what you are going to do with this gold. I have a right to know."

"You haven't any right after the way you've acted; but I'll tell you. I'm going straight back to Frisco and bank the gold. A division of prize money will be made with the crew and the captain, after that Harry and I will claim our percentage, as arranged with Dr. Stoppinham, and I shall reimburse myself for the amount spent in outfitting the yacht. Dr. Stoppinham will then take charge of the balance."

For a time the old detective sat there smoking idly, but at last his eyes grew heavy and he leaned his head on his hands and suffered them to close. It is not often he is caught napping, but that is what happened.

For some moments he kept awake opening his eyes occasionally to look about him, but at least he slept.

Just at this time, when he should have been most wide awake, two boats filed with men were passing between the first and second Sisters, entering the Bay of San Lopez. As they came clear of the rocks a man in the first boat arose and surveyed the steamer through a glass. Then, after a moment, he sat down again and both boats pulled on toward the OX.

Another chapter in this enthralling serial is in tomorrow's paper. Watch for it.

We offer you the opportunity to locate in Washington's most distinctive apartment. The Apartments are so well appointed themselves, in addition to garage service in the building, managerial service, all night switchboard service and surroundings unequalled.

Our resident manager is now showing a seven-room apartment that has three baths and one shower; cool porch and just plenty of closet space.

Another attractive one is five rooms, the living room is 14 by 22 ft. Think of this spacious room, which is so well planned. Here also we have a large reception hall, dining room and two chambers; one bath and separate shower. This apartment has eastern and southern exposure.

We are making reservations now for early occupancy.

AUCTION SALES

HOWARD B. FIELDS, Auctioneer.

TRUSTEES' SALE OF VALUABLE IMPROVED REAL ESTATE.

Under and by virtue of authority vested in the undersigned Trustees by the terms and provisions of that certain deed of trust executed by Frederick Rieder and wife, bearing date on November 10th, 1926, and recorded in Deed Book No. 253, at page 131, one of the land records of Arlington County, Virginia, to secure a certain indebtedness therein fully set forth and described, default having been made in the payment of said indebtedness, and at the request of the holder of the note evidencing the same, the undersigned Trustees will, on TUESDAY, July 9th, 1929, at 11:00 o'clock A. M., in front of Arlington County Court House, Clarendon, Virginia, offer for sale, at public auction, all of those certain lots, pieces or parcels of land, situate, lying and being in Arlington Magisterial District, Arlington County, Virginia, known and described as follows:

Lots numbered TWENTY (20) and TWENTY-TWO (22), of the Subdivision of BALL AND DOUGLAS' ADDITION TO SOUTH BALLSTON, as the same appears duly platted, dedicated and recorded in Deed Book number 219, at page 509, of the land records of Arlington County, Virginia, and being the same property that was conveyed to Frederick Rieder by Frank L. Ball and others, by deed bearing date on October 22nd, 1926, to be recorded among the land records of Arlington County, Virginia, to which said deed reference is hereby made for a more particular description of the land intended to be conveyed by this deed, said lots being described by metes and bounds as follows:

BEGINNING at a point in the west line of Tyler Street; (said point being S. 0° 39' W. 230.37' from a point determined by the intersection of the said west line of Tyler Street, and the south line of a 30' outlet road bounding the northern end of the subdivision) thence running with the said west line of Tyler Street, S. 0° 39' W. 50' to a point; thence departing from the said west line of Tyler Street and running with the line common to lots 22 and 24 N. 89° 21' W. 111.1 feet to a point; thence running with the western line of the subdivision N. 0° 39' E. 50' to a point; thence running with the line common to lots 18 and 20, S. 89° 21' E. 111.1' to the point of beginning.

TERMS OF SALE—Cash. A deposit of $250.00 will be required of the successful bidder on the date of sale, terms of sale to be complied with within ten days or property to be resold at the risk and cost of the defaulting purchaser, after one week's advertisement of two insertions in The Washington Post, a newspaper of general circulation in Arlington County, Virginia. All conveyancing at the cost of the purchaser.

Given under our hands this 14th day of June, 1929.

QUIZ INTO BUS FARE EAST OF ANACOSTIA RIVER IS PROMISED

Public Utilities Board Takes Step on Own Initiative; Surprises City.

MOVE HELD INDICATIVE OF AGGRESSIVE POLICY

Whole Omnibus System Will Probably Be Taken Up by Commission.

The public utilities commission yesterday decided to look into the bus fare situation east of the Anacostia river.

The commission's decision was disclosed in its announcement that it had approved the application of L. Altman, of the Washington, Marlboro and Annapolis bus line to continue its fare of 10 tokens for $1 or 15 cents cash for another three months.

Behind the commission's decision, however, is the promise of lower bus fares for many of the eastern sections of the city, and, in general, an ironing out of the present hit or miss system of bus rates throughout the District.

Announcement of the commission's decision to make an independent study of the bus fare and passenger situation in the territory east of the Anacostia river came as a complete surprise. No such proposal had been made to the commission and the decision was reached on its own initiative at a session which lasted until 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Indicative of Policy.

The decision was unanimous, it was said, concurred in by Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman, Harleigh H. Hartman, vice chairman, and Col. William B. Ladue, engineer commissioner and third member of the commission.

It was indicative of the attitude of the new commission, Gen. Patrick announcing the commission plan with a twinkle in his eye as he declared that the new commission intended to go to meet problems of regulations rather than waiting for the problems to come to it.

"I hope the public and the utilities companies agree with us that that is the proper way to handle the difficult job we have berore us," Patrick said. "We believe that nothing is gained by failure to act in a situation which demands action."

Remedy for the bus situation east of the Anacostia River has been the subject of agitation and requests to the Public Utilities Commission in the past, and a petition affecting this territory, Hillcrest, was before the Childress commission when the question of higher street car fares was raised last year.

At present, for instance, it costs a bus rider two tokens to ride from Hillcrest to Eastern High School or downtown. Other lines operating from a greater distance charge 8 cents cash or a token and 2 cents for a transfer to the Capital Traction Co. street cars at the end of the bridge at Seventeenth street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast. There are other variations in rates and transfer privileges over bus lines in the same section.

Facts to be Gathered.

Facts and figures on this situation will be gathered by the new engineer of the utilities commission who is to be appointed to fill the vacancy created by the requested resignation of Capt. R. G. Klotz.

While the action of the commission is important enough in so far as the eastern bus lines themselves are considered alone, it is of much greater importance when considered as a precedent for future actions by the commission. The action taken yesterday, it was said, may be interpreted as indicative of future actions. That means that the whole bus fare situation will be gone into by the commission with resultant modifications.

Inasmuch as the number of bus passengers has steadily increased the importance of the commission action is still further enhanced.

What effect the bus line study will have on the street car fare increase petition is problematical, but it is to be remembered that bus fares are not involved in the pending fare increase application of the Capital Traction Co. Nevertheless, the street car companies, which are parties to the car fare increase, also operate bus lines and the revenues from the bus lines, together with the valuation of the bus lines, is an element to be considered.

Fanciulli Is Praised For Automobile Pact

Charles W. Darr, president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, has written Jerome Fanciulli, chairman of the transportation committee of the chamber, congratulating him upon the service rendered in securing the reciprocity automobile agreement between the District of Columbia and the State of Virginia.

In the letter, Darr calls attention to the fact that Fanciulli organized local motorists, made plans for solving of the problem which faced District and Virginia motorists, and then after frequent conferences in Richmond, Va., secured full and equal reciprocity between Washington and Virginia.

Former Central High Cadet Officers to Meet

DEPRIEST'S PARKING MARKER IS REMOVED

Sign, Prohibiting Halting of Cars in Front of Home, Is Taken Away by Police.

BALL CROWDS ARE CAUSE

Eighth Precinct officers yesterday promptly removed a "no parking" sign in front of the home of Representative Oscar De Priest, at 419 U street northwest, almost as suddenly as it had been placed there at least a day earlier upon the authorization of Capt. Robert E. Doyle, of the precinct.

Deeming the action in the nature of a grant of special parking privileges to the colored representative from Illinois during the traffic congestion on days on which the Washington Baseball Club is playing here, Police Inspector T. R. Bean ordered the marker removed.

Acting on the authority of Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, Inspector Bean was advised at the same time that the sign had been taken away yesterday morning and the matter was declared closed.

Morris Lewis, secretary to Representative De Priest, who resides with him at the U street house, while expressing the appreciation of Capt. Doyle's courtesy in extending assistance to the representative in solution of the traffic problem, which he described as acute, stated that Representative De Priest, who is now out of the city and will not return until September, is "above all thoroughly democratic, and undesirous of special privilege in any form, either for himself or for others."

This statement, made at a meeting of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People at the Phyllis Wheatley parlors, provoked discussion which resulted in organization of a committee headed by W. H. C. Brown, president of the Industrial Savings Bank, to check up on extension of special parking privilege throughout the LeDroit Park area and other territory not only adjacent to the Griffith Stadium, but throughout the District, so that the association might be satisfied that the privilege was thoroughly abolished in accordance with Assistant Traffic Director Eldridge's statement.

Crowds Inspect Post's Model Furnished Home

Visitors are inspecting the model furnished home of N. L. Sansbury Co., Inc., sponsored by The Washington Post, at 1335 Kalmia road northwest, in the evening as well as through the day. Last night fully 200 persons viewed the attractive display.

The home, situated in "Northgate," the Sansbury development extending from Thirteenth street to Sixteenth street northwest on the north side of Kalmia road, which will eventually contain 25 similar homes, is open daily for inspection until 9 o'clock in the evening. More than 2,300 persons have visited it thus far.

Purse Snatcher Gets $20 Check.

Miss Zelenda Christofoley, 1878 Phelps place northwest, last night was the victim of a purse snatcher when a young man grabbed her pocketbook and fled as she was walking on R street near Nineteenth street northwest. The purse contained about $1 in cash and a check for $20.34. Miss Christofoley told police of the Third Precinct that she could identify the purse snatcher.

Man Lands in Jail On Bigamy Charge

Maryland Authorities Aver Raymond M. Hilton Has Three Wives.

Raymond M. Hilton, 24 years old, of 1835 A street southeast, was arrested here last night and held for Maryland authorities as a fugitive from justice. He was arrested on a warrant charging bigamy.

Hilton was taken into custody by Detective Sergts. C. J. P. Weber and Hubert Brodie at the A street address, where he has been living for the past few weeks with a woman whom police say is the third Mrs. Hilton, and who was married to the man May 24 at Rockville, Md. Police also said that a fourth woman, Miss Georgia Hudnall, 18 years old, of 1310 Nichols street southeast, attempted to end her life last Sunday when she learned Hilton was married.

Another woman, who police say is Mrs. Hilton No. 2 and who was married to the man last September in Washington, lives at 925 C street southeast. She told the police that when she married Hilton she knew he had been married before and had a 4-year-old son, but that she never had seen his divorce papers. Police said she pictured Hilton as a heart-breaking Don Juan who made romantic but unfulfilled promises.

TWO PISTOL VICTIMS' BODIES LAID TO REST

MAN BURIED AS PAUPER

Finis has been written by the District of Columbia in the lives of two pistol victims whose tragic deaths only a few days apart brought their bodies side by side at the morgue, where they had lain unclaimed until an inglorious disposition was made of them.

The body of Nellie Smokorski, alias Alice Johnson, the 27-year-old jilted woman who committed suicide on the steps of the Vermont Avenue Christian Church on May 31, has been cremated. A resident of 2119 H street northwest, the woman, upon seeing her fiancee drive by the church in an automobile, shrieked, "Stop, or I'll kill myself." The car rolled on. She whipped out the .25-caliber pistol and fired two fatal shots into her body.

The other victim was Chong Hung, alias Lee King, a Chinese Federal narcotic informer, whose bullet-riddled form was found in front of 1215 Eleventh street northwest early on the morning of June 12.

While the mystery has not been cleared, police believe that he was "taken for a ride" because he "talked too much." He lived at 1423 Eleventh street northwest. His body occupies a grave in Potter's Field.

Maj. C. H. Brown to Depart.

Maj. Carey H. Brown, of the United States Army, engineer of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, will be relieved of his duties in Washington tomorrow. Maj. Brown has been ordered to Fort Leavenworth, Kans., where he will attend the general service schools this fall.

BACKWARD PURSUIT ENDS IN 3 ARRESTS

RACE LASTS TWO BLOCKS

Two pretty young women and a man were bound over to the grand jury on Jones liquor felony law charges by Judge John P. McMahon yesterday at Police Court as the result of a two-block race between two automobiles, both of which were operated backward.

The defendants were Mary E. Miller, 22 years old, and Opal Randall, 20, both of whom were held in $2,000 bail each, and Edward A. Hawkins, 30, who was held in $3,000 bail. All were charged with transporting and possession. In addition, a 30-day jail sentence was imposed on Hawkins by Judge Ralph Given on a charge of reckless driving.

Detectives R. F. McCarthy and S. F. Gravelly, of the Third Precinct, said they espied a suspected rum car near Seventeenth and Swann streets northwest. At the cars turned into Swann street, the police car was directly in front of the suspected car. The car proceeded only a short distance, the detectives said, when the suspected car was put in reverse and began running backward. The narrow roadway, police said, prevented turning the police car around and it was put into reverse.

During the course of the backward chase, Hawkins leaped from the car and was captured after a short foot race by Gravelly. Meanwhile McCarthy, in the police car, overtook the car occupied by the two young women. He said Miss Miller tore his necktie in an attempt to shove him from the running board, and the other young woman was smashing bottles in the rear of the car during the tussle. After the excitement, the detectives said they seized a quantity of liquor and the car, which was taken to the Third Precinct with the prisoners early yesterday.

Achievements of Garvey Told by Georgia Speaker

J. A. Boltram, former commissioner of the United Negro Improvement Association in Georgia, spoke last night in the auditorium of the home of the Order of Moses, 1421 T street northwest, under auspices of the Washington division of the association, and exhibited the material accomplishments of Marcus Garvey, and historical pictures of Ethiopia.

Others participating in the exercises included Martin L. Jackson, Frank Webster, Warren Williams, the Rev. U. H. Prowthro, Bettie Lyles, Rosa P. White, James Nettles, J. D. F. Smith, Katie Jenkins, George Brown, Amos Turner and J. J. Johnson.

Meeting to Open Today For Lime Association

The eleventh annual meeting of the National Lime Association will be held at the Hotel Mayflower today after conclusion of the trade practice conference which its members have participated in with officials of the Federal Trade Commission.

About 150 leading lime manufacturers will be present. Nelson B. Gaskill, former member of the Federal Trade Commission, will address a luncheon gathering on "The Clayton Act in Relation to Price Discrimination as Interpreted by the Supreme Court in the American Can Case."

Bricklayer Badly Hurt In Five-Story Shaft Fall

Walter M. Fox, 20 years old, of Danville, Va., was seriously injured at 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning when he fell five stories down an elevator shaft on a building under construction on which he was working at Quincy street and Georgia avenue northwest.

Attendants at Garfield Hospital, where he was removed, declared he received a possible fracture of the skull, possible internal injuries, and lacerations about the head, arms and body. Fox was said to have been laying bricks while standing on a scaffolding beside the shaft when he toppled off a board and shot to the ground.

Juvenile Players Offer Little Theater Drama

Child actors and actresses of the Juvenile Players will present "Bob Over the Wall" tonight at the Washington Little Theater. The children range from 6 to 15 years old and are directed by Miss Estelle Allen. The Juvenile Players are affiliated with the Little Theater movement.

Wallace Witcover will take the leading role as Bob while others in the cast are Joan Doyle, Harriet Freeman, Josephine Fortune, Francis Duff, Mitzi Arrias, Rosemary Bell, Albert Bowker, Lucille Sheppard and John Keeler.

Lioness Thrills Big Crowd When She Nearly Kills Cub

Prize Beast at Zoo Mouths Offspring and Dashes Head Against Bars; Rescuers Plan to Raise Jungle Infant on Bottle.

Excitement rose to high pitch in the lions' house at the Zoo yesterday when hundreds of people feared that Johanna, the prize lioness, would kill her runt cub of the litter of three, and eat it before their horified eyes. The cub, after much maneuvering by W. H. Blackburne, head keeper, and other keepers, was rescued from its mother and will be raised on a bottle.

Jungle beasts and some domestic animals often eat their young, particularly the runt of the litter, seemingly making their own law of the survival of the fittest.

Johanna, one of the most beautiful lionesses in captivity, and said to be the finest specimen in America, had been a splendid mother to her litter of fuzzy-headed cubs up to yesterday.

For some reason, unexplainable by the animal men, she became exceedingly nervous, pacing up and down her cage, stopping only to look at the large python coiled in a tree across the corridor. She had the far-away look of the jungle, and apparently when she stopped, she was listening intently.

After pacing for an hour or so, she ran into her private den boxed in from the view of the public, and emerged with the runt cub dangling between her massive jaws. The little fellow is only about half the size of his brother and sister. She would pace back and forth, mouthing the little fellow none too gently. He began squalling, and was finally so laved with saliva drooling from Johanna's jaws that he looked nearly drowned, too.

While wheeling at the end of her beat before the bars, she knocked the little fellow's head cruelly against the wall.

At first many read pride of motherhood in her action, believing that she wanted to show her cub, but became alarmed when she became wilder and the little cub was being handled to exhaustion.

"Take her baby away from her," many requested of each other, but nobody wanted to try it. Word reached Mr. Blackburne and with attendants, he finally managed to drive Johanna into an adjoining cage and lock her in.

The exhausted little cub, lying sprawling on the floor of the den, was rescued, and will now become the bottle baby of the zoo. A sigh of relief went up when the little fellow was taken out.

Addresses Made by Officials; Meeting to Be Continued Through Tomorrow.

Starting with a parade, escorted by units of police, the Army, Navy, Marines, Coast Guard, American Legion, National Guard, the Elks, Shriners, and the Ladies Auxiliary, the Veterans of Foreign Wars posts of the District opened their annual department encampment last night at Western High School, to continue through tomorrow.

The parade formed at M street northwest between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth streets, and the line of march extended along Pennsylvania avenue, M street, Thirty-first street, and then west on R street to the high school. Unquestionably the most popular unit with the crowds lining the sidewalks was the V. F. W., Overseas Drum and Fife Corps, led by its mascot, Miss Thelma Bonini, who in turn was led by her own mascot, a toy bull terrier which she calls Hotsy Totsy but which the corps members have christened Dubonnet.

At the school the escort units disbanded and the V. F. W. members and the auxiliary took their places in the auditorium, where the encampment was opened officially with a salute to the colors, followed by the invocation by the chaplain, Rev. E. O. Anderson, pastor of St. Margaret's Episcopal Church.

Bowles Welcomes Delegates.

The address of welcome was delivered by E. Agee Bowles, president of the Georgetown Citizens Association, and responded to by Capt. Frank Lockhead, department commander of the V. F. W. Addresses were also delivered by Mrs. Fred C. Lucas, chief of the Ladies Auxiliary, V. F. W.; Maj. Gen. Bryant H. Wells, departmental chief of staff of the United States Army; Rear Admiral William H. Standley, commander of the Twenty-ninth Division, U. S. A.; Samuel Mawson, commander, Potomac Department, G. A. R.; Paul C. Wolman, junior vice commander in chief, V. F. W.; Lieut. Charles E. Weickhardt, U. S. N., liaison officer, and George J. Neuner, delegate to the National Council, V. F. W., from the Fourth District.

Rear Admiral Standley, presenting the viewpoint of the Navy on the subject of National defense, stressed the necessity for an adequate cruiser fleet. He rapped the horde of pacifist organizations, which he cited as particularly active in their propaganda to defeat the last cruiser appropriation bill before Congress.

The admiral also emphasized the value to the Government of seeking information pertinent to the Navy and its operation from members of its own naval forces who are most qualified to know, rather than from sources which have no practical knowledge.

Wells Urges Preparedness.

Gen. Wells, speaking from the standpoint of the Army, likewise urged the need for preparedness, and explained that the Army heads are constantly on the alert for any ideas or improvements that would tend to strengthen this Nation's armor for defense.

Gen. Stephan dwelt more upon the civilian angle. One point in his address was a prediction that the time is coming when the District will have congressional representation of its own.

He also took occasion to score the apparent neglect of the National Guard in the District, pointing out that at present some guard units must content themselves with old stables and similar unsuitable places for headquarters, while many companies are forced to drill out of doors, regardless of the weather. He held out a ray of hope for betterment of these conditions, however.

Approximately 300 members of V. F. W. posts and allied organizations attended the opening session of the encampment convention.

Speakers were followed by announcement of appointments of committees, reading of various announcements and communications and reports of officers and committees.

Report on Resolutions.

Chief of the topics scheduled for today is the report of the committee on resolutions, of which W. L. Thomas, of Equality-Walter Reed Post, No. 284, V. F. W., is chairman.

At the closing session tomorrow, resolutions presented by the committee will be voted and and new officers for the coming year are to be nominated and elected.

Mrs. Fred Lucas has been elected a delegate to the National Convention of Auxiliaries of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in St. Paul, Minn., by the local Federal Auxiliary. Mrs. Lucas also is indorsed for national junior vice president by several of the local auxiliaries.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

UNLESS there is a mistake somewhere, the new telephone directory now being distributed heralds "a decided improvement in service," according to the official report.

The dial system is on the way. Each telephone number must have at least four digits. Smaller combines are increased by oughts preceding the numerals.

A business man, having no time even for golf, calls "Main 6."

"Main 6 is now National 0006," the operator informs him.

Unable to get the number, he calls the supervising operator and pleads: "I'll be everlastingly obliged to you, and to the president of the company, and the board of directors, if you'll get me National 0006."

* * * *

WHILE dangling on the phone, awaiting his number, an ambulance dashes to the curb, siren screeching, whilst a young interne, kitbag in hand, rushes to the desk. "Some one sick in here?" he asks.

"Unless it could be me," answers the business man. "I'm getting sick waiting for this call to be put through."

"Oh," gasps the interne, "you're telephoning, eh?"

"Trying to," nods the man, yelling into the transmitter. "National 0006—Six, Sick, Six, Sick!"

"That must be it," exclaims the interne. "They thought you were sick, and so the telephone company sent its ambulance over. All part of the new and improved service. Good-day, sir. Our mistake."

The business man threw the new directory on the floor, stamped on it. He paced back and forth, finally grabbing the receiver. "Give me National—0006," he shouted at the top of his voice, "and I'm not sick, either."

"They don't answer," informs the operator. "Are you sure you have the right number? Who is the party you wish?"

"O'Schaunnessey."

* * * *

"I'LL give you Information," she purrs, jiggling the hook. Presently Information responds to treatment. The pulmotor is a great instrument.

"Information," says the business man, "I'm trying to get a Mr. O'Schaunnessey."

"O. Shaw Nessey? Is that his right name or an alias?" she asks.

"His first name is Oswald," confesses the man.

"Has he a middle initial?"

"Has he? You should hear. Two of 'em!"

"What is his confirmation name? You'll pardon if this seems personal, but it's part of the improved service."

"That's all right, Mr. O'Schaunnessey was named in honor of the Tammany chieftain, Olvaney."

"Is that all you have against him?"

"No ma'am! His name is Oswald Olvaney Oglethorpe O'Schaunnessey. That's his full name."

* * * *

"THAT may be so," agrees Information, "but, really, we're not interested in his habits. Does Mr. O Shaw Nessey live on O Street?"

"I wouldn't be a bit surprised," gasped the business man. "He has a natural weakness for O's. He brought it over from the O' country. It's been the cause of his undoing. He'll owe anybody."

"Would the address be Two — O O O O 'O' Street?"

"Undoubtedly, if there are that many O's in the alphabet."

"I have your party," she said, "his telephone number is O'Bediah—00006, changed from National—0006. I'll have the operator get your number."

Buzzzzzzzzz!

* * * *

"I'M sorry," said the operator, "O'Bediah—00006 doesn't answer."

"Are you sure it doesn't answer?"

"Line's busy," flashed the operator, "part of our improved service."

The busy business man, through with telephoning for the day, hailed a taxi and drove out to see O'Schaunnessey of O Street.

"Did your phone ring, Oswald?" he asked.

"It might have," admitted O'Schaunnessey. "I've been so absorbed in the new edition of the telephone directory that I don't know. Here," he said, passing the book over to his visitor. "Read it and weep, while I try to get a number."

G. C. HERTZ INDICTED ON PERJURY CHARGE

FALSIFIED DEBT, IS CLAIM

Gustav C. Hertz, former secretary-treasurer of the Cons lidated Hotel Co., which previously operated the Hamilton Hotel, Fourteenth and K streets northwest, was indicted yesterday by the grand jury on a charge of perjury in connection with the hotel operations.

Another indictment, charging concealment of books and property of a bankrupt corporation, was also reported against Hertz. Following his arrest three weeks ago on the perjury charge, Hertz was liberated in bail of $7,500 by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

The Consolidated Hotel Co. took over operation of the hotel after the Hamilton Hotel Corporation went bankrupt in 1926. The following year the consolidated firm went into bankruptcy.

The perjury indictment against Hertz charged that he stated under oath before Margaret H. Raedy, a notary public, on June 20, 1927, that a schedule of debts and assets of his company was accurate. The schedule of debts included an item of $319,697.29 due as rent to the Chesapeake Building Co., which held title to the hotel property, and, it is charged, Hertz knew the item was false. It was alleged that the rent due to the building company did not exceed $30,000.

The concealment of books and property indictment charged that Hertz concealed from William L. Browning, receiver of the Consolidated concern, from June 2, 1927, until July 12, 1927, the minute, bank, check, general ledger, petit cash ledger book and other property of the company with intent to violate the general bankruptcy law.

Woman, Granted Divorce, Says Mate Was Untrue

An interlocutory decree of absolute divorce was awarded Mrs. Dorothy Peake Summers, of 1317 Webster street northwest, against Irving B. Summers yesterday by Justice Alfred A. Wheat in equity division of the District Supreme Court. The wife charged she was forsaken on two occasions for other women.

The couple was married, according to the complaint, May 21, 1926. Summers was alleged to have spent several months last summer in the company of another woman at North Beach, Md., and after a reconciliation was effected was charged with forsaking his wife for another woman last spring. Attorneys Raymond Neudecker and William C. Ashford appeared for the wife.

CAR LOADING STAND ORDERED REMOVED

RAILWAY MEN OPPOSED

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday ordered removed the concrete street car loading platform on Connecticut avenue in front of the entrance of the Mayflower Hotel.

The action was announced by Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the commission, following an executive session after the public hearing held in the morning in the District Building.

Removal of the platform was asked by the hotel company, which was represented by William E. Leahy. Capt. William G. Stott, commander of the Third Police Precinct, was one of the principal witnesses called by Leahy. Stott said removal of the platform would be in the public interest because of traffic congestion. He added, however, that the parking of taxicabs along the curb in front of the hotel added to the difficulty, as did also the parking of other automobiles between the platform and the curb in front of the entrance, although such parking was forbidden.

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, engineer of the highway department, called by the commission, said Connecticut avenue had been widened to permit an additional lane of traffic but that the money had been wasted because of construction of the loading safety platform.

George E. Donn, traffic engineer of the Washington Railway & Electric Co., opposed removal of the platform. It had accommodated 490 passengers getting on and off street cars on June 20, he pointed out. Donn declared that not the platform, but illegal parking in front of the hotel was responsible for the traffic congestion.

Liquor Discovered In Cash Register

Several Hundred Gather at Scene of Raid as Riot Call Is Sent In.

That cash registers sometimes are used as depositories for things other than cash was discovered by Sergt. J. Letterman and his squad yesterday when, after a long, futile search for liquor at 1523 Eleventh street northwest, they finally found three pints of whisky concealed by greenbacks in the register.

The raid was made on a warrant charging a previous sale of liquor, and the officers took into custody Frank Lee, colored, 37 years old, who is the alleged occupant of the place. Lee was taken to the Second Precinct Station and charged with illegal sale and possession.

A crowd of several hundred persons was attracted to the scene when an excited bystander sent in a riot call and police reserves and a headquarters detail sped to the house.

From the Eleventh street address, Sergt. Letterman and his squad, consisting of Sergt. Richard J. Cox and Policemen George W. McCarron and A. J. Mostyn, went to 127 Eighteenth street northwest, where they seized a half-gallon of liquor and arrested Morris Green, colored, 37 years old, whom they charged with possession.

Haste Urged for New Supreme Court Building

Approval of plans for the new building to house the Supreme Court and a recommendation that all possible speed be used in its construction were expressed in a resolution adopted last night by the executive council of the Federal Bar Association, meeting in the Interior Department Building.

Two new members of the executive council were present for the first time. They are Duncan Bradley, of the general counsel office of the Internal Revenue Department, and Joseph B. Matre, of the State Department. Considerable discussion was held on the proposal to have either a dinner dance or a stag outing in the early fall and decision was left to the social committee and the president of the association, William R. Vallance. The council then recessed until September.

Child is Bitten by Dog.

Ross Edwin Fisher, 13 years old, 2042 Wisconsin avenue northwest, was bitten in the side by a dog owned by Nickoli Astoshkin, 2043 Thirty-fourth street northwest, yesterday afternoon in an alley at the rear of the boy's home. He was given medical aid by Dr. Charles Dugan.

ARMY INSTITUTION AWARDS DIPLOMAS TO 99 GRADUATES

Secretary of War Good Makes Presentation at Exercises of War College.

ADDRESSES DELIVERED BY TWO HIGH OFFICERS

Gen. Charles Summerall and Maj. Gen. W. D. Connor Speak to Class.

Ninty-nine Army officers were graduated yesterday morning from the Army War College here. Secretary of War James Good presented the diplomas to the graduates.

Gen. Charles Summerall, chief of staff of the Army, and Maj. Gen. William D. Connor, commandant of the War College, delivered addresses at the exercises.

When an officer has completed the course at the War College he has received the entire educational course offered by the Army. Of outstanding interest this year was the graduation of Maj. Vincente Lim, infantry, who is the first citizen of the Philippines to complete the educational courses of the Army.

Maj. Lim was the first cadet to the Military Academy from the Philippines. This was in 1910. Upon graduation from the academy he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Philippine Scouts. He was graduated from the advanced course at the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga., in 1927, and from the command and general staff course at the General Service Schools, Fort Leavenworth, Kans., in 1928. His name is carried on the general staff eligible list.

The other graduates were:

United States Army.

Colonels—Lucius C. Bennett, Fred V. S. Chamberlain, Willis F. Coleman, Harrison Hall, John W. Joyes, Frederic G. Kellond, Charles F. Martin, William P. Screws, Charles B. Taylor, Daniel Van Voorhis.

United States Navy.

Capt. Lewis Coxe, Capt. Emmet Gudger, Capt. Henry C. S. Wallace, Commander Walcott E. Hall, Commander Matthias E. Manly, Commander Stephen B. McKinney, Commander Carl T. Osburn, Commander Paul E. Speicher.

Legion Post Celebrates Its Tenth Anniversary

The tenth anniversary celebration of the James Reese Europe Post of the American Legion was held last night at the Whitelaw, the address of welcome being made by Elisha E. Almond, commander, who also presented historical reminiscences of the organization. The principal address was made by Harlan B. Wood, department commander. Alexander Mann was master of ceremonies.

Others who spoke were Paul McGahan, executive committeeman; William Wolf Smith, alternate; Thomas J. Dickerson, department chaplain; E. A. Costello, quartermaster; Charles Kohen, welfare officer; Watson B. Miller, national chairman of rehabilitation, and the Rev. D. E. Wiseman. Musical numbers were furnished by Mary E. Europe, Marie Jordan, Isadora B. Peller.

Transit Merger Is Urged By Utilities Committee

Recommendation that local transit companies hold themselves in readiness to consolidate and that Congress enact the necesary legislation to permit such consolidation was made yesterday by the public utilities committee of the Washington Chamber of Commerce at a meeting at which the request for increased fare, made by the Capital Traction Co., was discussed.

The committee held that merging of the car lines would mean better service, reduction of operating costs, a system of universal transfers and lessened possibility of fare increases in the future.
